EUROPE WANTS 40 BILLION IN POST-WAR AID

British, Reds After Lion's Share

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 8—Forty billion dollars is a conservative estimate of the outlay European nations want the United States to pour into the industrial and commercial rehabilitation of Europe.

This would come on top of 45 billion dollars' worth of lend-lease assistance given to allies and approximately 25 billion dollars' worth of lend-lease allotments under way.

Against this aid the United States has received but a trickle of reverse lend-lease, including quartering in the countries Americans came to defend. The difference between lend-lease and reverse lend-lease is expected to be a gift to allied nations.

War Costs Reach 250 Billion

The war has cost the United States 250 billions to date and the debt limit has been raised to 300 billion dollars to facilitate a drain of national wealth for post-war schemes which threaten to impoverish the country, in the opinion of concerned members of congress.

Great Britain, which has received the lion's share of lend-lease, wants more lend-lease and a grant or easy loan of 7 billion dollars. This represents an upward revision of the demand made last November for 6½ billion of lend-lease, of which 3½ billion dollars was to be nonmilitary and open for resale.

Plan for Loan Told

The latest bid reportedly resulted from the visit of President Roosevelt's special counsel to London to report on the post-war economic situation. As a result of data gathered on this visit, according to high New Deal circles, the President is prepared to grant the British 6 billion dollars as a loan, after continuing lend-lease to the tune of 4 or 5 billion dollars.

The British have built up huge stock piles of raw materials and foodstuffs under lend-lease but have refused to part with any of it for the rehabilitation of Europe.

Russia, which has been given 7 billion dollars' worth of materials under lend-lease, is reportedly negotiating a 4 billion dollar lend-lease agreement and wants 6 billion dollars' worth of easy, long term post-war credits.

Stalin Maneuver Studied

In his maneuverings for three votes and to have the soviet provisional government of Poland invited to San Francisco, Dictator Stalin was seen by observers here as driving a hard bargain for his credit demands by indicating he would not participate in the world security conference unless his money demands are granted.

The continuance of lend-lease as victory in Europe is at hand and the loan demands would give Britain and Russia a total of approximately 20 billion dollars of aid, which would go largely for post-war purposes.

Stalin has asked the 6 billion of war credits with an indication that he wants to purchase vast quantities of industrial equipment in this country.

2½ Billion for France

The United States recently concluded a 2½ billion dollar lend-lease agreement with France under which this country will provide locomotives, raw materials, industrial machinery, food, and other materials.

France, along with other European nations, desires to share in the post-war credits the United States is expected to extend. It is expected France, Belgium, Holland, Norway, Denmark, Czechoslovakia, Poland, and other allies will ask many billions to rebuild their countries.

The New Deal scheme has split the capital wide open. Conservative Democrats are aligning with Republicans to prevent America from being bled white. The internationalists and New Dealers are working behind the pressure groups of Communists, fellow travelers, do-gooders, and the CIO-PAC to put over the spending spree.

AMG Is Short of Men, but Not of Problems

BY LARRY RUE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, April 8—What are the problems facing the AMG [allied military government], whose specially trained men are charged with the task of restoring law and order and public services in the chaos of captured cities? What is the food situation? How is the nonfraternization order being enforced?

To answer these questions and others, a Chicago Tribune correspondent traveled more than 500 miles in a nonmilitary automobile in German territory. The route was on the west bank of the Rhine, from Trier to Cologne on secondary roads usually used for military traffic, and returning along the west bank of the river to Coblenz, thence along the Moselle back to Trier.

Problems varied according to localities, but one of the main ones in all places was one not foreseen—that of displaced persons.

Refugees Trickle Back

Hundreds of thousands of these refugees, freed from prisoner of war camps or places of employment by our advancing troops, are now trickling back along all the roads leading into France. They must be fed, given transportation, deloused, and physically examined to prevent epidemics.

Another problem not so easy to solve is that of getting efficient local governments organized without using administrative or technical experts who at one time had joined the Nazi party.

In most places, the food situation is described as good or satisfactory, but no one dared predict what winter will bring for the German people.

Little Fraternization

The nonfraternization orders presents something of a problem, but so far not a serious one, THE TRIBUNE was told. Troops are on the move, and behind the lines there are only a few keymen, and they are too busy to look around much. Also the curfew law—all Germans must be in their crowded homes by 7 o'clock nightly—and the almost total lack of public places, restaurants, cafes, wine stubes, and even homes, afford little place for or encouragement of fraternization.

Despite our elaborate plans and preparations for civil government administration in occupied enemy territory, there is a shortage of men. They are all specifically selected for administrative or technical experience, altho political convictions undoubtedly have influenced some appointments.

It is not infrequent to see an entire landkreise—equivalent to many of our counties—entirely governed by an "I detachment" consisting of a first lieutenant, two or three other officers, and eight or 10 enlisted men. Thruout the trip, THE TRIBUNE was amazed at how much so few were able to accomplish.

German civilians, used to being bullied, are well disciplined and obey orders instinctively.

RHINE RAIL SPAN BUILT IN 10 DAYS

Prefabricated Sections Aid Yank Engineers

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

WESEL, Germany, April 8—Just two hours short of 10 days from the time it was started, the first American railroad bridge across the Rhine was finished today. The last great girder was fitted into place in the center of its huge span and the engineers have finished linking spur tracks over which by tomorrow freight trains loaded with ammunition, gasoline, and other supplies for the battle of Berlin will be rolling.

Work was started on the bridge at 6 p. m. March 29, but plans for it were made months ago. Timber and piles came from Huertgen forest, scene of battles that continued from September thru February. Steel for the girders and tracks was fabricated in Luxemburg. Debris and rubble from flattened Wesel furnished ballast.

Mostly Prefabricated

Everything that could be was prefabricated so that when the piles were driven and the girders fitted into place sections of track already spiked to crossties were laid in place. The work went on day and night and such is the state of the German air force now that the night shift was able to work under flood lights. Gen. Somervell, commanding army service forces, told Col. James B. Press, commanding officer of the construction and repair group which built the bridge, that Julius Caesar had bridged the Rhine in 14 days and that it should not take Americans any longer.

The bridge which replaces the railroad bridge which the Germans destroyed is 2,588 feet long including a bridge over a canal and the approaches. It will carry the heaviest trains and is a single track affair, but the approaches are both double track. A total of 622 piles were driven into the river bed by derricks on pontoons.

Three Drown During Inspection

It was tricky work in a current of eight miles an hour. A major, a corporal, and a private of the 355th engineers were drowned three nights ago when a "duck" in which they were inspecting the progress of the work overturned.

Three thousand men of engineer detachments and 500 civilian laborers were engaged on the job. Before the bridge was started it was necessary to disinter bodies from a German military cemetery which lay athwart the approaches.

Chicago Soldiers Pop Up Deep in Nazi Territory

BY JOHN THOMPSON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ADVANCE HDQ., U. S. 1ST ARMY, Germany, April 8—Incidents involving soldiers from Chicago and the middle west continue to pop up as the 1st army carries the war deeper into Germany.

Pvt. Leroy Frayne, 6531 S. Emerald av., Chicago, was busy stringing communication wires Easter Sunday in Lowen. Frayne's thoughts were far from hunting Easter eggs.

But in a field he found one colored egg—and that set him off. By the time he had been over the entire field Frayne's helmet was full of colored eggs. The Americans had swept thru the village so swiftly that the village plans for an Easter egg hunt were spoiled.

When the 9th armored division took Limburg, four of the leading tanks whirling along an auto-bahn [super-highway] were cut off after the Germans blew a bridge. Before the doughboys behind them could swim the river and bring help the tankers were almost eliminated in a fierce fight with SS [elite guard] troops.

For three hours they fought, redistributing ammunition six times under the direction of Capt. Arthur J. Bamford Jr., 1448 Lake Shore dr., Chicago. With their small arms ammunition almost exhausted, Bamford climbed into a smoking, disabled truck and started passing down stored ammunition.

"Captain, duck!" shouted one soldier. He had seen an SS sniper in a second floor window drawing a bead on the captain. Bamford ducked and at the same moment pulled the lanyard of the 76 mm. tank gun. When the flash cleared the second floor and the Nazi had disappeared.

By luck the tank gun had been trained exactly on the right target.

While preparing to set up an observation post outside a recently captured German town, a 3d army field artillery battalion sent a squad to investigate a small house. Inside they found cooking equipment, a German rifle, and two beds. Hiding in some near-by brush were a German medical officer, one enlisted man, and two German women. The officer described the women as his secretaries.

Included in the squad which broke up this German love nest was S/Sgt. Albert J. Schumann of St. Leon, Ind.

Riding along a highway near Kassel, Capt. William O. Lueck of St. Charles, Wis., stopped his jeep to take a potshot with his pistol at a deer scampering across a highway. Lueck, an old Wisconsin deer hunter, didn't expect to hit this buck with a pistol. And he didn't. But the sound of the pistol brought two German soldiers rushing out of a draw with their hands up.

Sgt. Albert Hunsaker of Casey, Ill., saw that a German JU-88 was in trouble and to help it down opened up with the .50 caliber machine gun on his half track. The plane crash landed in a field.

Jumping into a jeep Hunsaker and Pvt. Hubbard Newton of Winsboro, Tex., sped to the field and reached the plane just as the shaken crew was crawling out. The pilot said he was on his way back to Berlin.

"Sorry," said Hunsaker. "I'm going to Berlin. You're going back to our prisoner of war inclosure."

FIRST IWO NURSE ALSO FIRST TO REACH OKINAWA

ABOARD A NAVAL EVACUATION PLANE, Okinawa, April 8 (AP)—Ensign Jane Kendeigh continued her pioneering in the Pacific today when she stepped from this air transport evacuation squadron plane at Okinawa's Yontan air field, to become the first nurse on the island, across which marines and doughboys are sweeping.

Jane also was the first nurse to land on Iwo Island to bring out wounded patients by air. At Okinawa she took efficient charge of 20 wounded men chosen for the first flight back to the Guam hospital. On the return trip she already had a chart in her mind of the condition of each patient.

She found time for everything—to chat with men as well as watch temperatures, give sedatives, change bandages.

OPA TRIES OUT WALKIE-TALKIES IN PRICE PROBING

Philadelphia, Pa., April 8 (AP)—"Hello, Joe. . . . What's the ceiling on salami today?" and other similar remarks may clutter the ether waves soon if the office of price administration's latest experiment proves successful.

Equipped with walkie-talkie sets, OPA agents roamed the Pennsylvania railroad suburban station today testing the possibilities of the sending-receiving sets for use in enforcing OPA regulations.

OPA officials said the sets could be used in directing activities of investigators from headquarters and in providing spot information to agents. Agents said the only hitch in the walkie-talkies is the difficulty they experience in concealing the buggywhip-like antennas.

BRITISH, DUTCH TO RUN WAR IN SOUTH PACIFIC

U.S. Success Makes Mop-Up Possible

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 8—A radical reorganization of the allied campaign in the far east is being evolved to expedite the conquest of Japan.

Under this plan the British and the Dutch will take over from the United States the conduct of the war in the Southwest Pacific. The reclamation of Singapore, Malaya and British territory in the East Indies from the Japs will become a job for the British navy and army. Dutch forces already have arrived in Australia for operations to recover Java, Sumatra and other parts of the Netherlands East Indies.

American forces under the command of Gen. MacArthur and Adm. Nimitz broke the Jap power in the Southwest Pacific and made it possible for the British and Dutch to mop up the contained enemy and regain their possessions in that region.

MacArthur's Strategy

Gen. MacArthur, who has been the commander in the Southwest Pacific ever since he started from Australia in his drive back to the Philippines, is henceforth to concentrate on land operations against the Japanese in China and on the invasion of the Jap home islands while Adm. Nimitz, co-commander in the far east, will direct the supporting naval actions.

With the Philippines recovered the entire American campaign has swung northward with the immediate objective a knockout of Japan in the seat of its military power. As soon as the American forces are securely established in the Ryukyus Islands they will be in a position to prepare the way for the invasion of the Jap homeland or China or both. Already Japanese communications with China and Japan's conquered empire in the East Indies are at the mercy of American air and sea forces.

Speculate on Russia

A big factor in the military equation is Russia, now that Moscow has denounced the Russo-Japanese neutrality treaty. Altho Censorship Director Price has put the lid on American speculation on the intentions of Russian Dictator Stalin lest Japan be incited to attack Russia the Tokyo government appears to have needed no suggestion from American sources that the denunciation of the treaty might signalize the entrance of Russia into the war. One of the first acts of the new ministry at Tokyo was to declare that Japan "is fully prepared to respond to and cope with any and all situations that might arise," including war, of course, if the all inclusive language means anything.

It follows that Japan will be compelled to keep a large army on the Siberian border to cope with the situations that may arise. The Jap strength in the remainder of Manchuria and China will be correspondingly weakened and reinforcement from the Jap mainland will become more and more difficult as the Americans extend their operations from the Ryukyus. Altogether, with Russia lining up with the al-

LONDON, April 9 [Monday]—(AP)—Russian troops burst three miles inside embattled Vienna yesterday, hastened the Austrian capital's encirclement by fording the Danube and Morava rivers east of the city, and pushed into the Austrian Alps to the south within 32 miles of Graz.

As soviet tommy gunners battered within a mile of Vienna's heart, Russian forces far to the north began storming the East Prussian capital of Koenigsberg, re-encircled the fortress city, and captured 15,000 prisoners.

The mop-up battle to reduce long beleaguered Koenigsberg and thereby release soviet troops for the impending battle for Berlin came as the German radio said that the Red army might already have begun that struggle. The Nazi Transocean agency reported: "Reconnaissance in force in the area of Frankfurt-on-Oder and Kuestrin [33 to 38 miles east of Berlin] suggests the beginning of the Russian offensive toward the reich capital."

Move Thru Streets

Soviet assault forces are moving thru the rubble strewn and smoke clouded streets of Vienna at a far faster rate than they had moved in the prolonged battle for Budapest. There were indications they were being aided by Austrian patriots as the soviet high command and government called on the Viennese to cut down the Nazis, prevent the great cultural center's destruction, and "make a contribution to the liberation of Austria."

The Russian midnight bulletin reported that Austrians were welcoming the Red army with demonstrations and exhibiting the Austrian and soviet flags.

Russian troops, battering two and three-quarter miles into the city from the south, captured the south and east stations, within a few hundred yards of each other and one mile from Vienna's famous Ringstrasse marking the old city area. They were a mile and a half from St. Stephan's cathedral.

Main Arsenal Captured

The main arsenal, built and highly fortified almost 100 years ago, and two miles from St. Stephan's, also was captured.

Another of Vienna's vital rail escape routes was cut when a Russian bridgehead across the Morava was built up at Angern, 18 miles northeast of the capital. The line linked the capital with the Czechoslovak war production center of Bruenn [Brno], 35 miles from other Russian spearheads.

While the battle for Vienna raged with increasing ferocity and its escape gap on the north was narrowed to 24 miles by units including Cossack cavalry men, soviet troops west of the city struck along the Danube valley and thrust out of the Vienna woods to a point 75 miles east of Linz.

South of Vienna, in the Austrian Alps, mountain fighters of Marshal Tolbukhin's 3d Ukranian army hammered into the 4,754 foot peaks to clear the Pinka river valley on a 50 mile front.

Paris Gets Strawberries at 16⅔ Cents a Berry

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 8—The first strawberries were on sale in Paris today. They cost 100 francs [$2] per dozen. They came in boxes of one dozen usually and were wrapped like jewels. Asparagus also appeared on the market for the first time and was priced at 20 francs, or 40 cents, per stalk.

'2 Ornery Brats, Cranky Woman' Need a Maid

Twin Falls, Idaho, April 8 (AP)—A housewife inserted the following challenge in the "Help Wanted—Female" column of The Times-News: "Housekeeper for large house. Two ornery brats. Long hours, cranky woman, low pay. No time off. Phone 2419-M."

GERMANS RUSH FORCES TO HALT PATTON YANKS

Goettingen Falls to Hodges' Men

PARIS, April 9 [Monday]—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Simpson's United States 9th army tanks roared unopposed along a super-highway toward Berlin today and last were reported 128 miles from the capital. The British 2d army drove up within artillery range of Bremen and laid siege to that port and U-boat center.

British armored columns on the west were only seven miles from Bremen. A column of the 7th armored [Desert Rats] division captured Syke, 11 miles south of Bremen and raced on to the north. The Germans were expected to defend Bremen with what troops they could salvage from fighting zones to the southwest and marine and naval troops in the city.

[A Reuters dispatch quoted the German radio as saying that "the allied large scale attack on Bremen has begun. Armored spearheads of the British 2d army coming from several directions have advanced north . . . fighting is in progress between the Weser and the Delme." The Delme is a tributary to the Weser about 18 miles from Bremen.]

Chute Into North Holland

The allied 1st air borne army threw a giant net around two German armies in Holland. Air borne troops were dropped over a wide area of northern Holland Saturday night, and had established radio contact with Canadian 1st army armored columns driving for a junction. Supreme headquarters gave few details of the air borne operation, but the combined air borne-Canadian 1st army offensive was swiftly sealing off the V-weapon coast of Holland.

The American 9th army's 2d armored division surged out onto the autobahn [highway] to Berlin within 20 miles of Brunswick. It was at least 15 miles ahead of the 1st army's Berlin-bound forces swarming across the Weser river.

Other United States 9th army forces smashed within five miles of Hannover.

Turns Toward Hamburg

One British column approached within seven miles of Hannover, then wheeled northward and was reported 64 miles from Hamburg, Germany's second largest city and biggest port. The enemy said this was an ambitious attempt to seize Hamburg and seal off Denmark.

The Germans were striving to bring an ordered line out of the chaos of defeat and columns of enemy troops were streaming westward toward Lt. Gen. Patton's United States 3d army front, where an American salient has been hammered within 130 miles of Berlin.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' United States 1st army north of this front was threatening to outflank these fresh forces even as they were struggling to get into position.

In an 18 mile thrust 1st army tanks and troops swept up the ancient university city of Goettingen, captured 15,000 wounded German soldiers in hospitals there, and pressed unopposed two miles beyond, within 143 miles of Berlin.

Fight Into 2 Ruhr Cities

The battle of annihilation in the Ruhr pocket took a decisive turn as the 9th army fought into Dortmund and Gelsenkirchen, two of the basin's biggest cities, after taking 13,417 prisoners on Saturday. The 1st army was driving in from the east and south, gaining four miles or more.

The Canadians in Holland were 11 miles from the Zuider Zee and less than a mile from the last good route of escape open to the Germans out of Rotterdam and Amsterdam after smashing to within three-fourths of a mile of the road and railway center of Meppel.

The Canadians broke German resistance in the pivotal stronghold of Zutphen and were chasing the enemy across the Ijssel river.

One Canadian armored column, racing for a junction with the air borne forces, entered Haalweide 14 miles east of the Zuider Zee.

A junction was expected any time. It was the job of the sky troopers to seize the bridges over the countless streams and canals that make Holland's flatlands one of the world's most difficult battlefields. The enemy was holding on both flanks, however.

Gen. Crerar's Canadian forces were repulsed in an attempt to cross the Ems river on the east flank at Meppen.

The British 11th armored division, after capturing a big synthetic oil plant at Loccum, 25 miles west of Hannover, also turned north and rolled into Rehburg, 23 miles west slightly north of Hannover.

Driven from Muenden

Fifteen miles southwest of Goettingen, the Germans were driven from Muenden and infantry smashed the rest of the way thru the Hessian gap—ancient route of conquest by Napoleon. Troops after overrunning Goettingen pushed on two miles beyond without contacting the enemy in force.

Before Goettingen, they captured an airfield with two planes, and then crossed the Leine river over a bridge the Germans failed to blow. They ran into no artillery fire, the enemy apparently pulling back his field guns to the east.

The 2d armored division of the American 9th army once more broke out into the open on the most direct route to Berlin after slowing down for two days to get across the Weser river.

Simpson Uses 10 Divisions.

The 2d armored had by-passed Hannover after passing within 10 miles of the city. A front dispatch said there apparently was nothing in front of this racing force but the Elbe river—50 miles from Berlin.

Simpson committed at least seven infantry and three armored divisions to his offensive. The 84th "Rail-splitter" division, raced 20 miles beyond the Weser river and was probably five or six miles from Hannover.

To the rear, the 9th with the 1st army was pressing the cleanup of the Ruhr pocket, fighting into Dortmund, Germany's 11th largest city with a population of 537,000, and Gelsenkirchen, with a population of 313,000.

Resistance Near Siegen

In its own battle to wipe out the Ruhr pocket, the 1st army ran up against hard resistance only in the area of the fallen bastion of Siegen, advancing three to four miles thru the hills from the south and east and flushing out hundreds of prisoners.

Patton's 3d army battled German tanks for the second successive day in the area west of Muehlhausen, knocking out 10 more for a two day total of 50. The Germans were massing forces north of Muehlhausen, and pilots reported roads west of Weimar filled with enemy traffic heading toward this sector.

The 6th armored division, heading into the face of these forces, drove five miles north into Dingelstadt, 10 miles northwest of Muehlhausen.

The limited scope of operations indicated that Patton's armored columns were building up supplies before resuming big scale operations. The 3d army took 10,000 more prisoners on Saturday.

Four Miles from Schweinfurt

On the southern front, the 10th armored division of the American 7th army captured Crailsheim, 95 miles from Munich, then wheeled 10 miles westward in a move to trap sizable German forces in the Heilbronn sector.

Tanks and infantry of the 7th army were four miles from the ball bearing manufacturing city of Schweinfurt.

The 14th armored division swept 10 miles into Kronungen, four miles northwest of Schweinfurt, and was outflanking it by plowing into Neustadt, 19 miles north of the city.

The 42d armored division was closing in from the south. One force swept up to Schwanfeld, nine miles south of Schweinfurt, and another crossed a loop in the River Main at Astheim, 11 miles south of the city.

On the south end of the front, the French 1st army seized the transmitter of the Stuttgart radio 13 miles from that capital of Wuerttemberg. With a population of 459,000, Stuttgart is one of the most important manufacturing cities of the reich. The French also captured the Black forest city of Pforzheim.

Allied armies counted 189,611 Germans into their prison pens in the first six days of April—more than three times the 63,079 captured by the Americans thruout the first World war—and in the same period probably killed or wounded 25,000 more.

RUSSIA PLEDGES INDEPENDENCE TO AUSTRIANS

LONDON, April 8 (AP)—The Moscow radio broadcast tonight a declaration by the soviet government that Russia regarded the Austrian people as friends and that the soviet union had no intention of acquiring Austrian territory or of changing the Austrian social system.

The declaration said, "Smashing the German Fascist armies and pursuing them, the Red army entered Austria and has besieged its capital. In distinction from the Germans in Germany, the Austrian population is resisting the evacuation carried out by the Germans, is remaining in its places and meeting with joy the Red army as liberators of Austria from the yoke of the Hitlerites.

"The soviet government is not pursuing the aim of acquiring any part of Austrian territory or of changing the social system in Austria. The soviet government stands on the point of view of the allied Moscow declaration on the independence of Austria. It will carry out this declaration. It will facilitate the liquidation of the regime of the German Fascist invaders and the restoration of a democratic order and institutions in Austria. The supreme command of the Red army has given an order to soviet troops to assist the Austrian population in this work."

HURT IN FALL ON "L" STAIRS

Beatrix Wolmer, 19, of 1819 Orrington av., Evanston, was taken to St. Luke's hospital with a possible fracture of the collarbone and bruises on the knees after she tripped and fell on the stairway of the elevated station at Randolph and Wells sts. yesterday.

YANK ALADDINS GAZE POPEYED AT NAZI HOARD

MERKERS, Germany, April 8 (AP)—Nobody could find the key, so United States 3d army engineers blasted a hole thru a thick brick wall today and exposed Hitler's fabulous hoard of gold and money cached in the 2,100 foot Merkers salt mine.

More than 4,000 bags of gold bullion were counted, a total of 50 tons. Each bag weighed 25 pounds and was worth $14,000.

It was impossible to determine definitely today whether there was more or less gold than the 100-plus tons that Dr. Werner Vieck of the Reichsbank said were in the cache—but there were some indications that it was more. Each ton is worth $1,000,000.

There Isn't Any More

"This is it — Germany's entire gold reserve," said Dr. Vieck. "There isn't any more."

The sacks were stacked along the walls of a dim lit chamber 395 by 65 feet, along with thousands of sacks of coins too heavy for an American soldier to lift.

Corridors leading to the "gold room" were lined with huge stacks of bags containing reichsmarks and money of various other countries including perhaps $2,000,000 in American currency.

Army officers began an inventory of the treasure trove which will require days to complete.

Besides the vast monetary hoard the Germans had cached hundreds of priceless art works including a Titian Venus.

Another Art Haul

Another art haul was made late today by the 5th division which unearthed 200 paintings by the artist Degas and hundreds of manuscripts. The works included some removed from Paris and other European capitals by the Nazis. One manuscript dealt with the family history of the Rothchilds.

In the gold room were 4,050 bags of 25 pound gold bars, each bar about the size of an ordinary building brick.

[Hitler and various other Nazi leaders including Goering, Goebbels, and Himmler, have been reported to have millions of dollars in currency and securities cached in foreign countries under false names.]

Dr. Werner Rave, curator of the German state museum and an assistant director of Berlin's national art galleries, who was present with Vieck, said two-thirds of the reich's national treasures were stored in the cave. The other third, he said, was in another salt mine which has been overrun by the Americans.

Unable to Find Keys

To get to the chamber it was necessary to descend in a 15 man double decker elevator operated by German civilian mine employes.

The engineers had to blast the brick wall because nobody seemed to have the keys to the massive steel door to the chamber.

Resting on the floor, glistening with white salt, stack after stack of gold could be counted. While a colonel went about poking bags with a walking stick, the popeyed engineers looked on in amazement.

"It's nothing but money, boys," joshed Pvt. Daniel Ciamatti, 5005 Carpenter st., Chicago.

65,000 NAZIS FIGHT TRAP IN NUERNBERG AREA

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 10TH ARMORED DIVISION, Germany, April 8—This division's tank battalions and two infantry divisions were fighting tonight to draw tight a triangular trap on an estimated 65,000 German troops. The enemy struck back desperately with self-propelled and anti-tank guns and small arms fire in efforts to extricate himself from the 150 square mile pocket in which he faces being contained and to crimp any all out drive toward Nuernberg, the citadel of Nazism.

The trap design is an isosceles figure with the two equal legs stretching southeast and southwest from just below Bad Mergentheim, which we hold. The southeastern vertex is at Crailsheim, which also is in our control, and the southwestern at Heilbronn, where our forces are in a sharp struggle to clear the town. At Crailsheim the Americans are 40 miles west of Nuernberg.

Dash Sets Up Trap

The east-west base of the triangle is the 33 miles from Heilbronn to Crailsheim and if the entrapment of the Germans is to be completed the 100th infantry division must mop up Heilbronn and cut east while the 10th armored is swinging westward from Crailsheim. Meanwhile the 63d infantry division is moving south from Mergentheim.

The chance for the trap was set up by the dash of a task force of Maj. Gen. William H. Morris Jr.'s armored division down the road from Mergentheim to Crailsheim. The tank and infantry force commanded by Maj. Curtis L. Hankins, shot southeast in a move which took the Germans by surprise, the enemy apparently having been girded to defend a thrust directly to the east from Mergentheim.

The Germans were caught so flat footed that some of their convoys still were heading toward Crailsheim and Hankins' military policemen merely waved them into captivity. A busload of Germans riding to battle also was grabbed by the task force.

Seize Enemy Air Field

Hankins' tanks and armored infantry dashed west of Crailsheim to seize an air field virtually intact. In this bag, in addition to several hundred prisoners, were 14 German planes, eight plane loaders, one 88 and one 40 mm. ack-ack gun, and 300 rifles.

In the wake of Hankins' task force came Lt. Col. John R. Riley of Danville, Va., and his Combat Command B. Riley's tanks destroyed a German railroad supply train.

The Germans, acutely sensitive to the loss of Crailsheim some 40 miles west of Nuernberg, late today hit back with planes, long range guns, and infantry. The Germans were thrown back.

Nazi Vienna Commander Assassinated, Reds Hear

LONDON, April 8 [Reuters]—Sepp Dietrich, German commander in Vienna was killed on his way to the broadcasting station, Moscow radio stated tonight. Five shots were fired at him pointblank as he was on his way to give his talk on Viennese resistance, the radio said.

V-BOMB MENACE PAST, BRITISH HEAR; 8,436 DEAD LISTED

LONDON, April 8 (AP)—The Germans "cannot now send V-bombs" against Britain, a home security official said today as the security office reported 8,436 persons had been killed and 25,101 had been seriously injured since V-bombing began last June 15.

While allied armies fought to clean up the rocket coast, Miss Ellen Wilkinson, the security office's parliamentary secretary, said the flying bomb range would have to be lengthened "considerably" for another attack. "This would mean carrying extra fuel and so reducing the warhead as to make them ineffective as weapons of retaliation," she said.

The security office announced that one of the worst air raid incidents of the war was a recent V-bomb strike on two large blocks of flats. The office also disclosed that a single bomb strike on a public shelter in Liverpool in 1941 killed 170 persons.

FRANCE TAKES OVER BIG PLANE ENGINE COMPANY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, April 8—The nationalization of French industry was extended to aviation production with the announcement today by Charles Tillon, minister of air, that the government had taken over the huge Gnome-Rhone factories, second largest producers of aviation engines in France. The French government last fall nationalized the coal industry.

Tillon made the announcement at the closing session of the French aviation congress. He said the Gnome-Rhone factories, largely situated in Paris, were being ineffectively operated. Recently Gnome-Rhone has been repairing American tanks.

LEON FRASER, WORLD BANKER, ENDS HIS LIFE

Note Left by Financier Tells of Despondency

Glens Falls, N. Y., April 8 [Special]—At 55, Leon Fraser had achieved more things than most men could dream of. He was at the pinnacle of a dazzling career which had brought him outstanding success in finance, international law, and public service.

Leon Fraser.

This afternoon he sat alone in his big summer home on his estate at North Granville near here. He had been there alone since Friday when he had his caretaker meet him at the railroad station at Comstock, N. Y., 12 miles away, and bring him to the place with instructions to return for him Sunday at 2:30 p. m.

As the time neared for the caretaker's arrival, Fraser penned a note to his neighbors. He had decided, he said, that he didn't want to live any longer. He was sorry to be a nuisance, ending things this way. Except for a feeling of melancholia, he said, he had everything to live for. He enumerated a few of the things—good friends, fine business associates.

Headed Big N. Y. Bank

As he sat composing a farewell to the uninterrupted success story that had been his life, Fraser was president of one of the nation's largest banking houses, the First National bank of New York, a post he had held since 1937. He was a director of the United States Steel corporation, the General Electric company, the New York Central railroad, and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. He was a trustee of the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York. Last year he headed the national Red Cross fund drive.

For two years during the '30s he had been president of the world bank for international settlements at Basel, Switzerland. He had been general counsel to the Dawes commission, acting director of the United States veterans' bureau, and assistant director to the bureau of war risk insurance.

Had no Troubles

"I have no troubles of any kind," he wrote, "financial or bad physical health—but for a long, long time I have been depressed mentally and suffered from a melancholia that steadily grows worse."

He also wrote a brief personal note to his adopted son, James, 16, a student at Eaglebrook school, Deerfield Mass., assuring him that "everything is secure" and that he had left him "a competence." Fraser's wife, the former Margaret M. Maury, died three years ago.

At 2:30 p. m., the caretaker, Avon M. Hodgkins, arrived at the estate with Fraser's car. Hodgkins waited for several minutes for the banker to appear and when he did not the caretaker stepped into the house thru the unlocked front door. A note in the hall directed, "Go to the den for more letters."

In the "den" on the second floor, Hodgkins found the note to "the neighbors," the note to James, and another envelope addressed to James containing $50. In alarm, Hodgkins dashed outside and began a survey of the grounds. Fraser, with a bullet hole in his head and a revolver in his hand, was lying, still breathing, on the lawn in the rear of the house.

Dies on Way to Hospital

Dr. Walter Bennett of Granville, summoned by Hodgkins, put Fraser into a car and started for the hospital at Glens Falls. Before half the distance was traversed, however, he pronounced the banker dead. Coroner W. B. Inglee of Washington county held an inquest later in the day at the Fraser home. His verdict was "death by self-inflicted bullet wound."

The note to "the neighbors" concluded: "No funeral, please—no flowers—just a simple burial——"

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH AIR FORCE, April 8—The total German prisoners captured by the United States 12th army group was expected to go well past the one million mark with the tally of today's bag.

The white flag was a popular Nazi emblem this sunny sabbath as American infantry continued to take areas on the map between prongs stuck out in Germany by armored columns. The day's catch was expected to approximate yesterday's 39,000.

This does not mean that fighting on the western front has slackened. To the contrary, the 9th air force, furnishing reconnaissance and tactica support for ground forces, reported three fierce attempts of the enemy to break the encirclement of German divisions entrapped in the Ruhr area. Two counter-attacks were from within, at the northwest and southeast corners of the pocket, and a third was from without, near Muehlhausen. All three were repulsed with losses on both sides.

Flyer Credited for Captures.

Easy captures are being made in areas already overrun by American armor. Nazis left behind to fight rear guard actions are giving up. Some of the incidents to surrender are unusual and some amusing.

A reconnaissance pilot is credited with the capture of more than 100 enemy infantrymen. He circled a German column on a side road and was greeted with waving handkerchiefs. He continued to circle, riding herd on the gang, until American ground troops arrived in response to his radio summons.

A French newspaper photographer in a jeep encountered a German staff car. A Nazi general asked the cameraman's identification. Fingering the pipe in his battle jacket pocket, the photographer replied: "Private second class in the allied army." The general surrendered.

Had to Walk 40 Miles

Two German prisoners complained to army interrogators that they had to walk 40 miles, continually being passed by American armor and convoys, before any one would accept them as prisoners.

Another unusual incident in the air was the experience of a pilot photographer in a fighter plane, unarmed and dependent entirely upon his speed for safety in penetrating Germany for observation. In the broken clouds he discovered he was close upon a German fighter. Both pilots were surprised. The Nazi was first to do something about it. He bailed out.

CHAPLAIN TAKEN BY YANKS BITTER AGAINST HITLER

Sees Germany's Fate as Retribution

WITH THE SEVENTH ARMY (AP)—Nothing is so rare in Hitler's army as an accredited army chaplain, but one at least has been captured. Hitler only grudgingly permitted the appointment of army chaplains if generals with Christian backgrounds insisted.

This captured chaplain had no alibi to offer for Germany. He sees just, tho extremely stern retribution in what is now happening to Germany.

This chaplain, a major and the only one in an entire division, preferred not to have his denominational connection indicated, since he said he could speak for both Protestant and Catholic clergy, both of whom find nazism the negation of Christianity.

Sermons Are Censored

"Our services as chaplains were frowned upon by the regime," he said. "Our freedom of action was severely limited. Tho many priests and ministers showed bravery under fire, a personal order by Hitler barred the clergy from decorations and citations. Every sermon was carefully scrutinized to discover possible disloyalty. Only if I, in charge of a whole division, happened to be available, could spiritual comfort be administered to a wounded or dying man.

"In each division were many ordained clergy of both faiths drafted as soldiers or officers. None of them was permitted to function as a minister except with written permission of the divisional commander. Naturally by the time such a request, which always had to concern a specific person in distress, reached the divisional level and was approved, the man often was dead.

Blames War on Gestapo

"The Nazis tried to make us sign a promise to preach sermons in accordance with the national viewpoint," meaning extolling nazism, but we declined. We limited ourselves to reading prayers, or, in the case of Catholics, to celebrating mass."

The chaplain said, "Every thinking man knows we have lost, yet the war goes on. Why? Because there's a Gestapo man with a gun in the rear. See what happened to the lieutenant at Aschaffenburg who counselled surrender because he couldn't approve of further useless carnage? His major had him hanged. Naturally such executions have a deterrent effect for awhile.

"God's punishment on us is terrible but deserved so far as the nation as such is concerned. Hitler once promised that in 10 years he'd make Germany a place nobody would again recognize. How terribly prophetic have these words proven."

R. A. F. RIPS U-BOAT BUILDING YARDS AND OIL PLANT IN REICH

LONDON, April 9 [Monday]—(AP)—Large fleets of R. A. F. heavy bombers battered submarine building yards at Hamburg and a synthetic oil plant near Leipzig last night in a swift followup to daylight attacks by more than 1,950 American planes on a variety of German targets. R. A. F. Mosquito bombers also struck at Berlin during the night, the air ministry disclosed.

The announcement said the assaults on Hamburg and the oil plant near Leipzig—situated at Lutzkendorf—were carried out "in great strength," indicating a force of 1,000 or more planes participated.

Approximately 1,200 American heavy bombers supported by 750 fighters took part in yesterday's forays over Germany which went unchallenged by the German air force.

GENERAL OUSTED BY NAZIS GIVES UP TO YANK M. P.

Predicts End of Fighting in Three Weeks

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MUENSTER, Germany, April 8—A lieutenant general, dismissed from the German army after 35 years' service because on an "unsympathetic attitude toward the Nazi party and the Fuehrer," today surrendered to an American military policeman.

He had difficulty in persuading the M. P. to take him into custody because he wore a business suit, overcoat, and a green fedora hat. Some doughboys only consent to accept uniformed combat troops encountered in the fighting nowadays, telling all others: "Go back home and cultivate the fields because you're going to need all the food you can raise."

Predicts an Early End

"Three weeks more will see the end of all hostilities," the general said, "the sooner the better." "Hitler and the Nazis are guilty of outrageous conduct in trying to prolong the war to lengthen their own lives. German generals should order surrender and save the sacrifice of more troops even if it costs them their lives from the Gestapo watchmen guarding them."

Tall, lean, and arrogant, he complained of sleeping in an army cot, demanding a bed. He explained he had charge of the signal corps of the German army in France during the occupation.

Lt. Gen. Simpson's American 9th army captured nearly 90,000 prisoners during two weeks of the Rhine offensive.

Along the Weser river front the only resistance continues to be road blocks, anti-aircraft batteries, and squads of 20 to 50 men fighting under officers' pistols and a couple of isolated tanks.

Only Scattered Opposition

Infantry riding on motor trucks behind the tanks were mushrooming right and left along highways, consolidating the 9th army's advance with the only opposition from scattered fanatics at a road intersection or hiding in barns and along canals and dikes, which were quickly smashed.

The road blocks now encountered are comparatively simple affairs as the enemy lacks time to establish them firmly. Usually double rows of tree trunks are set in the earth road shoulders, but always there is an opening left wide enough for vehicles to permit any German transport, tank, or artillery to pass.

When observation planes or foremost tanks spot a road block, tank destroyers drive into the lead and blast the obstacle from the road because the timber is not securely imbedded. The handful of defenders then surrenders and the armor grinds ahead to the next road block.

It is significant that the largest counter-attack launched since the struggle for Paderborn comprised only a company of 200 men and most such affairs consist of 15 to 20 men. Few tanks have been seen in action.

Dixon, vice president of the Container Corporation of America. The city communities division, Kennelly said, has reached 90 per cent of its $525,000 goal.

Crack Infantry Unit Scores Victory

ROME, April 8 (AP)—Crack Japanese-American infantry, spearheading the United States 5th army's drive on the western flank of the newly active Italian battlefront, have captured 3,000 foot Monte Belvedere and driven within two miles of Massa, allied headquarters announced today.

The Nazi grip on Massa and nearby Carrara, centers of the world famous Italian marble quarrying industry, was threatened by the 5th army's surge northward near the Ligurian coast. An apparent objective of the offensive is the naval base of La Spezia, 14½ miles northwest of Massa.

The Japanese-Americans, members of the 442d infantry regiment, gained four miles in 48 hours, wiped out one company of Germans and virtually destroyed two others and took more than 100 prisoners.

Aided by Italians.

Thru infiltration and with the aid of Italian patriots the Japanese-Americans discovered a secret mountain trail the Germans had been using to send spies to 5th army positions, Sid Feder, AP correspondent, reported from the front. Monte Belvedere's cloud covered peak was taken after a battle of several hours. Other elements of the 442d regiment stormed Cerreta ridge southeast of captured Monte Folgorito.

Big enemy coastal guns on Ponta Bianca—a promontory jutting into the Ligurian sea eight and a half miles west and slightly north of Massa—have opened up against the Americans. American air craft and the British destroyers Marne and Lookout were countering this fire.

Win High Ground.

The latest gains gave the 5th army control of dominating high ground to the south and east of Massa. The sharpest fighting continued in the zone northwest of Stretola where other American elements were driven back earlier. There the attacking force hammered its way onto high ground overlooking the village of Porta and reached points three miles south of Massa where sharp German resistance was encountered both frontally and on the flanks.

1,000 'DEAD END KIDS' TRAINED TO RUN NAZI TANKS

PADERBORN, Germany, April 8 (AP)—Adolf Hitler has collected his toughest Nazi indoctrinated youths of 14 to 18 and thrown them into battle against the United States 1st army with the now familiar "do or die" orders to halt the Americans.

Altho these German youths are not sufficiently trained to match the skill and stamina of Lt. Gen. Hodges' tankmen, they are fighting hard and desperately.

"These youngsters are little city toughs—dead end kids," said Lt. Col. Andrew Barr of Urbana, Ill. "They are better than the average run of German soldiers and still are enthusiastic over Nazi ideas."

Only a short time before the Americans hammered their way from the Rhine, with the 3d armored division spearheading Hodges' drive, these Nazi youths were brought into the great tank training center in Paderborn and trained to fight with the big Tigers.

Comrades Killed Rose

They are from the same tough S. S. [elite guard] outfit which killed Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose, who commanded the 3d armored division. After being taken prisoner the general was shot thru the head by a young enemy tankman.

These teen-age German boys had only 10 days to two weeks of training before they rushed out to meet the 1st army's advance.

Even after these fanatical youths are captured they must be watched. Sgt. Edward L. Ellsworth, a veteran medical aid man, was almost killed by a wounded young S. S. trooper he was attending.

As the American turned to adjust a bottle of plasma, the German grabbed a knife from a scabbard on the sergeant's belt. Capt. Edgar Crowe of Mechanicsville, Va., blocked the blow which would have plunged the knife into Ellsworth's back.

There were approximately 1,000 of these tough kids in the tank training school now in the hands of the 1st army. The school is providing the allies with valuable information of German tank training methods.

Flag Is Souvenir

The school consisted of 10 barracks and an administration building over which flew a huge flag now being sent to the commandant at Fort Knox, Ky., the American tank training center, as a souvenir.

The German tankmen lived in comfort at the center, even tho the furnishings were cheap and crude. The rooms now are littered with clothing, torn mattresses, broken pictures, letters, and all the odds and ends that soldiers carry.

"These people must have run out damned fast or they would never have left the things they did," said a British major who is studying equipment and the layout at the school. "The place is filled with Tiger parts, engine cylinder blocks, tank tracks and bogies, and electrical equipment."

The major said he was not able to find anything unusual in the enemy's tank training methods.

Two additional train loads of wounded sailors and marines from the South Pacific, mostly from Iwo Island, arrived at the Great Lakes Naval Training center yesterday, bringing the number of such wounded arriving at the center hospital over the week-end to 810. They were transferred from the trains to the hospital in ambulances and buses. The first train, which arrived Saturday, carried 200 marines and 105 sailors.

Report Germans Protest Vatican Plea to Quit

VATICAN CITY, April 8 (AP)—A German protest was reported made today against a recent Osservatore Romano editorial which could be interpreted as calling on Germans to lay down their arms to avoid further bloodshed. The Vatican secretariat would neither confirm nor deny the report, which said the protest was submitted by Baron Ernst von Weizsacker, German ambassador to the Holy See, and concerned a passage in the editorial asserting that reasons of honor could not justify prolonging an unequal struggle.

POLISH CARDINAL FREED BY YANKS; FLOWN TO PARIS

PARIS, April 8 (AP)—Liberated by American troops, Cardinal August Hlond, primate of Poland, arrived at a Paris air field today from Germany. He had been a prisoner of the Gestapo for 14 months.

The cardinal said he had been confined in a convent near Paderborn where the Germans "at least permitted mass to be said every day." The cardinal indicated 9th army troops overran the area Easter Sunday morning. The first American he met was Father Stephen Paul Kenny, Passionist chaplain from New Jersey.

"The Americans freed me. The first outsider I met was an American, and American Gen. Simpson, 9th army commander, sent me to Paris in his own plane," the cardinal said. Cardinal Hlond was forced to flee Poland in 1939. He was living in Lourdes, France, when the Gestapo arrested him.

INTERNEES' KIN SAY A PRAYER: THEY'RE HOME

Freed Jap Captives Wire of Safe Arrival

Home from Prisons

San Francisco, Cal., April 8 (AP)—More than 800 civilians came back to the United States today from the Japanese prison camps of Santo Tomas, Los Banos, Bacolod, Holmes, and Davao and from wilderness hideouts in the Philippine jungles. They arrived aboard a coast guard transport.

"Arrived safely and shall phone you at earliest opportunity" was the telegraph message received yesterday by excited families of more than a score of Americans from Chicago and suburbs who docked in San Francisco, Cal., after more than three years of hardship as prisoners of the Japanese in the Philippines.

One of the first telegrams was sent to Mrs. Herbert R. Hedman, 115 Fuller lane, Winnetka, by her daughter, Mrs. Catherine H. Heyda, 27, wife of Charles W. Heyda Jr., a mining engineer, who also was a prisoner. Mrs. Heyda, interned in Santo Tomas camp, taught a class of children during her imprisonment.

Her Prayers Answered

Mrs. Catherine Grogan, 1020 Garfield blvd., said yesterday that her prayers for the welfare of her sister, brother-in-law, and their three children have been answered. Cecelia McGrave Ladic, 27; her husband, Sanford Ladic, 42, mining company superintendent, and the couple's children, Maryann, 10, Marie Georges, 9, and Cecelia R., 8, were bombed out of their home in Baguio and interned in that town for three years before being removed by the Japs by truck to Billibid prison, from which they were liberated by American forces.

Mrs. Grogan received a letter from her sister a month ago, in which the ex-prisoner related the hardship of an internee's life. Women prisoners were forced, despite serious illness, to scrub steps in the hot Philippine sun. Mrs. Ladic's only food was corn, which had been bored by weevils, and which she ground into meal. She had to sacrifice her own portions of food in order to feed her children, she wrote. When Baguio natives tried to help by supplying food from outside the building in which the Ladics were held, the Japs killed the Filipinos, she related.

Word on Priests Awaited

Another happy family looking forward to a reunion soon is that of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Armstrong, 6238 Greenwood av. Mrs. Armstrong's brother, William J. Hoffman, his wife, and William Jr., 19, and Margaret, 21, were among repatriated Americans who saw the United States yesterday for the first time in years. Hoffman's father, Charles Hoffman, also lives at the Greenwood av. address.

Word was being awaited eagerly yesterday by priests of the missionary order of the Society of the Divine Word, at Techny. Six of their number are among the repatriated Chicago area residents: The Rev. Charles Gries, the Rev. Lawrence Leiaring, the Rev. Alphonse G. Lesage, the Rev. Joseph J. Smith, the Rev. Eugene L. Stoll, and the Rev. John B. Vogelsang.

Ex-Soldier Repatriated

Another Chicagoan whose anxiety is over is E. J. Moore, 2211 W. 110th pl., whose niece, Mrs. Dora Perkins Anderson, 29, and her daughter Sheila Mildren, 2, arrived in San Francisco yesterday.

One ex-soldier in the group of repatriates is Steve Rurka, formerly an army sergeant in the army air forces, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rurka, live at 2622 Augusta blvd. He went to the Philippines in November, 1940, with the army and later became a civilian mechanic at Nichols field. He was interned in Los Banos camp.

Mrs. Lyda Berkenkotter, 57, a resident of the Philippines for eight years, said "The food wasn't so good, but I didn't lose much."

Her son, Edward, superintendent of the Chromium corporation, lives at 7870 Oakleaf av., Elmwood Park. He said last night that his mother and father, John E. Berkenkotter, went to the Philippines in 1936, and that his father was a stockbroker in Manila. He died in May, 1942, while in custody of the Japs, but of natural causes. Mrs. Berkenkotter plans to come to Chicago immediately to join her son.

CHINESE BANDS STEAL SUPPLIES, HAMPER YANKS

KUNMING, China, April 8 (AP)—The theft of American supplies by Chinese bands has hampered the United States 14th air force and cost American lives, Maj. Gen. Chennault said yesterday in apppealing to the people of China to buy no equipment stolen from his men. Chennault drew this picture:

Weapons, vehicles, ammunition and gasoline are being stolen in many places. Bombs intended for use against the enemy have been converted into duds by the theft of parts. Flyers shot down in the jungle probably perished because their emergency jungle kits had been stolen. These kits contain rations, knives, and matches.

Even the tires and wheels of P-51 fighter planes have been stolen. In other instances jeeps were stolen or dismantled and the parts smuggled to areas where they were reassembled and sold. Officers keep jeeps under military guard, because they must reimburse the army out of their pay if the vehicles are stolen.

SONS OF INDIANA HONOR COOPER, ADM. INGRAM

New York, April 8 (AP)—The Sons of Indiana announced today its annual distinguished service awards would be presented to Adm. Ingram, commander of the Atlantic fleet, and Kent Cooper, executive director and general manager of the Associated Press.

The awards, given to "members who have rendered the most outstanding and distinguished service during the previous year," will be made here April 13.

Cooper, a native of Columbus, Ind., who began his newspaper career in Indianapolis, was selected for his "fight for freedom of the press, not only in this country, but thruout the world during 1944."

Ingram, 59, born in Jeffersonville, Ind., was described as "the youngest four star admiral in the navy." He was named Atlantic fleet commander in chief Nov. 15, 1944.

CHINESE CIRCLE JAP FORCE AND KILL HALF OF IT

CHUNGKING, China, April 8 (AP)—Chinese troops have wiped out more than half of an enemy column which was surrounded in southwest Honan after reaching a point 30 miles from the Shensi border, the high command announced tonight. The remaining Japanese retreated eastward pursued by Chinese forces who gained more than three miles.

The Chinese counter-attacked Japanese threatening Shensi from northwestern Honan. After six hours of fighting they killed more than 400 of the invaders. The bulletin said pursuing Chinese reached the vicinity of the Japanese-held town of Chang Suichen on the Lo river, 70 miles from the Shensi border.

Reinforced Japanese forces counter-attacked Chinese positions west of Teng Hsien on the highway running northeast from Laohokow. More than 300 Japanese were killed in the ensuing clash.

POLICE BULLET KILLS MAN

James Chapman, 24, of 2217 N. Artesian av., Negro, died in Bridewell hospital yesterday of a bullet wound inflicted March 28 by Policeman John McDonagh of the Warren av. station whom Chapman, police said, had threatened with a revolver.

TOKYO ORDERED MANILA RAZED, ROMULO SAYS

New York, April 8 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo said today he would place before congress on April 17 documentary proof that orders to destroy Manila and kill its inhabitants were sent direct from Tokyo to the Japanese army.

Romulo, United States resident commissioner of the Philippines, told a communion breakfast of the Catholic institute of the press:

"On that day I will have the opportunity to indict the Japanese thru the means of affidavits and photographs which will establish the fact that orders to destroy Manila and kill its inhabitants came from Tokyo. And most of this proof was taken from dead Japanese officers."

After Romulo's talk a plaque was awarded to Joe Rosenthal, Associated Press photographer who took the picture of United States marines raising the American flag on Mount Suribachi on Iwo Jima.

Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, professor of philosophy at the Catholic university, Washington, D. C., told the breakfast the coming San Francisco conference represented the "last chance civilization will have to assure a permanent peace."

INFANTRY PLODS ON UNDER HEAVY OKINAWA FIRE

Four Miles from Capital; Gains on Air Field

GUAM, April 9 [Monday]—(AP)—Japanese on Okinawa, only 325 miles south of their homeland, now are offering American doughboys the stiffest kind of resistance, including round-the-clock artillery fire, but 24th army corps infantry men advanced both along the west coast toward the capital city of Naha and inland toward important Yonabaru airdrome yesterday.

Marine gains ranged from 3,000 to 4,000 yards westward along the Motobu peninsula.

Japs Resist Stubbornly

Fighter pilots of the 2d marine aircraft wing already have begun operating from Katena and Yontan fields, Nimitz added. Maj. Gen. F. P. Mulcahy, in tactical command of marine aerial operations, has established headquarters ashore.

Nimitz's bulletin, covering action from Saturday noon thru Sunday night, said Japanese resisted stubbornly every move by the 24th corps doughboys under Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge.

The enemy was entrenched in well emplaced pillboxes and blockhouses, constructed to take full advantage of the broken terrain.

Despite heavy artillery blasting day and night and murderous machine gun and rifle fire at close range, the soldiers captured two villages and advanced 200 yards inland toward Yonabaru air field on the east coast on Nakagusuku bay, and 400 yards down the west coast toward Naha, population 66,000.

4 Miles from Capital.

These advances presumably put the infantry within four miles of Naha and about a mile from Yonabaru town and air field.

The battle for southern Okinawa developed into a full scale engagement. American carrier planes, ships' heavy guns and land based heavy artillery supported the foot soldiers.

The Japanese, too threw aircraft into the fight but their small aerial attacks probably did little damage. Four enemy pilots appeared over Okinawa Saturday, and all were shot down. Nine more enemy planes were destroyed yesterday.

Motobu peninsula, the marine sector, is about 10 miles long with about 50 square miles of territory. The terrain is rugged.

Approximately 30,000 civilians have been taken into protective custody of the American government.

Carrier aircraft, continuing their protective support, attacked shipping and shore installations on islands of the Amami group, at Okinawa's northwest tip, firing a small cargo ship and destroying a lugger.

"Japs on Offensive"

San Francisco, Cal., April 8 (AP)—Tokyo radio today declared the battles around Okinawa had become a Japanese "offensive" and made the unconfirmed claim that 245 "enemy" ships have been sunk or damaged in the area since March 23.

Japanese headquarters broadcasts admitted the loss of one battleship, one cruiser, and three destroyers in the Ryukyus since the night of April 5, and listed American losses in that period as 31 warships and transports.

Adm. Nimitz announced that American naval aircraft sank six Japanese warships, including the 45,000 ton battleship Yamato, two cruisers, and three destroyers, Saturday after an enemy aerial attack on the United States invasion fleet off Okinawa the day before. The two day action in the Ryukyus cost the Japs 417 planes.

Warn Against Optimism

American losses in Friday's aerial attack were three destroyers sunk and several damaged, Nimitz said.

Domei, the Japanese news agency, compiled the figure of 245 ships sunk or damaged, and boasted that "crippling blows dealt the enemy fleet are unprecedented in the annals of naval warfare."

But Domei warned that "We must restrain ourselves from becoming too optimistic" because "the enemy armada continues to maneuver and fight. The question remains whether we will be able to grasp this new opportunity to annihilate the enemy."

OKINAWA WOMAN SURPRISES YANK, ASKS FOR CANDY

YONTAN AIR FIELD, Okinawa, April 8 (AP)—An American marine tried to give candy mints to a skinny boy trudging along a roadside.

The lad hesitated and a marine made an urging motion while demonstrating that the mints were to be eaten. An elderly woman native, with the customary load of household goods on her head, watched, then queried in a clear tongue, "What is it?"

"Candy," replied the marine. Whereupon the woman asked, "May I have some?" The leatherneck handed over a package, received a polite thank you, and gawked as the woman walked away.

JAPS LOSE TON OF SHIPPING TO 2 LBS. OF BOMBS

CHUNGKING, China, April 8 (AP)—The Japanese lost a ton of shipping sunk for every 2.3 pounds of American bombs dropped and every 2.2 gallons of American gasoline expended by certain units of the 14th air force in special operations in an eight months' period, Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault announced today. The figures covered a period from May 24, 1944, to Feb. 28.

Chennault, commander of the 14th air force, announced that 47 enemy aircraft were destroyed by the 14 last month, 18 probably were destroyed, and 72 damaged, while his forces destroyed 11 Japanese planes in air combat for every American plane shot down.

The month's bag brought the number of enemy planes destroyed since July 4 to 2,243, and the number of "probables" to 877.

20 Canadian Officers on Okinawa as Observers

ON OKINAWA, April 8 [Reuters]—Twenty Canadian army officers are on Okinawa in the capacity of observers in American army units now engaged in clearing the Japanese from the island. Ten other Canadian officers are also serving in Gen. MacArthur's theater as observers. The Canadias are with the 3d amphibious corps and the 24th corps.

Count 2,297 Jap Dead on Mindanao

MANILA, April 9 [Monday]—(AP) Army and navy bombers blockading the China sea sank 221,492 tons of Japanese shipping, probably sank an additional 44,645 tons and damaged 108,630 tons during March alone, Gen. MacArthur reported today.

He gave these totals for the first three months of 1945: Sunk, 345,179 tons; probably sunk, 116,965 tons; damaged, 274,295 tons—a total of 736,439 tons.

This reflected the tightness of the blockade which is preventing the Japanese from using their rich conquered East Indies empire.

In the latest strike, Saturday, heavy bombers with a fighter escort wrecked three escort vessels, seven freighters and six barges in a sweep of the Asiatic coast line from Shanghai to Saigon.

Enemy shipping was severely pounded at Keelung, on the northeast coast of Formosa, and at Mako harbor in the Pescadores Islands to the west.

6,495 More Japs Slain

MacArthur, announcing continued gains on the many Philippine ground fronts, reported that 6,495 additional Japanese dead had been counted and 179 prisoners taken in the last week.

This brought the total enemy dead for the entire Philippines campaign to approximately 316,000, against American casualties—dead, wounded, and missing—of around 30,000.

On Luzon Island 14th army corps infantry men captured Tayabas town and Lucban to gain control of the main road network in Tayabas province, south of Manila. This effectively cut all land escape routes for the enemy in the Bicol peninsula, Luzon's long southeastern "tail" on which the invaded port of Legaspi is located.

Santa Maria and other towns in the Santa Maria valley of central Luzon were liberated by the 11th corps, while the 158th regimental combat team met only small arms fire as it advanced in Albany province, at the southern end of Luzon.

82d Day of Battle

WITH 25TH DIVISION NEAR BALETE PASS, April 8 (AP)—Tired American doughboys passed their 82d day on the Balete battle line today as this decisive fight for northeast Luzon raged in the Caraballo mountains.

Daily Yank gains are measured by yards across the rugged mile high battleground which Japanese have cleverly chosen and fortified. After one month's battling up the narrow artillery rocked valley, the 25th division's forward elements are now approximately three miles south of Balete pass—the only entrance from the south to the Cagayan valley, Japan's Batsan. The pass is about 25 miles southeast of Baguio.

JAPS TO WEAKEN ON OWN ISLANDS, GUERRILLA SAYS

Predicts War Will End This Year

The fierce cave-to-cave tactics typical of the fighting on Iwo Island, Okinawa, and in the Philippines will be abandoned by the Japanese when the invasion reaches their home islands, Carlos Garcia, guerrilla leader and delegate to the United States house of representatives from Bohol, predicted yesterday.

Carlos Garcia

Garcia, accompanied by Pedro Lopez of Cebu, P. I., arrived to attend the Liberation of the Philippines victory ball, sponsored by the Filipino Guerrillas of Bataan association, last night in the Blackstone hotel.

Deterring Factor Told

"The Japanese won't fight as hard on their home islands," said Garcia," because the aspect of the plight of their own people and total destruction of their homeland will be a deterring factor." He pointed out that these were factors not entering the picture in the island fighting up to now.

He asserted that underground negotiations for peace are now being pursued by the Japanese. "I believe," he said, "that these negotiations will fall thru and that the Japs will continue to fight." But he predicted the war with Japan will end by the end of 1945.

The Filipinos, he said, are looking forward to July 4, 1946, when, under the law, their country is supposed to gain its independence.

Planning for Independence

The Philippine Islands, he added, are going ahead with plans for independence confidant that this will be realized. "We will ask the United States," he said, "to rehabilitate our industries and we will collaborate with her in a worldwide air expansion program."

Garcia, who was a field commander with what was known as the 2d unit, comprising an army of 4,400 guerrilla forces, was sought constantly by the Japs during occupation of the islands. With a price on his head, he spurned the Japanese ultimatum that he surrender by June 30, 1942. After that date the Japs decreed him to be an outlaw with orders that he be shot on sight.

Garcia, who plans to attend the peace conference in San Francisco, Cal., said he will go to Washington, D. C., April 17.

ONCE CRITICAL SYDNEY PAPER HAILS M'ARTHUR

SYDNEY, Australia, April 8 (AP)—The Morning Herald, once critical of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, said editorially today that the new supreme army commander in the Pacific has emerged from campaigns of the last three years as one of the brilliant strategists of the war.

"When forces at his disposal were perilously meager he handled them skilfully and aggressively in defense of Australia," the newspaper said. "As they expanded he passed to the offensive with consummate ability and unfailing success. His bypassing strategy enabled him to win to his distant goal in the Philippines with remarkable economy of casualties, utterly confound the Japanese, and confirm his claim to command of the main army assault against Japan.

"Sharp controversy has raged around the name of MacArthur in America and elsewhere. Even those including the Morning Herald who criticized his flamboyant methods will readily admit the unique quality of his generalship."

TELL HOW U. S. CARRIER PLANES SANK YAMATO

Witnesses Describe Air and Naval Victory

ABOARD ADM. TURNER'S FLAGSHIP OFF OKINAWA, April 8 (AP)—Casualties were heavy in only one of the three United States destroyers sunk in the American defeat of the Japanese Yamato battleship task force, it was stated officially tonight.

Officers also disclosed that one of the American destroyers, altho herself damaged, rescued the crew of another destroyer which was afire—then put out the flames and returned the rescued crew to its own ship, which was restored to operation and sailed for port.

United States planes and ships on Saturday thoroly searched all areas where the three American destroyers were lost to Friday's Japanese air attack without finding additional survivors.

Fleet Adm. Nimitz announced that three destroyers were sunk and that one major fleet unit, plus several destroyers and smaller craft, were damaged in Friday's air attack, which preceded the American naval victory of Saturday. In the latter engagement, American carrier pilots sank the new super-battleship Yamato, two light cruisers and three destroyers and damaged three other destroyers.

Smash Jap Task Force

Aircraft from Vice Adm. Mitscher's carriers smashed the Japanese force with torpedoes and bombs as the enemy dared to venture from inland sea protection. The action, in the East China sea 50 miles southwest of the mainland island of Kyushu, came the day after Mitscher's planes dealt new crippling blows to the Japanese air force—shooting down more than 200 planes. They were knocked down as they attempted to attack Okinawa. It was the biggest air battle of recent months.

At least eight torpedoes tore into the sides of the Yamato. The battleship lost way slowly. Fires flamed from her stern. Finally she was ripped by internal explosions as she settled into the sea.

Pilots told of the attack on the Japanese fleet today.

"It was so intense we had to wait our turn to make runs," they said.

Japs Begin to Warm Up

A general picture of the attack was painted by Lt. [j. g.] Alan Trumbull, Pasadena, Cal., who said:

"There were so many planes making runs we couldn't tell whose torpedoes were hitting."

Intercepted in heavy weather which forced planes to operate at 3,000 to 5,000 foot ceilings, the Japanese offered little resistance in initial phases of the action. Carrier planes circled without drawing fire before beginning the assault.

But the picture was different as the runs began. Anti-aircraft guns opened up with heavy flak. Even the main 16 inch batteries of the battleship were turned on the American planes. On the whole, however, anti-aircraft was inaccurate and losses of our planes were light. [Nimitz said only seven United States planes were lost.]

Describes Jap Attack

Speaking about the previous day's action in which the Japanese air force had made its most spirited land based attack of the war on the American fleet, Adm. Richmond K. Turner said:

"If this is the best the Japs can do we had better go right on to Japan. Apparently we've got more ships than they have planes."

"This was the strongest land based air attack the Japanese have made on our ships—much heavier than during the Philippines campaign—but considering our slight losses in planes and ships and the destruction of their naval units and planes—it was a terrific beating for them," said a member of Adm. Turner's staff.

Planes Peril Flagship

Seven enemy sea planes went down within sight of Turner's flagship during the great air battle, from 3 p.m. to darkness Friday night. One of them crashed only 200 yards off the stern and in the center of a cluster of small craft without damaging anything.

The air battle was the first of any kind on a large scale in the Okinawa area, altho the invasion force leaders expected such action on invasion day and were pleasantly surprised at the light aerial opposition.

From the flying bridge of this ship it was a thrilling show. Japanese planes zoomed out of the overcast with bombs and torpedoes into such terrific cones of anti-aircraft fire that none had a chance of completing its run across this close-packed amphibious fleet.

Most dramatic was a dive bomber, which in a long, straight glide appeared to be coming right at Turner's ship. The ship's guns were spouting a terrific stream of bullets straight into the oncoming aircraft.

Passes Over Bow

The pilot couldn't live long in that fire and he obviously was helpless as the plane swerved, plunging toward a near-by ship.

"God! Don't let it hit that ship, don't let it," one seaman shouted.

The plane barely passed over the bow of the ship, caught a wing in the water and plunged into the sea, just missing an LCI [landing craft infantry] and several small craft. A huge sheet of flame marked its destruction.

Small craft raced to the point where the plane went down, 200 yards from this ship, but failed to find any trace of wreckage.

DAY by DAY on the FARM
by GAIL COMPTON

April 8, 1945.

IS it profitable for a midwestern farmer to keep a breeding herd of beef cattle?

This is a question often asked of the men at the Tribune farms, which support one Shorthorn and two Angus herds. The answer cannot be given as a yes or no for much depends upon the type of farm involved.

The most valuable service rendered by a breeding herd is its consumption of roughage and employment of idle time. The beef cows require little care, except during calving, and consume silage, hay, straw, and corn fodder freely, giving the farmer a good return for it.

Year's Feeding, $60

It costs the Wheaton farm approximately $60 to keep a beef cow thruout the year. This includes pasture charges for the summer months, hay and silage during the winter months, and about 10 hours of man labor during the year. The $60, of course, includes the calf which stands at the cow's side at weaning time and weighs around 400 pounds. Sale of the calf yields a profit to the farmer for the year's feeding of the cow.

Some beef farms in the midwest have found they can produce a feeder calf for more than $5 a head under the price the same calf could be bought for on the open market. Other herds have returned to their owners from $8 to $70 per head for roughage consumed.

Thus the profit from a breeding herd may vary widely. Much depends on the quality of the herd, management, and the amount of available pasture. If a farmer, short of pasture, is forced to feed his cows expensive hay and grain to keep them from starving, he stands to lose money. The farmer who can run his animals on good grass all summer with little or no additional feeding will find the herd in the black on the farm books.

Clean Pasture for Sheep

The value of good pasture also was shown in another manner the other day. The wool from the shorn sheep did not bring top prices because it was dirty and contained burrs. Clean pasture thru the summer with clean shedding conditions in the winter will go far toward keeping the fleeces in top condition. If the sheep graze in fields where thistles, burrs and large weeds abound, their fleeces will pick up large amounts of foreign material which lower the value of the wool.

The first reading of the thermometer which was placed inside a black oak tree showed 40 degrees in the heartwood while the outside air registered 44 degrees.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

HUNDREDS or home gardeners who have permanent garden plots on their own property are beginning to cultivate asparagus. One reason for the new interest in this vegetable is because of its excellence as a product for home freezing units. Asparagus freshly cut from a home plot is greatly superior to commercially grown stalks shipped to market from distant points.

One of the regular jobs in the Wheaton farm gardens at this time of the year is that of cultivating and fertilizing the asparagus plot. A standard wheel hoe may be used, but care should be taken against breaking the new asparagus tips which now are pushing thru the ground. After the topsoil is loosened thoroly, the ground should be fertilized heavily. If commercial fertilizer is applied, a double application is recommended. The farm gardener uses eight pounds of commercial fertilizer to each 100 square feet. Poultry manure also is excellent fertilizer for asparagus. Information on the establishment of new asparagus beds will be printed tomorrow in this space.

B-29s BOMB AIR FIELDS AT SOUTH POINT OF JAPAN

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP)—Apparently seeking to neutralize Japanese aerial operations southward toward Okinawa, Superfort resses bombed important airfields at Kanoya and Kanoya east on the southernmost tip of Japan yesterday. The attack was made thru clouds, the war department said today in a bulletin, and results were not observed.

Little anti-aircraft fire and no fighter opposition was encountered by the raiding planes. One plane was reported missing, however. The B-29s flew from bases of the 21st bomber command in the Marianas island.

The target area probably was the base for the Japanese aerial force which battled last week with American naval forces north of the invaded Ryukyu Islands.

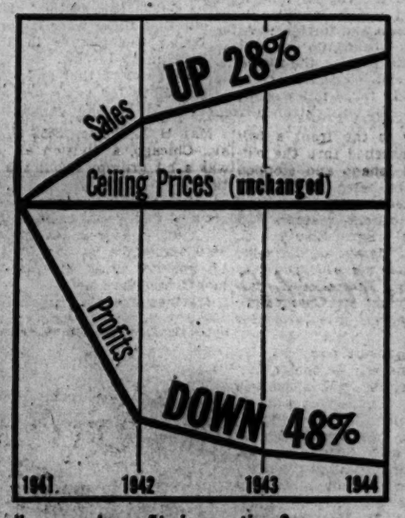
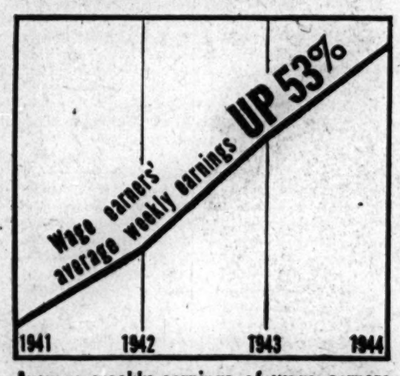
World's record for steel making. For the fourth year in a row, U. S. Steel has broken the world's record for steel making. Its steel production in 1944 was boosted to 30,800,000 tons. This was the largest tonnage in any year of U. S. Steel's history.

14,400 war veterans hired. Educational and training programs for returned veterans are under way. Training and upgrading of men are part of Steel's policy. Men are promoted to better jobs as fast as they can learn and demonstrate their ability.



How much profit in wartime? 1941-1944 prices of major steel products were substantially those imposed by Government price ceilings established in 1941. Sales increased $460 million, but profits dropped $55 million since 1941. The 1944 return on investment was 3.8%.



Average weekly earnings of wage earners in 1944 were $54.37—an increase of 53% over 1941. There was no increase during this period in the rate of dividends paid stockholders for supplying an average of $5,500 of tools or facilities per worker.

It is significant that U. S. Steel through the combined efforts of workers and management is producing the largest volume in its history but operating at the lowest profit of any large production year.

TRIBUNE WRITER SEES STORMING OF OKINAWA HILL

Chicagolanders in Thick of Island War

BY HAROLD SMITH
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

WITH THE 7TH INFANTRY DIVISION ON OKINAWA ISLAND, April 8—Tank supported army infantrymen, compressing Okinawa's defenders toward the southern island tip, were held to a few hundred yards yesterday as more and more Japanese outpost troops were encountered in their labyrinthine hilltop citadels. However, our doughboys continued to outsmart them at every turn, holding their own casualties far below those of the foe.

A group of us watched the taking of Red Hill by units of the 184th infantry regiment, which with the 32d regiment on its right is carrying the left flank of the southward attack. Red Hill is a barren, ochre colored clay knoll which lay directly in the path of the 184th's sectors.

To attack it, the foot troops and their protecting tanks had to cross a thickly mined valley and battle up steeply rising slopes in the shadow of formidable pillboxes and gun emplacements.

Above Narrow Valley

Our observation point was atop the easternmost ridge, overlooking the sea. To our rear, the ground was littered with the bodies of Nips.

Ahead and below stretched a narrow valley bisected by a dirt road that wound upward to the south, crossing the high ridge thru a deep cut, in and on both sides of which our own shells were falling at intervals.

One platoon could be seen toiling up the near slope of Red Hill, which our big guns and airplanes had just finished plastering unmercifully. The defenders had all been killed or driven off. Our boys overran the hill, set up machine guns, and began pouring tracer fire into a thick copse from which had come the intermittent chop of an enemy automatic weapon.

Thatched Houses Fired

Our heavy batteries sent their shells whizzing overhead to burst along the ridge top, setting fire to the thatched houses. In the valley beyond, shells from battleships offshore tossed up tall smoketrees in front of the advancing units.

Thru glasses, we saw an occasional Jap in moving silhouette against the sky. Beside the valley road below, one of our Sherman tanks sprawled at the edge of the crater made by the land mine it had hit. Only one of the crew had been injured, the only casualty of the day's tank action, in which the armored boys had killed at least 50 Nips.

As we withdrew, our front line was digging in for the night.

Chicagolanders Present

On the way to the front a few days ago we marched thru the battered town of Ishado and stopped in native tombs hewn in the hillsides, where leaders in the battalion's communications platoon had taken shelter. Sgt. Charles E. Platte, 4423 N. Mozart st., Chicago, was tuning a banjo-like Jap stringed instrument. Sgt. Lawrence E. Cassidy, 105 S. Wright st., Champaign, Ill., communications chief, was also present.

Other Chicagolanders stood up to be counted. One was Radioman Pfc. Richard Chase, 22, 9731 Lawndale av., Chicago. Another was Corp. Wallace Kussman, 23, 6444 N. 58th st., Milwaukee, Wis., battalion code clerk. Others were Corp. Louis Satorie, 29, of Spring Valley, Ill., lineman, who said the rough country here makes his work difficult; Corp. Frank Snekser, 25, 8537 Mackinaw av., Chicago, radio operator, and Sgt. Joseph A. Pawletich, 27, 1216 Dearborn st., Joliet.

Midwesterners Man Tank

Moving farther forward, I came upon the Sherman tank Asiatic Clipper. The driver is Corp. Walter D. King, 27, 3923 Pine Grove av., Chicago, who asked that I appeal for a new radioman and loader. Pfc. William J. Fleming, 23, 3825 Diversey av., Chicago, told me that while usually two of the five man crew watched below the tank with a light machine gun, last night all slept inside because of the enemy shelling. The third middle westerner is the gunner, Corp. William H. Ennis, whose wife, Betty, lives in Minneapolis, Minn. Two easterners complete the crew.

I also met Sgt. John Knorr, 26, of Milwaukee, a gun squad leader, who said his gun had killed he didn't know how many Japs at Ormoc. Pvt. Eugene B. Laskowski, 22, of 2516 McVicker av., Chicago, seemed less interested in the war than in my account of the cold winter in Chicago.

Pvt. John Moravich, 32, of Greenland, Mich., said the new blankets just issued helped them sleep well—that is, when they slept.

Pvt. Arthur D. Mutter, 25, of 6356 Bishop st., Chicago, from another gun crew, dropped by for a chat. He is the son of Patrolman Arthur Mutter, killed in a gun battle in Mathew Hogan's tavern at 8043 S. Ashland av. in 1933.

JAPS' STUPIDITY AND LAZINESS IN PHILIPPINES TOLD

BY WALTER SIMMONS
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

U. S. 6TH ARMY HDQ., Luzon, P. I., April 8—It is now possible to describe how the Japs prepared for the defense of Luzon during more than three years of occupation. It is a tale of incredible inaction, sloth, and stupidity, reflecting seriously on the intelligence of the Jap high command.

Until a year ago the Japanese garrison on Luzon—never below 100,000 men—did almost nothing but sit on the seat of its collective trousers. The Jap soldiery grew fat and complacent. Discipline sagged. Part of the time the troops wore civilian clothing, spending little time in military training and maneuvers.

After talking to hundreds of civilians and guerrilla leaders from one end of Luzon to another, one gets a fairly complete picture of what happened after 250,000 Japs overran Gen. MacArthur's small force of regulars and partially trained Filipinos.

Take Island Easily

Upon the fall of Corregidor in May, 1942, Japanese divisions moved southward to easy occupation of the remaining islands, on which pathfinder units already had landed. They took over Leyte, Panay, Cebu, Mindanao, and other islands.

This job done, they ranged farther south. Two years later, on New Britain, American forces annihilated the 2d battalion of the 141st infantry, which alone had marched from San Fabian to Manila in December, 1941, conquering the entire central plains area after the American withdrawal.

Other units stayed on Luzon and went to seed. Occasionally small expeditions were sent into the hills in pursuit of guerrillas, whose small scale raids were harassing but never dangerous. Some work was done on air field construction, but no Jap constructed strip was ever much better than the poorest American emergency field.

Only occasionally were small scale training maneuvers held. These were always in the central plains area, and seemed primarily for the purpose of testing equipment.

One Filipino civilian told of watching captured American light tanks being tested alongside Jap light and medium tanks on the plains near Malolos, north of Manila.

The Japs observed smugly that their tanks, with wider treads, crossed flooded rice paddies where the American tanks bogged down. This condition, incidentally, still obtains. But after proving that point, the Japs ended the demonstration and went home to a good meal.

Much use was made of captured American equipment.

Enjoy Garrison Life

Arsenals were stocked with captured American ammunition. The Jap seemed satisfied to use as little of his own ordnance as possible.

Jap daydreams were blasted a year ago, when Gen. MacArthur's forces ripped into the Admiralties and started hopping up the New Guinea coast at a rate of 200 miles a month.

The panicky Jap began pouring troops into Luzon from Manchuria and China. He constructed strong defensive positions at San Fernando on the Lingayen gulf, in the hills west of Clark field and Fort Stotsenburg, along the approaches to Baguio, in the hills east and northeast of Manila, and near Legaspi to the south.

Make Stand on Leyte

Up to last December he poured thousands of troops into Luzon. Despite this frantic reënforcement his force could not be built up further because of the necessity of reënforcing Leyte, which was invaded Oct. 20.

In electing to fight the main Philippine battle on Leyte the Jap high command weakened Luzon disastrously. Only a few of the possible landing sites were well defended when D-day arrived.

MacArthur cannily avoided these death traps by landing on the flank of defense positions in Lingayen gulf. He thus achieved tactical surprise and capitalized on the enemy's delayed preparations for defense.

OKINAWA NOT AS BAD AS BATAAN, OFFICERS LEARN

2 Survivors Compare the Battles

BY THOMAS MORROW
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

WITH THE MARINES ON OKINAWA ISLAND, April 8—Two of the happiest marines on Okinawa are Colonels Jack Hawkins and Austin C. Shofner. They said they had never seen a better war. Both were prisoners on Bataan, escaped during the "Death March," and later went to fight with the guerrillas in the Philippines.

"It's the first time I have ever seen American troops on the offensive," said Hawkins. "I used to look up on Bataan and see planes, all unfriendly. Here it makes me happy every time I see planes come over. I know they are ours.

"I don't think the American people realize what a fine job they are doing in supplying the troops. Here we find rations, water, almost everything we want as soon as D-day rolls around. The war Shofner and I fought before was fought on empty stomachs, and with no hope of reënforcement or supply."

Both held they had never seen anything like the present landing, where the marines met no resistance.

Good Golf Country

"You could install some fine golf courses around here," said Shofner. "Rolling country like this would make a mighty tough 18 holes. Easters are lucky for me, and I knew, when Easter was D-day, that we couldn't go wrong here."

Hawkins said the atmosphere of spring, with vegetables sprouting, made him a little homesick.

Maj. H. L. Walter, 3852 N. Cicero av., Chicago, a division air officer, was a bit grumpy about the operation.

"Fine picnics you guys have," he growled to a group at headquarters. "I have to go over every 30 minutes and wake my boys. I think I'll get my flying time in for the month and then sleep."

Marines are standing outside a sugar refinery listening to Tokyo Rose on the Jap radio. She tells them that ships, which they can see by looking out to sea, have been sunk. She verbally accounts for 20 ships, but they are still sitting calmly at anchor off the island.

Listen to Tokyo Rose

Civilians in protective custody were moved today to another village. They were happy to be in the hands of the Americans after they had been told, they said thru an interpreter, that they would be tortured, beheaded, and otherwise mistreated if they encountered Americans.

Today they sat around, chirped cheerfully to each other, and shelled soybeans. One girl of 16, a baby slung papoose fashion on her back, sang what the interpreter said was a love song.

A 59 year old man, attired in army shirt, cotton kimono, and sandals, spoke English. He had once worked in Hawaii. In tortured syllables he said he believed his son, 29, is in the American army.

These civilians are amazing people. Apparently the Japs, when they moved to the north, south, or off the island, took the able bodied workers with them. Only the aged and the very young are left.

Native women gathered from caves were amazing looking gnomes. Not more than four feet tall, a number of them came out of a cave today. They were bent double, a result of working in the fields plus venereal disease, doctors said.

H. Cullen Tate, lieutenant in charge of photography in our regiment, held that the peaceful landing was due to a St. Christopher's medal he received from Chicago. He said Mrs. Loretta Leonard, 6619 Newgard av., was responsible.

SENATE BATTLE EXPECTED OVER VOTES IN LEAGUE

British-Red Dominance Likely to Stir Storm

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 8—In all the sound and fury over Russia's demand for three votes in the general assembly of the world security organization advanced at Dumbarton Oaks, the six votes secured by Britain have passed almost unchallenged, altho senators expect a pitched battle on this issue when the pact reaches the senate.

The British are insisting upon one vote each for the United Kingdom, India, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa. This demand, supported by President Roosevelt in the Presidential campaign of 1920 when the league of nations was a national issue and approved by him now in the Dumbarton Oaks program, would give the empire six votes to one for the United States in establishing principles of disarmament under which the United States might be called upon to scrap the world's mightiest navy.

Defeated 25 Years Ago

Twenty-five years ago, when Woodrow Wilson's league of nations was being debated in the senate, the same British request for six votes was mauled by Republicans and Democrats. It was among the 14 reservations adopted by the senate and rejected by Wilson, with the result that the World War I security plan was defeated.

The 14th reservation, offered by Sen. Lenroot [R., Wis.], called for equal voting in the council and assembly of the league. It was agreed to by the overwhelming vote of 57 to 20, with 16 Democrats voting or being paired for the measure.

Senators expect that a similar reservation will be offered if the Dumbarton Oaks program is submitted to the senate. It is considered likely the reservation may be adopted after heated debate, particularly if Russia is granted three votes.

Storm Aroused by Speech.

The six votes for Britain in the league of nations were defended by President Roosevelt when he was Democratic candidate for Vice President. He precipitated a storm in a speech at Butte, Mont., on Aug. 18, 1920, when he said the United States would have at least a dozen votes by voting Latin American nations and said he had in his pocket the votes of two of those nations.

"As a matter of fact, I have always felt," Mr. Roosevelt said, according to a press transcript, "that President Wilson slipped one over on Lloyd George [British premier during World War I.] when he was in Paris because while England and her colonies are apparently getting six votes to our one, the United States has a lot more than six votes which will stick to us thru thick and thin in any controversy. As a matter of fact, the United States has about 12 votes in the assembly.

"Until last week I had two of them myself and now Secretary Daniels [Josephus Daniels, Wilson's secretary of war] has them. You know I have had something to do with the running of a couple of little republics.

Wrote Charter, He Says

"Facts are that I wrote Haiti's constitution myself and if I do say it, I think it is a pretty good constitution. Does anybody suppose that the votes of Cuba, Haiti, San Domingo, Panama, Nicaragua, and of the other Central American states would be cast differently from the vote of the United States?"

When these statements aroused the indignant protests of Latin American nations and drew a political barrage from the Republican national committee, Mr. Roosevelt declared he had been misquoted.

Forty citizens of Butte who had heard the speech signed statements declaring Mr. Roosevelt had not been misquoted, however.

Chicago Soldier Gets 25 Yrs. for Attacking Girl

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 8—A sentence of 25 years at hard labor was passed today on a Chicago Negro soldier, Tommie Clifton, for criminal assault on a British girl under 16 years of age. A charge of rape against Clifton, whose army rank was not disclosed, was dismissed by a court-martial at Marlborough, which passed sentence. Clifton insisted the girl submitted to him despite her charge that he choked her.

YALTA ANOTHER MUNICH, POLES TELL SENATORS

Raps Partitioning

Rep. Alvin E. O'Konski, [R., Wis.] asserted last night that the partitioning of Poland "dealt a body blow to freedom loving people everywhere" and caused the small nations to look with suspicion upon the motives of allied leaders. Rep. O'Konski spoke at the 45th anniversary dinner of women of the Polish Roman Catholic union in the union's youth building at Cortez st. and Chicago av. After returning to their capitals, the Big Three, O'Konski, charged, "proceeded to smear Poland as a nation which acquired its territory by theft."

Yalta is likened to Munich in a memorandum to the United States senate from the Polish-American congress and released last week by the congress, which claims to represent 6 million Americans of Polish extraction.

"Substitute Stalin for Hitler, Churchill for Chamberlain, Poland for Czechoslovakia—and the parallel between Munich and Yalta is deadly and inescapable," the memorandum reads. "And we know know from all too recent experience that the Munich method, the method of unlimited appeasement of a dictator, can only lead to national humiliation and disaster."

The congress argues that the Yalta decisions, in which President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill agreed that Russia should retain the parts of 1921-1939 Poland which lie east of the Curzon line, constitute a wrong done not only to Poland but to the United States as well.

Cite Atlantic Charter

"American principles embodied in the four freedoms and the Atlantic Charter have been trampled underfoot," the memorandum states.

The congress sees in the Yalta decisions not only a loss of territory by Poland but also a threat to its future existence as an independent country.

"The legitimate Polish government in London is cast aside without a word of explanation," the memorandum reads.

Urges American Action

The congress urges that the United States government press for immediate release of all political prisoners and return of all deportees to Poland; the establishment in Poland of an interim administration free from soviet military and police pressure; permission for all Poles abroad, regardless of political views, to return and take part freely in political life; complete freedom of the press and of political organization; a free hand for the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration, and free access for diplomats and correspondents of the allied nations and for representatives of Polish cultural and fraternal organizations abroad.

Dedicate Father's Day to Those at the Front

New York, April 8 (AP)—Father's day will be celebrated June 17 this year and will feature a "father bond drive," Alvin Austin, executive director of the National Father's day committee, said today. The committee has dedicated this year's event to fighting fathers, and the war bond campaign slogan will be "Honor dad, he's in there fighting."

RUSSIAN CLERIC RAPS CATHOLIC VIEW ON PEACE

New York, April 8 [Special]—Metropolitan Benjamin, head of the archdiocese of the Aleutian Islands and North America, and exarch of the patriarchal Russian Orthodox church in Russia, today condemned Roman Catholic leaders who, he said, had adopted "an attitude of harmful leniency" toward defeated Fascist nations.

The Russian churchman, who recently returned from the soviet union, spoke at a meeting held under auspices of the Central United Russian committee of Russian War Relief, Inc.

"The Russian people are not looking back," he said. "They are not going back to the days of the czars and of a religious era more interested in playing politics than in the worship of God.

"And speaking of politics, what must the world think of those Roman Catholics who suddenly have become lovers of peace. These are the same priests who were so silent when their Fascist friends were killing women and children in Spain, when Hitler was ravaging all of Europe, murdering millions of humans by the foulest means.

"But now that the Red army has snatched victory from defeat these once so silent Catholics suddenly are clamoring for what they call a just peace. There can be no such thing as justice for murderers. These Roman Catholics are simply making themselves ridiculous."

Along the Union Pacific main line—between stations—a signal flashes red. The train slackens speed and stops. The engineer grabs the whistle cord . . . one long and three short blasts. That's a signal to the flagman. It is his duty to give adequate warning to any train following. To do so, he walks a sufficient distance to the rear to insure full protection.

This is one of the many precautionary measures taken by Union Pacific—and other railroads—to protect passengers and freight shipments.

Safe transportation becomes increasingly important in wartime. Trainloads of troops and essential materials are constantly on the move over Union Pacific's Strategic Middle Route uniting the East with the Pacific Coast.

Just as the flagman protects his train, so is it the job of all Americans to provide for future security by buying bonds and saving them. Thus we can help stabilize industry and encourage the American trait of individual enterprise and initiative.

2 FIRE OFFICIALS HERE SELECTED FOR U. S. MISSION

Mullaney and McAuliffe Will Go to Europe

BY EDWARD SCHREIBER

Two veteran city fire officials, Chief Fire Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney and Frank C. McAuliffe, chief of the fire insurance patrol, have been selected by the war department for a special mission in Europe, it was learned yesterday. Mullaney has already left for Washington, D. C., for consultation with war department officials and McAuliffe is expected to leave later in the week.

A. J. Mullaney [top] and F. C. McAuliffe

Altho the nature of their assignment has not been announced, it is reliably reported they will work under the United States strategic bombing survey. This group has been charged with evaluating and computing damage done to buildings and territory by all types of American-made bombs. This would also include fire damage caused by bombing.

Both Expert Appraisers

Both Mullaney and McAuliffe have been considered expert professional appraisers in this field for many years. As fire officials they have been called upon numerous times to assess with snap judgment damage done to buildings and their contents at both large and small fires thruout the city. Later computation has seldom proved them wrong.

Mullaney, who has been given a leave of absence from his post by Mayor Kelly, has been a city fireman since May 14, 1914, and has taken every civil service examination prescribed for firemen in gaining his present position. He is an expert in fire prevention and his methods, put into operation in many Chicago war plants, have held fire loss to a minimum.

An outspoken critic of the carelessness of the general public for failure to heed simple precautionary rules, he has called the turn on two of the worst fires in the Chicago district in the last few years.

Warned of Douglas Fire

Called upon to inspect the plant of the Douglas Aircraft company near Park Ridge, he told government officials, "You are liable to have a terrific fire here within a few months." Soon after his prediction, the frame office building of the plant burned to the ground.

Shortly before the disastrous fire at the General Grant hotel, Mullaney had remarked that it would only be a question of time before Chicago had a disastrous fire with loss of life.

McAuliffe has been chief of the fire insurance patrol since 1924. Previous to that time he held posts in the fire department ranging from pipeman to battalion chief. His employers, the Chicago Board of Insurance Underwriters, have agreed to give him a leave of absence so he can take the government position.

Mullaney's vacancy will be filled by Michael Cody, now 2d deputy chief fire marshal. McAuliffe's successor has not been announced.

Report Two U. S. Bombers Forced to Land by Swiss

LONDON, April 8 (AP) — Swiss fighters forced two American bombers to land at Duebendorf and anti-aircraft fire hit another, causing the crew to bail out, a broadcast Swiss bulletin said tonight.

THE QUESTION

Do you believe flirting gets you anywhere?

WHERE ASKED

Civic Opera building.

THE ANSWERS

Roberta Rietheimer, office clerk, Chicory Hill, Woodstock—Really, I don't believe it gets you any place — that is, you don't accomplish anything by it. The only reason I flirt —that is, if I ever do —is to keep my own morale up. It makes me feel good to know I can attract a certain amount of favorable attention.

Margaret Robben, clerk-typist, 6425 Harper av.—It depends upon what you're flirting about—whether you're flirting for the fun of it or have some ulterior motive in mind. If you don't carry it too far it's all right. You can't have any fun if you go around with a sour look on your face all the time.

Rosemary Jahnke, student, 1670 Lincoln st., Des Plaines—There are times to flirt and times not to flirt. I don't believe men like women who obviously flirt. They get the impression that she's overly anxious for their attention. If you are clever and can flirt without men noticing it too much, that's an accomplishment.

Mabel Edwards, student, 6170 Wicke av., Des Plaines—Does it get you anywhere? It depends upon where you want to go. That's one way of meeting people. You don't have to take them seriously. I'd say flirt just a little at a dance, on a vacation trip, and similar occasions. But never carry it too far.

Margaret Steadwiser, stenographer, 2907 N. Ashland av. — That depends on the girl, whether she's married or single. If she's married it's a good way to get her into trouble—even tho her intentions are playful. Even tho a girl is single it's not the best thing to do. She could meet the wrong people and run into trouble.

Joan Leslie, bookkeeper, 1218 Glenlake av.—No, I don't! I think men notice it, but I don't think they particularly care for it. A girl may do it and not know that she's flirting — she may have that kind of eyes. But, as for myself, I wouldn't care to meet any one by flirting with them. It's rather risky.

FLYERS STRAFE YANK PRISONERS IN CHAOTIC REICH

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP)—Masses of migrating war prisoners in Germany occasionally have been strafed in mistake by American planes, a war department spokesman said last night.

"It is hard to understand how this happens, as our pilots are briefed about prisoners of war movements," Brig. Gen. B. M. Bryan, assistant provost marshal, told a meeting of prisoners' next of kin who reside in the Washington area. "But the truth is that things are changing so fast over there that it is impossible to brief the pilots accurately.

"The pilots' instructions are to disrupt transportation and strafe every German vehicle they can on the roads."

800,000 Forced to Move

Gen. Bryan described three great mass movements of prisoners, forced by their captors to march westward because of the Russian advance. Information obtained from Swiss sources, he said, showed the largest of the three was a migration of about 800,000 prisoners, including some 25,000 Americans, up the Danube past embattled Vienna.

These figures are so large, Gen. Bryan said, that experts in the provost marshal general's office find them hard to believe.

"These are the groups that have been strafed by our own planes," he said.

One Group Displays Flag.

"We heard of one group of prisoners marching along with a 10 foot American flag displayed so our pilots flying low would see who they were. You have to admire the resourcefulness of men who could conceal a flag that size in a prison camp for eventual use in such a pinch."

Gen. Bryan said about 100,000 prisoners of war, including 15,000 Americans, are moving along the northern German coast into the area of Hamburg, Bremen, and Lubeck. He added that a third column of 60,000 prisoners, of whom 10,000 are Americans, is moving west in a line south of Berlin. He told newsmen Swiss reports did not mention the dislocation of prisoners by the great advances from the Rhine bridgeheads, but he agreed that probably 1,000,000 prisoners have been forced to march.

"I would like to tell you something that would be more cheerful," he told the prisoners' relatives. "But you are Americans. You want to know the truth and it is my duty to give it to you."

Umberto Relieves Cousin of Command as Admiral

ROME, April 8 (AP)—Prince Umberto today relieved his cousin, Aimone di Savoia, duke of Aosta, of his command as navy admiral. The duke had been accused of criticizing the high court of justice for the punishment of fascist crimes, having been quoted as saying "I would have them all shot."

EX-G. I. TO FIGHT 10 YEAR PENALTY FOR SLUR ON F.D.R.

New York, April 8 (AP)—Hugh Callan, 39, former soldier who lost his appeal from a 10 year prison sentence for making uncomplimentary remarks about President Roosevelt, said today he would take a pauper's oath and attempt to have his conviction reviewed by the Supreme court.

Hugh Callan

At his room in the Bronx, Callan told reporters he was unable to understand a statement by the district attorney at Atlanta, Ga., yesterday that his whereabouts are unknown.

"My address is registered on the appeal papers in the Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, and here I am at that address," he said.

Callan was convicted by a court martial at Camp Blanding, Fla., in May, 1942, of sedition and speaking disrespectfully of the President before other inductees. He was given a 20 year sentence, which later was reduced by President Roosevelt to 10.

He was freed on a writ of habeas corpus by a federal court at Atlanta, which held he had not taken the army oath at the time of the remarks and thus was not actually in the army. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans set aside the writ Friday and ordered Callan to prison.

MORE ABOUT HOUSING

This session of the legislature, in approving the public ownership traction bills, has already authorized the removal of some $100,000,000 worth of taxpaying properties in Chicago from the tax rolls. The surface and elevated lines have been paying about $4,000,000 a year in taxes and fees toward the costs of local government over many years. When these payments cease, the rest of the taxpayers in the community will have to shoulder the added burden. It will mean an increase in everybody's taxes of something like 2 per cent, even if the local governments after the war spend no more money than they are spending now.

Now the state senate has passed and the house has under consideration a series of bills intended among other things to exempt the proposed $100,000,000 housing project on the south side from taxation. The exemption cannot be excused on the ground that the 15,000 or 20,000 families who are to occupy the new houses are so poor that they can't pay taxes. On the contrary, the tenants are to be chosen from among the self-supporting; no destitute family is to be admitted.

If these bills are adopted in their present form, some 15,000 or 20,000 families will be excused from contributing to the costs of local government while many times that number of people who are no better off will have to continue paying at least as much as they ever did. If this didn't result in a tax strike by the victims of the discrimination, it would surely lead them to demand an equal exemption from taxes. A better device for bringing about a collapse of the whole revenue structure could hardly be conceived.

Some of the people who have been propagandizing in favor of tax exempt housing, in their enthusiasm, have overlooked this aspect of the matter. Others may favor the bills precisely because they promise to undermine the present tax system. These people want an income tax for state and local revenues. They are shrewd enough politically to know how unpopular such a change would be and therefore they do not advocate it directly. They demand a constitutional convention "to liberalize the revenue clause." And if the discrimination in housing taxes leads to the bankruptcy of the local governments so much the better, because so much the sooner will the income tax be forced on the people of this community as the alternative to anarchy.

The disappearance of the present tax system, of course, would mean an immense gain to persons whose incomes are derived to a large extent from ownership of rental properties. The going price of every parcel of land and of every building erected in this community is lower because of present tax requirements than it would be if they were removed. If the property tax is replaced by the income tax, the values of all real estate should be enhanced because the owner will have no tax bill to pay on his land and buildings, tho he bought them with the understanding they would always bear a tax. He can expect to gain much more each year in this way than a state income tax would take away from him and he will thus provide as neat an example of unearned wealth—inheritances only, excepted—as can be found in any socialist textbook.

Members of the legislature in previous sessions have needed no coaching in discovering which special interest might be served by proposed legislation. This legislature is as openpored as it is suggestible. It apparently hasn't suspected that somebody might make a little something now and again out of the session laws.

These remarks, like the previous ones on the subject, are not dictated by opposition to the housing proposals as such. We believe there is much good in them. The purpose here is to point the need for taxing the projects like any other houses and flat buildings in the city; and to prevent, if possible, the payment of excessive prices for the land. A slum wouldn't be a slum if the land and buildings on it were worth much.

REMEMBER HONG KONG

The Canadian cruiser Uganda is the first fleet unit of our neighbor to the north to reach the Pacific. The United States welcomes this token representation and hopes that it is the forerunner of a more formidable participation in the defeat of Japan. Prime Minister Mackenzie King has announced that, after the finish of the European war, Canada will send to the Pacific only such naval forces, air men, and ground troops as may volunteer. This puts the matter of maintaining Canadian honor squarely up to the men in uniform.

We have no doubt what their decision will be. With the exception of 12,000 conscripts, Canada's entire forces of almost 300,000 men in Europe are volunteers. The dominion's lack of success with a draft for overseas duty shows that Canadians will voluntarily respond to the call of patriotic duty. We feel that there are compelling reasons why Canadian volunteers will go to the Pacific.

No Canadian is likely to have forgotten that a Canadian regiment was one of Japan's first military victims at Hong Kong, or that there have been well substantiated reports of the brutality with which Canadian prisoners taken there were treated. Pacific developments suggest that the strategic situation may be ripe for a Canadian reconquest of Hong Kong by the time the dominion is able to send forces westward. Canadians should be eager to seize the opportunity to avenge their compatriots.

THE LASTING SLEEP OF CHARLEMAGNE

The great, dead king Charlemagne held audience for some unexpected visitors in a cave beyond the Rhine. The troops of the American 1st army, advancing thru the emperor's old domain of Francia, had, months before, captured his capital city of Aachen. The Germans had carried the bones of the emperor from their resting place in the Aachen cathedral to the cave, which also served as an air raid shelter for the living.

The Americans who stood silent in the emperor's presence could have thought, "He was a conqueror, too." Roncesvalles is almost 12 centuries in the past, but it is remembered in legend as a victory more decisive and enduring than any in the wars of Europe since. The Americans are fighting now thru the lands that once were part of the Frankish domain. Paderborn, where the Germans sought to break out of the Ruhr pocket, was the scene of a historic meeting between Charlemagne and Pope Leo III., who crowned the emperor in the year 800 and was himself restored by Charlemagne to the papal throne that year.

The myths have gathered around the name of the great king. Germany and France, but particularly the Rhineland country, could claim him. One of the legends was that Charlemagne was only sleeping, to awaken in the hour of his country's need. The drums and tramplings of a new conquest are passing over the earth that holds his bones. It is not for Hitler's Germany that the king will break his sleep.

TERMS TO JAPAN

Mr. Roosevelt has stood since Casablanca on the platform of unconditional surrender, and now that Germany is falling apart it becomes evident that no one, unless it is Stalin, knows exactly what is to be done with the conquered Germans. Mr. Roosevelt's talk of unconditional surrender has been largely a front, designed to conceal the lack of a specific program.

There is some reason to believe that the Japanese also may be getting ready to quit. The appointment of a so-called moderate to form a new government, while it may not presage a peace plea, is obviously a prerequisite to any such plea. The Japanese, even tho they have resources left, have taken a tremendous whipping. Their fleet is shattered and virtually impotent. Their air force has been drastically reduced and the factories from which it springs are being destroyed. Their principal cities have been scorched by the air armadas of America. Altho their radio announced that Okinawa was to be the crucial battle, resistance there has until now been surprisingly light.

Common prudence dictates that we have ready a plan for the treatment of the Japanese when they do surrender. The nation has none now and if Mr. Roosevelt has one he has not seen fit to confide it to the nation. The probabilities, judged by his behavior concerning Europe, are that he has none.

This war has demonstrated that naval power is essential to aggression in the Pacific. The Japanese aggression crumbled the moment our naval power was restored. Therefore Japan must surrender what it left of its fleet and agree never to build another one or an air force. The Japanese army must surrender all of its arms and abandon conscription and a big standing army.

In the course of the war the Japanese government and its forces have been guilty of the most heinous crimes, violating international law as well as the dictates of morality. The war criminals must be surrendered. The murderers of the captured Tokyo flyers must go to the scaffold. The men responsible for the treacherous attacks on Pearl Harbor, as well as the commanders who executed them, must answer for their offenses before an American military commission. There must be no question of our legal jurisdiction to punish these offenders. Japan must concede jurisdiction and agree to surrender the criminals as terms of the surrender.

Obviously, the Japanese must be expelled from their conquests. The American conscience will not permit us to make this expulsion merely the means of turning the natives of these countries back to be exploited by their previous conquerers and oppressors. When the Japanese leave, the native populations must be left free.

It is our right as well as our duty to impose these terms. Our allies have no right to interfere with them and they should be denied the privilege of doing so. It is we, virtually alone, who have brought Japan to the brink of surrender.

THE MINUTE MEN

A month before the Seventh war loan is to be formally opened for subscription, the campaign for bond purchases thru pay roll deductions is being opened. Men and women with all the facts about the new loan at their finger-tips are already beginning to circulate among their fellow employes in factories, stores, and offices, asking them to buy the new bonds in the easiest way, by having the front office handle the details.

The solicitors are known as Minute Men. They have received no material reward for the great amount of time and effort they have spent in selling the earlier issues. The reward of the Minute Men comes in the satisfaction of having done their patriotic duty.

What the Minute Men have to sell is the most attractive investment' security in the world today. It yields nearly 3 per cent interest, and the United States government will repay the investor any time he wants his money back. The Minute Men are entitled to be enthusiastic about the goods they are selling.

WEREWOLF HUNT

The werewolf myth, which the frenzied and frightened Nazis threaten to revive as a romantic disguise for a post-war assassination cult, has haunted the lower levels of the human mind since the era of the cavemen. Its roots are in primitive cannibalism. The word means man-wolf; that is, a bewitched creature which has human form by day and lupine hide, teeth, and appetite by night. The superstition is one of the unwholesome ideas that have survived from pre-history among European peasants to provide material for folklorists and themes for authors who have a bent toward the weird, grotesque, and horrible.

Hitler, whose career has a werewolfish flavor, comes from a stock in which this notion was likely to breed and influence character. We quote from his best and most objective biographer, Konrad Heiden, who says in "Der Fuehrer" while discussing his pedigree:

"The Waldviertel in lower Austria, from which both the Hitler and Pölzl families came, is a gloomy, remote, impoverished section; like many such regions it has no lack of superstitions and ghost stories. The ancestors were mostly poor peasant people; 'small cottager' often stands in the church records."

The myth is closely related to the vampire bugaboo, and, therefore, in the novel called "Dracula," a veritable case book of vampirism, you will find werewolves as auxiliary phantoms. The anthologies of terror stories which have become quite an article of commerce in the war time book trade contain numerous examples of werewolf tales. We expect to find one in "Best Supernatural Stories of H. P. Lovecraft," edited by August Derleth and new on the counters.

To kill a werewolf according to the folklore formula, you must use a gun that has been blessed at a shrine of St. Hubert and fire a silver bullet.

FOR BUD AND CARL

After three years of war,
Where do their thoughts lie,
Of what do they dream at night
Under a fiery sky—
Of fox holes, and heat, and mud,
Of deep thirst, and sweat, and blood?

After three years of war,
Where do their thoughts roam,
Of what do they dream at night,
It must be of home—
Of clean sheets on which to lie,
Of starlit and quiet sky.

After three years of war,
When aching eyelids close,
Surely no weird dreams mar
Their moments of repose—
They have been three years afar,
And God knows how tired they are.

Mutiny Among the Master Race

There is one phase of this dog situation that bores me no end, and that is the extravagant praise a dog gets for doing the simplest thing.

Now, when Choppy eats all his dinner we look at him and say: "O, what a cute doggie; he ate all of his dinner!" What's so wonderful about that? When I eat all my dinner people say, "You should cut down your eating; you're too fat."

We asked Choppy to get up on the hassock, pretend he is a show doggie, and sit up pretty, which he does. Then you should hear: "Isn't that cute! What a darling doggie. He just understands everything." If I did the same thing, and occasionally I do, just to push Choppy into the background, all I hear is: "Get off that hassock, you big lug. Do you want to squash it flat to the floor?"

Doggone, sometimes I wish I were a dog, so I would get some praise myself. Roy Engel.

Today, green leaves are all a-flutter there.

If Old Theaters Could Talk

Linemaster: Comes an announcement of the Majestic theater's reopening after 11 years of disuse, and I wonder if you recall that Lyman B. Glover, who had been drama critic of the Record-Herald and Richard Mansfield's manager, became manager of the new vaudeville house. Frank Rivers and Harry Corbett were in the box office, and later Livingston Glover, Lyman's son, passed out the pasteboards. Abe Jacobs was stage manager and loved to tell the tale of Jim Thornton's first appearance there. He spied Charles E. Kohl, one of the owners, in the wings, and called out, "Please deliver coal in the basement." Ralph.

CHEST PAIN NOT ALWAYS HEART DISEASE.

MOST of us have been confronted, at some time or other, with pain in the chest. If the symptom occurred in the vicinity of the heart, a visit to the doctor was deemed necessary to make certain that the old standby was still pumping. Altho this possibility should not be overlooked, a host of other ailments must be considered.

The chest cavity, holding the heart and lungs, is surrounded by a protective cage which is subject to injury as well as disease. Damage to the wall includes bruises, sprains, and fractures. Many a soldier's furlough was ruined because, on stepping off the train, he gave his wife such an enthusiastic "bear hug" that one of her ribs cracked. Occasionally, the cartilage between the breastbone and a rib becomes dislocated. If this is noted on the left side, the aching sensation may be mistaken for cardiac trouble. But a history of accident, combined with localized soreness and X-ray findings will establish the diagnosis.

Nerve pain may arise from several sources. Mechanical irritation, at the roots of these "wires," may occasion considerable discomfort over the front and sides of the chest. The cause may be spinal disease or deformity and is an excellent example of referred pain—starting in one place and felt in another. Distress is usually dull and aching in character. Any motion, such as bending, the use of the arms, or twisting of the trunk will aggravate it.

This explains why patients with spinal arthritis may be awakened at night with this symptom. They relax and the backbone moves enough to irritate the nerve roots. Examination will disclose tenderness along the course of the pinched structure.

When the nerves become irritated from infection, various toxins, or injury, intercostal neuritis or neuralgia may develop. The victim complains of a stabbing or burning feeling in the area of the sternum. A sensitive spot is observed between one or two sets of ribs. The situation is made worse by exposure to cold, deep breathing, coughing, or sudden movements. During this illness, shingles may be encountered. Tiny lesions, filled with water, form along the course of the involved nerve. The resulting pain may persist for several weeks even tho the skin blemishes heal. This phase may last longer in the elderly, in spite of adequate medical care.

Diseases of the lung and its lining [pleura] also produce discomfort. The "stitch in the side" of pleurisy may be accompanied by manifestations of a cold—fever, fatigue, and coughing. Soreness from disorders of the diaphragm are, as a rule, referred to the shoulder. When a portion of the stomach or intestine ruptures thru this organ, and finds its way into the chest cavity, pangs indistinguishable from those of heart trouble may be experienced. X-rays will show the true nature of the malady.

Disturbances of the pumping apparatus differ from these chest pains. Don't always think of the worst as other conditions, easily recognized by the physician, may be responsible.

IT'LL JUST BE ANOTHER D-DAY FOR HIM

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Nomenclature

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—One of the neighbors stopped by the other day, and the expected inquiry was made about the whereabouts of her son in the army. "O, he's in Paris, France," she replied.

Giving so specific a location to Paris may seem unnecessary if you don't know that here in Arkansas we have every spot on the globe within easy reach. We have not only a Paris, but a London, a Scotland, a Denmark, a Belfast, a Montreal, a Hamburg [so named because of the large hams on two deer shot near there], an Egypt, a Greenland, a Manila, a Jerusalem, a Gethsemane, a Mount Olive, a Palestine, a Damascus, an Antioch, a body of water named the Rubicon [which any 6 year old Commando can cross], and a Bingen which is not on the Rhine but on Wolf's creek.

We even have a Hollywood, a name adopted by Spoonerville when its inhabitants learned of a certain development, here nameless, on the west coast of the United States—and when the British say there'll always be an England, we know there will be, for it is right here. Originally it was named Hurgens, and when its citizens set out to change its name to England, the government at first refused, saying it was contrary to policy to name a postoffice for a foreign country. We won when we convinced the government all England meant to us was the family name of two local financiers.

We have sweet names, sour names, edible names, nostalgic names, and a few extremely classical numbers, among them Cato, Scipio, Ben Hur, and Ultima Thule. Against those we pit such unfortunate choices as Greasy Slough and Greasy Valley, Cooterneck and Penitentiary. The nicest name, ante-dating Stephen Foster, is Sweet Home, a pretty little hamlet tucked up under enormous trees. The strangest certainly are Sub Rosa and Water Creek, the latter the name of a stream.

We have a Morning Star, a Bright Star, and a Comet. We have a Faith and a Hope but no Charity, altho we have an Amity, a Bliss, a Harmony, and a Joy. We have a Welcome, a Reform, a Rest, and a Seldom Rest. We also have a Prim, an Amateur, a Bonanza, a God-on-the-Hill, and a Prosperity. The population of the latter is quite small.

The early settlers must have known hunger intimately, for they settled a Tomato, a Turnip, a Hominy Hill, a Clabber Creek, a Food Suck, a Turkey, a Chicken Bristle, and a Punkin Bend [a bend in the Bayou de Dieu]. They also founded a Hog Eye [which is quite apart from Hog Thief trail, famous in Arkansas political annals as having been paved at state expense for a wildcat realtor], a Bug City, a Bug Tussle, and a Pull Tight. Lost Boy was named for the first reason you would guess, Possum Trost once was Possum Tryst because of the possums lurking there, and Buck-snort once was a rendezvous for deer.

Many places originally bearing poetic Indian and French names have been aborted thru the years. The Indians gave the limpid name Tu-ya-ho-sah, which means where-something-dies, to the creek in which a white man named Lee drowned. This now is Lee's creek. The French named another creek Sel d'Eau or salt water. It now is known as Salado, which in turn has been corrupted on the federal land grants to Sally Doe.

The origin of most of these names has been lost, but the current crop, as applied to humans, is both vivid and reasonable. A boy born here recently was named Dollar Bill, its parents thinking it would be nice to have one always handy, while a baby girl born on June 6, 1944, the day we invaded Normandy, was called D-day.

While on the subject of names, let it be said that there are no Dumbarton Oak trees down this way. A lady here accosted a friend in great eagerness last week to ask her to go to the garden club meeting. "It's going to be real interesting," she said. "They're going to discuss a kind of oak tree I never have seen—Dumbarton."

THE YEARS OF LUNACY

Wilmette, Ill., March 23—We can safely estimate that it will take at least 50 years for the United States to recover from the 12 year depression, the blunders, and the wars brought on by the New Deal. It probably will take Germany and Italy even longer for them to recover from their investment in state socialism. As for Russia, her program of forcing her population, aside from top officials, to work for bed and board may enable her to recover faster, but she, too, has lost millions of able bodied men and billions in property.

All in all, the hiring of self-aspiring demagogues without administrative ability to run great countries back in the early '30s was a pretty bad investment for the world at large and, with the possibility of this happening again within another generation, all this theorizing about a perpetual peace is rather ridiculous. Only when voters have the intelligence to select their government officials that is ordinarily used by corporation stockholders in selecting a board of directors may we expect government bodies with enough sense to keep us out of wars and to run their jobs efficiently. M. H. W.

SPECULATORS

Cadillac, Mich., March 10—Mr. Eccles, Mr. Morgenthau, etc., have such an intense hatred of the speculator that they want to "liquidate" him. They say he causes inflation by bidding the stock market up.

The CIO and AFL, as well as other aggregations, can collect millions of dollars monthly without protest from these exponents of freedom for their own clique, and a racketeering music czar can exact tribute into fantastic amounts from the public because they want to buy records for their phonographs. And all this is tax free.

But let a business man make a few hundred or thousand in the most hazardous occupation in the world, and they promptly want to annihilate him. Messrs. Eccles and Morgenthau are about as valuable to American financial institutions as Mr. Petrillo is to Interlochen. Ross Maurer.

THE HONOR ROLL

Williamsport, Ind., April 5—We wish to compliment you on yesterday's front page cartoon, entitled "The Roll of Honor." TAXATION FOR CHARITY

Evanston, Ill., March 17—We must tighten our belts, says President Roosevelt, in order to feed the hungry nations of the world—tho, be it noted, his wife says he does not go without butter.

What of this idea that we must sacrifice in order to feed hungry foreigners? Regardless of how we got into this war and whether or not we could and should have kept out of it, our task has been merely to whip Germany and Japan and see to it, with our allies, that those countries may never have an opportunity to go on the warpath again. We did not undertake, I believe, to raise all the nations of the earth to our own level or even at all above their own level, except as their low level was caused by German or Japanese aggression. We shall, no doubt, accomplish the task we set for ourselves. What then?

It may, as Mr. Roosevelt says, be the part of decency to help the oppressed people of the world with food and clothing, but it seems to me that decency is hardly to be compelled by law, even admitting the right of Mr. Roosevelt to determine what decency is. If the people of this and other countries able to do so wished, thru the Red Cross or some other agency, to contribute to the aid of the sufferers—as they doubtless would—that would be good. But by what right are we compelled, thru taxation, to become charitable? The ideas of President Roosevelt and his crowd as to our obligations and his right to compel us to fulfill them are growing more grotesque every day.

Henry A. Palmer.

CRUEL AND UNUSUAL

Chicago, April 3—A London paper asked the question: "What would you do with Hitler if he is caught alive?"

I believe I voice the opinions of all cigaret smokers. That is, make Hitler smoke all the different brands of cigarets you are forced to buy these days for one straight week, and then force him to be a cigar clerk for another week. Please, believe me, he would never start another war.

DISPUTED BOUNDARY

Chicago, April 6—About 10 years ago I bought a 50x100 lake lot on which there is a small house. Recently the property behind me was sold and the new owner maintains that my fence is on his lot and that it must be moved. As I measure off the feet, I am certain that he is mistaken. PRISONER OF WAR MENUS HIT BY FOOD SHORTAGE

Butter Is Eliminated, Sugar Ration Cut.

[How prisoners of war are fed is described in this article, one of a series by a Tribune reporter who recently visited five large German prisoner of war camps in four states.]

BY CARL WIEGMAN

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Since shortages of food have developed in the civilian markets, the army has revised the rations issued to prisoners of war in this country. Margarine has replaced butter and corn sirup has been substituted for part of the sugar ration at most camps. Meat rations have been reduced and the potato ration increased. Canned fruits and juices, ketchup, olives, and similar luxury items have been eliminated from the prisoners' mess.

In spite of the recent ration changes, the prisoners still are eating better food than most of them ever had in their lives, and they unquestionably are getting better food than American prisoners of war in Germany, camp commanders conceded.

They explained that this anomalous situation has developed because the United States is adhering faithfully to the terms of the Geneva convention for treatment of prisoners of war. Under this treaty the food ration of prisoners "shall be equal in quantity and quality to that of troops at base camps" of the detaining power.

Equal in Quality

This provision is not interpreted to mean that prisoners' rations must be identical with those given American soldiers, but they are required to be equal in "quality and quantity."

Prisoner of war camp commanders explained that, under our constitution, a treaty is a part of the law of the land, and the army has no option in the matter of obeying laws. Any camp commander who disobeyed the terms of the Geneva convention would be subject to court-martial.

Here are typical menus served to American soldiers on a recent day at Fort Custer, Mich., and the foods eliminated from the prisoner of war camp menus at the same camp:

Breakfast — American soldier received: Tomato juice, dry cereal, milk, scrambled eggs, bread, butter, coffee. The prisoners received no tomato juice, cereal or butter, but they received a ration of potatoes.

Meat Portion Cut

Dinner — American soldier received: Beef ragout, boiled potatoes, spinach, bread, butter, pear and jelly salad, coffee, and lemon pie. The prisoners received reduced portion of meat, no salad, and in place of butter were served margarine at the rate of 3 pounds for each 100 men.

Supper — American soldier received: Fried pork chops, baked potatoes, raw vegetable salad, corn bread, cocoa, and bread pudding with apricot sauce. The prisoners received reduced rations of meat and the pudding was absent from their meal.

Prior to the cigaret shortage each prisoner was permitted to buy a package daily. Now the cigaret ration at Camp Ellis, Ill., is one package every five days. At Camp Shelby, Miss., the prisoners have had no cigarets for a month, but can buy tobacco to roll their own. Other camps permit the sale of cigarets irregularly as they are made available thru the post exchange.

Camp Ellis has a rigid system of keeping prisoners from wasting food. After each meal, the men are required to file past a row of one gallon cans, dumping their uneaten meat in one can, vegetables in another, and dessert in another. At the end of each day, the cans are weighed. The average daily waste during the last month was two pounds for a company of 175 men.

Beer Helps Discipline.

Some camps permit the prisoners to buy two bottles of beer daily. Others limit them to one bottle, and one camp allots each company one bottle per man, minus 10 per cent for nondrinkers. Camp commanders said beer is a tremendous weapon to enforce discipline. The prisoners know its sale will be stopped if there is any monkey business.

Camp Shelby, Miss., permits each company of about 200 prisoners to have a small garden plot, where they grow vegetables to add to their mess.

Many camps operate large truck farms, using prisoner labor, and turn the produce over to the army quartermaster department. Col. C. P. Evers, prison camp commander at Camp Ellis, estimated that his truck farm raved the government $50,000 last year.

At Clinton, Miss., prisoners will have a 15 acre farm this year. Camp Custer, Mich., plans no truck farm this year because all available prisoners are needed for work on Michigan farms.

Clothing worn by prisoners is limited to cast off equipment of the American army, which has been repaired by the prisoners. Most camps have large tailor shops and clothing and equipment salvage shops, where prisoners classify and repair such items as shoes, comforters, blankets, and mosquito bars and prepare them for redistribution to American soldiers.

Working prisoners of war are paid at the rate of 80 cents a day, but they receive no money. They are paid in coupons which can be used to buy beverages, smoking goods, candy, toilet articles, and notions in their canteens.

Profits from the prisoners' canteens are turned over to a fund for all prisoners of war in this country, which provides books and recreational equipment for the camps.

NAZI GENERAL BURIED AT U. S. PRISONER CAMP

Como, Miss., April 8 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Hans von Schubert was buried today with full military honors in the Como prisoner of war camp cemetery, 4,000 miles from the Germany for which he fought.

The American army and his captive countrymen gave the 52 year old Prussian officer, who died Wednesday of a brain ailment in Memphis' Kennedy General hospital, last rites benefitting his rank.

Before the funeral began, the body of Gen. von Schubert, who was captured in France last fall, had lain in state in the prison stockade chapel.

ARMORED CAR STRIKE THREAT GIVEN BY 1,700

Unless a decision expected to be returned today by the regional war labor board provides wage increases for 100 straight time workers employed at the Diamond T Motor Car company, 4401 W. 26th st., approximately 1,700 fellow workers will not report to work Tuesday, Thomas M. Law, president of the Independent Automotive Workers Industrial union, said yesterday. The company manufactures heavy land moving machinery and armored mobile equipment for the army.

Law said the action was voted by the membership in January, despite objections of the union's executive board, in protest against delay by the WLB, which has been considering the matter since last May.

The straight time workers, he said, sought wage increases comparable with the take home pay of the piece workers when they increased their output in response to Gen. Eisenhower'r plea for a greater flow of material.

INSTALMENT XXXVIII

The story of the misfortune that had befallen these two young people who came to the house that evening already had been told in the vestibule, but Louis related it to me, with the young man, Emile, filling in the gaps.

The couple had been married 10 days, returning three days previously from their honeymoon at Dijon. On the first day back at his factory, which manufactured arms for the Germans, Emile found that three of the workers in his department had been conscripted for labor in Germany. This temporarily lessened his own fear of having to go, for since three men had been taken from his section he felt that he would not be called for many months, and perhaps never.

With his new wife, and the feeling that he would not be conscripted, he spent the first few days back home in great bliss, but on the third day the word went around the factory that the conscripted men had gone into hiding, and that three more would be called to replace them. At noon on that day, the dreadful news came to Emile that he had been one of those chosen.

He had exactly five hours to prepare for the trip and bid farewell to his family. The practice of giving short notice was common, for the authorities felt that by informing their victims only a few hours in advance there was less likelihood of their being able to make any plans to go into hiding.

These tidings so upset Emile that he was at a complete loss to know what to do.

Emile went straight to his mother-in-law's house, and told her and her husband the bad news. They resolutely refused even to consider the possibility of his going, and told him he must go into hiding, adding that they would help him as much as they could. Bertia, Emile's wife, agreed with her parents.

Emile realized that this was a dangerous course to follow, and that going into hiding would be very expensive, as his food cards would become invalid and everything he ate would have to come from the black market. However, as his parents-in-law were so emphatic in demanding that he stay, and as Bertia was even more so, he abandoned any attempt to make a decision for himself.

However, the sight of two allied airmen safely in hiding encouraged him. "We're all in the same boat, now," he grinned.

M. Pelerin recommended that Emile stay with Michiline and Louis, and then go to the country to work on a farm or small factory, leaving Bertia behind. Emile did not think much of this plan. He thought something quite as safe could be arranged so he could stay in Paris, but M. Pelerin held steadfastly to his opinion that the country was safer. Bertia did not know what to think, but disliked the idea of her husband going to the country where she could not see him.

Louis and Michiline hesitated to take any decisive position. Keeping Emile in their three room house would be difficult, yet they did not want to make him feel unwelcome. M. Pelerin won approval for his plan, and it was arranged for Emile to stay at Louis' house. He would sleep on a mattress in the dining room, and two or three times a week Bertia could come to stay with him. With this question decided, Bertia and Emile said good night and left.

We had just finished clearing the table when the family came in. They were in excellent spirits. The play had been delightful, they said, and they had had an excellent dinner at la Grandmere's sister's home.

Michiline told them she and Louis were going to hide Emile in their house. The Maurices took a generally sympathetic view of the decision, but le Pere did not like the unwillingness of Emile to leave Paris as soon as possible.

"That's ridiculous," he said. "There should be no question about his leaving."

We went to bed soon after, leaving le Pere in the kitchen muttering. "The boy is crazy—the plan is too dangerous—he should consider some of us."

Sunday morning le Pere took us for a long walk. I had long wanted to go to a high hill which gave a broad view of the city. We went thru a residential district, so the journey was not very dangerous.

The day was beautiful, without a cloud in the sky, and the warm sunlight fortified us against the chill November winds. From the hill we could see all of Paris. The Eiffel tower stood out above everything else, looking as splendid as always. Notre Dame could easily be seen, and Sacre Coeur stood out in all its majesty. Les Invalides and a few other places of interest were sufficiently prominent to point out to Herk, who hadn't had a good look at the city before.

It was a thrilling sight, and I felt that Herk was rather excited about it, altho he did not have much to say, other than, "The Eiffel tower is really pretty high."

On the way home, I noticed a policeman coming in our direction. I tried to convince myself that he wasn't interested in us, but he continued to approach us, and with each step my heart picked up a few more beats. I finally whispered to le Pere that we were certainly being followed, and that it would be better for him if he would pretend he was not with us.

"O, he's a good friend of mine," le Pere replied, glancing back at the policeman. "We were in the last war together."

When the gendarme caught up with us, le Pere introduced Herk and me. We were annoyed, as usual, to have still another person know who we were, but the policeman was very pleasant and greatly admired le Pere for sheltering allied airmen.

"I have had five at my own house in the last month," he said.

It was growing dark and there seemed to be many cyclists on the road, all laden with knapsacks.

"I ought to arrest all those people," the gendarme said. "They are carrying black market food into Paris, but without them I should starve, and their activity does cause Vichy and the Germans a certain amount of irritation."

When we came to the policeman's house he asked us in, but le Pere felt we should continue home, in case the women were worried.

That night we planned to go to Louis' house to listen to the radio, so we had dinner a little early. Michiline had no coffee, so we had tea, an even greater rarity as it is no longer sold in France. The French aren't very fond of it, calling it "l'eau chaud." [Hot water.]

The news was good, but there wasn't much of it, a small advance in Italy and a larger one in Russia. "Avance toujours," was what the French said, but with little conviction that these advances would mean an early end to the war.

The next Saturday le Pere's uncle came for dinner. Great preparations were made for the meal, for this man was held in considerable esteem by the family. Uncle Charles and his wife, a Corsican who spoke French with a strong Italian accent, arrived about 7. Aunty brought a cake with her which looked very delicious, much better than that with which Madame had been experimenting most of the afternoon.

Herk and I did not like the idea of more people knowing we were here, even if they were relatives. We suggested we remain upstairs, but le Pere said it wasn't necessary, since they had known about us ever since we arrived. There seemed to be nothing we could do to prevent le Pere from spreading the news about us to his friends. He always said, "My friend was a soldier of the last war—wounded twice—fought thru all the worst campaigns and would never think of telling a soul."

The uncle and aunt were both very interested to hear all about our experiences in France, then of life in America and England, and finally all the stock questions we had been asked again and again.

They lived in Paris, but had a little house out near Vincennes where they went each week-end. Uncle Charles was a rug merchant, but business had been bad since the war, so they had more time to spend in the suburb. However, these people loved Paris more than anything, and did not like to be away from the city for more than a day or so. They lived very near the Gare du Nord, and were rather concerned about the danger to that quarter.

"Surely the allies will bomb it, won't they?" asked Aunty.

I replied that very probably they would, and advised moving away from that quarter. Aunty was more worried than uncle, who brushed aside the danger, saying there was nothing to worry about yet, at any rate.

When we turned the radio on loud enough for all to hear, she found one more advantage to living in "the country." In Paris, she said, she had to keep the radio turned as low as possible, for fear the neighbors would report them to the Germans for listening to Radio London.

lies, an extensive American campaign on the Asiatic mainland may become unnecessary, in the opinion of military authorities.

Japan Seriously Crippled

With the dstruction of almost all the Jap navy, the decimation of the Jap air force and the burning of Jap factories the power of the enemy to continve the war has been seriously crippled. An invasion of the Jap homeland, which Tokyo is momentarily expecting with unconcealed pessimism, would raise the curtain on the last act of the tragedy.

That in such event the Tokyo government might throw in the sponge is a possibility being widely discussed in the light of the formation of the new Jap ministry, headed by a moderate who never has been in sympathy with the extreme militarists who got the country into the war. One theory is that the emperor is now under increasing popular pressure to get the country out of the war before it is destroyed.

Indications that the sands are running fast for Japan may explain Stalin's sudden decision to denounce the neutrality treaty and get in on the winning side before it is too late. Unless denounced by either party by April 24 the treaty would have been renewed for another five years. Stalin beat the deadline by more than two weeks. He may have told Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill that he was going to do it but if so this is another secret of the Yalta conference.

Other Considerations

Stalin may have been influenced by other considerations also. A rift had developed between him and the western allies over his demand for the seating of the Moscow sponsored Polish government at San Francisco and his request for 3 votes for Russia in the new peace league assemly, also over his selection of a second string functionary to head the Russian delegation.

The success of San Francisco was in jeopardy. Also the new American lend-lease agreement involving 4 billion dollars was hanging fire in Washington, as well as his application for 6 billions of American long term post-war credit. Stalin may have hastened to cast off Japan by way of appeasing Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill.

URGE FREEDOM FOR HOMELAND AT LITH RALLY

Pointing out that the Atlantic Charter in 1941 and former Secretary of State Hull in 1943 proclaimed the right of small nations to self-determination and independence, Rep. Edward A. Kelly [D., Ill.], last night called for independence for Lithuania and its three million people.

Kelly spoke to a meeting of the Lithuanian Chamber of Commerce in a hall at 4416 S. Western av. The meeting was called to announce an appeal to the American delegation to the forthcoming San Francisco world security conference.

Kelly reviewed the history of the Lithuanian republic, and pointed out that from earliest times the Lithuanians have had their own language, culture, and traditions. Kelly said no people have a "stronger claim to the right of self-government and independence" than the Liths.

Salesmanship!

The Sales Department in Schenley, like in any other business, is depleted of manpower. Many of our salesmen who had word-of-mouth jobs now wear the uniforms of the armed services, or are engaged in work most essential in time of war—just as our company's distilling facilities are presently engaged in the manufacture of precious alcohol for war purposes. The sales arguments our former salesmen learned are temporarily stowed away. Their wartime "arguments" are far different now.

But, peace will come and many of our men will be back with us, and they will have first choice of available jobs of course. When they return, they will have to be trained as never before because post-war business will take its tempo from the tempo of war. There will be new strategies and aggressiveness—and the pace will be fast. And there will be a new awakening of selectivity on the part of the buying public. Names of products will again be important; the consumer will be more than ever insistent on quality.

A great job—the job of the salesman. Without him, there can be no prosperous America. Salesmanship sells goods. Workers are paid for making goods—and "payrolls" means prosperity.

Note these three "Ps":

PURCHASES—
PAYROLLS—PROSPERITY!

• • • •

Even in wartime, there is salesmanship going on all over the world — American salesmanship. Twelve million boys and girls in uniform, no matter where they are, are "selling" America—in word and in deed.

Indeed!

UNION CARBIDE AGAIN REPORTS
BUTADIENE
for the Government's Synthetic Rubber Program

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT factors in the Government's rubber program is the production of GR-S type synthetic rubber.

The basic chemical in this rubber is Butadiene, which can be made from alcohol or hydrocarbon materials.

The Government's original plan provided that about one third of the required Butadiene would be made by CARBIDE AND CARBON CHEMICALS CORPORATION'S alcohol process.

In 1943, their first year of operation, however, the plants using this process produced over 75 per cent of all Butadiene made for GR-S type synthetic rubber.

In 1944, the second year, these plants produced about 64 per cent of all Butadiene necessary for military and essential civilian rubber. This was true despite the fact that good progress had been made in the production of Butadiene by other processes.

THE RECORD

The first tank-car load of Butadiene was shipped from the Government's Carbide-built, Carbide-operated plant at Institute, West Virginia a little over two years ago.

This was just five months after the famous Baruch Committee Report pointed out this nation's desperate need for rubber—and approved Carbide's butadiene alcohol process, originally selected by Rubber Reserve Company, as one of the solutions.

In its first year the Institute plant, with a rated capacity of 80,000 tons per year, produced enough Butadiene for more than 90,000 long tons of synthetic rubber.

Two more great plants using Carbide's alcohol process—and built from the blueprints of the Institute plant—are in full production. One of these, with an annual rated capacity of 80,000 tons of Butadiene is located at Kobuta, Pennsylvania and is operated for the Government by another important chemical company.

The second, with a rated capacity of 60,000 tons a year, is operated for the Government by Carbide at Louisville, Kentucky—making the total rated capacity of the two huge plants now operated by Carbide 140,000 tons a year.

In 1944, the production of Butadiene from the three plants using the alcohol process totaled 361,000 tons—representing operation at over 164 per cent of rated capacity. An even higher rate is expected in 1945.

* * * * *

Before Pearl Harbor, the United States was a "have not" nation with respect to rubber. Now, thanks to American research, engineering and production skill, our country can take its place as a dominant factor among the great rubber producing nations of the world.

Business men, technicians, teachers, and others are invited to send for the book RU-15 "Butadiene and Styrene for Buna S Synthetic Rubber from Grain Alcohol," which explains what these plants do, and what their place is in the Government's rubber program.

SEPTEMBER 10, 1942

"Of all the critical and strategic materials, rubber is the one which presents the greatest threat to the safety of our nation, and to the Allied Cause.... We find the situation to be so dangerous that unless corrective measures are taken immediately the country will face both a military and a civilian collapse."

—Report of the Rubber Survey Committee (Baruch Committee).

AUGUST 31, 1944

"Undoubtedly the outstanding achievement of your company has been the development of your process for the production of Butadiene from alcohol. With a rather meager background of experimental work, your engineers were able to design and construct commercial units for the production of Butadiene. In an exceedingly short time, the operation of this equipment at capacities up to 200 per cent of rating has been largely responsible for our present safe situation with respect to rubber supplies . . ."

HOPES FOR MINE PEACE FADING AT LEWIS PARLEY

Operators Assert Union Stiffens Demands

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP)—Prospects of reaching a soft coal miners' contract within 24 hours cooled perceptibly tonight. A note of skepticism came from the producers' side about the immediate chances of agreement following a series of week-end meetings between subcommittees of miners and operators.

The groups were named Saturday to discuss certain details of demands of President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers. Both sides had joined in a report Saturday to the war labor board predicting agreement by tomorrow night.

Consider $1.25 Increase

This forecast was understood to represent provision of $1.25 more a day for the miners, and to exclude Lewis' 10 cents a ton union royalty demand. Subcommittees will report tomorrow to the joint conference on the progress of their talks on the proposed contract.

The operators, after more than 24 hours of intermittent talks with the small mine workers' committees, said Lewis had definitely stiffened in his attitude since the negotiators, at his behest, by-passed the WLB for the time being.

One operator source said that unless there is some relaxation of union demands the issues will have to be decided by the WLB.

Expect Consumer to Pay

The over-all chances of a mutual agreement, these operators feel, are much less tonight than was indicated by the Saturday message to the war labor board.

The cost of the $1.25 wage raise, some operator sources said, would amount to 150 million dollars and tack 25 cents onto the cost of a ton of coal. A price increase would be imperative, they said.

11 POLICE SQUADS SEIZE CAR THIEF IN 3 MILE CHASE

Robert Castrejohn, 15, of 721 S. Western av., on probation from the Juvenile court for larceny of an automobile, was captured behind the wheel of another stolen car in which he led 11 police squads in a three mile chase thru west side streets early yesterday.

He was seized when he crashed the car against the side of a filling station at Roosevelt rd. and Morgan st. A companion escaped. Castrejohn, who was returned to the juvenile home, was first sighted at California and Ogden avs. by Park Policemen Arthur Edwards and Patrick Flynn. Seeing the squad, he threw his car into gear and speeded away.

As they took after the fleeing car, the policemen radioed for other squads to join the pursuit. At the height of the chase 10 west side police and detective bureau cars participated. One warning shot was fired into the air just before the stolen car crashed into the building as the driver attempted to turn the corner at high speed. Police said the car had been stolen from the C. W. Marquardt, auto agency, 44 N. Laramie av.

Army Explosives Dump at Stockholm Blows Up

New York, April 8 (AP)—A Swedish army high explosives dump in a cave outside Stockholm blew up today, the Stockholm radio said tonight in a broadcast recorded by the FCC.

TEMPERATURES IN 70s; CROWDS IN PARKS, WOODS

Temperatures in the 70s and balmy breezes yesterday filled the parks and forest preserves with visitors and brought out the ultimate in signs of spring—balloon venders, tintype photographers, and waffle wagons.

As early as 7 a. m. fishermen lined the rocks along the lake front, bicycle riders were out in force, bridle paths were in use, and picknickers were on their way to forest areas. By 3 p. m. the mercury had risen to 73 degrees.

Today will be equally warm with the addition of occasional showers to make it a typical April day, Weatherman H. L. Jacobson said.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE IS ENGAGED, HER PARENTS REVEAL

Engagement of Shirley Temple, 16 year old movie star, and Sgt. John George Agar, 24, formerly of Lake Forest, now stationed at March Field, Cal., with an army air force unit, was announced yesterday in Hollywood by the star's parents.

Agar is the son of the late John Agar, who formerly operated the Agar Packing company in Chicago, and Mrs. Lillian Agar, who now lives at 613 Arden dr., Beverly Hills. He attended Lake Forest academy, where he played basketball and baseball, and later the Pawling School for Boys in Dutchess county, N. Y.

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION
OFFICE OF THE ADMINISTRATOR OF VETERANS AFFAIRS

TO: THE POLICYHOLDERS OF GOVERNMENT INSURANCE

Persons who actively served in the armed forces since October 8, 1940 have had the opportunity of applying for National Service Life Insurance. Those who bought this insurance made a wise purchase. National Service Life Insurance is low cost insurance because the Government bears all losses due to the extra hazard of military and naval service and in addition, pays all the expenses of administration.

When a person leaves this world he cannot take anything material with him but he can leave behind something of value to his loved ones. I know of no better way of protecting against their want than by means of adequate life insurance.

The insurance made available to you in the service was term insurance convertible without physical examination. It is a valuable asset which cannot be replaced. Continue to carry it. If you have let it lapse, reinstate it. When you are in a position to plan a long range insurance program convert your insurance to a permanent form.

The American Life Convention, The Life Insurance Association of America and The National Association of Life Underwriters, which represent the great majority of the life insurance business, have all gone on record as indicating a desire to cooperate wholeheartedly with the Veterans Administration in protecting the interests of service persons.

I welcome this cooperation and believe it will be a force for the accomplishment of great good. Accordingly, I urge that you continue your Government insurance in force and I join with these life insurance organizations in urging you not to exchange your Government insurance. Other insurance should supplement rather than replace Government insurance for veterans.

FRANK T. HINES,
Administrator of Veterans Affairs.

A MESSAGE OF IMPORTANCE TO VETERANS* AND THEIR FAMILIES

* Even now, service men and women are being discharged at the rate of 70,000 a month.

First steps to take when discharged

DISCHARGE from Service in no way affects your government insurance, except that premiums can no longer be deducted from your Service pay, and you must now pay them direct.

Ordinarily, the premium for the month of discharge is deducted from your final pay settlement. Make a note of the date when the next premium is due (see your Form 53) and remember you must pay it within 31 days of that date.

Make your check or money order payable to the Treasurer of the United States and mail it to the Collections Subdivision, Veterans' Administration, Washington, D. C. Pay the premiums even though a premium notice does not reach you. It is most important to give your full name, birth date, present address, policy number, and your Service serial number.

THE FINANCIAL HEALTH of America as a whole depends upon the financial health of every individual.

Recognizing this, America's life insurance companies take this opportunity to cooperate with the Veterans' Administration in the conservation of life insurance issued to millions of individuals under the National Service Life Insurance Act.

As part of their educational program in the interests of all owners of life insurance, they wish to draw the attention of every man and woman in the armed forces, and their families, to the above letter of General Hines.

In cooperation with the Government, the life insurance companies are advising their field forces and branch office personnel on the rights of veterans in regard to their National Service Life Insurance.

Representatives of life insurance in the field will cooperate with various local veterans' organizations to provide a consultation service for veterans and veterans' organizations and to distribute the Veteran Bureau's official booklet, "Continuance of National Service Life Insurance."

The life insurance companies and their agents again welcome an opportunity to be of public service.

BELIEVE GUZIK MAY BE KEY TO GAMBLING WAR

Police Watch for Move by Capone Heir

BY JAMES DOHERTY

Problem No. 1 in the investigation of the murder of William Tarsch, 24th ward gambling czar, was said not to be who is killing whom and why, but, to which side Jack Guzik will swing. Police and crime commission officials were sure Tarsch, who was slain with a shotgun Saturday morning as he left a gambling game at 3712 W. Roosevelt rd., was just another victim of a gambling war. First Assistant State's Atty. Wilbert F. Crowley thought there might have been a black market motive.

If a gambling war is in progress in Chicago it was considered reasonable that Guzik, who inherited the gambling overlordship of Al Capone and Frank Nitti, is one of those higher up. Capt. Tom Alcock of the Fillmore st. station, in whose district Tarsch and Bennie Zuckerman, his 24th ward predecessor, were slain, said he hadn't seen anything of Guzik, once a panderer known as Greasy Thumb.

Guzik Not Seen Recently

Virgil W. Peterson, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission, said his men hadn't picked up Guzik's trail of late, altho they did find many reasonably large gambling resorts open recently in various parts of the city.

West side police said that what admittedly may be a gambling war is not a war such as the Capone gangsters used to wage. This one is by gamblers without political pull against gamblers with political pull, detectives said, explaining "Those who can't go try to muscle in on those who can go," and by "go" was meant to operate a gambling parlor.

Seeks Link to Other Deaths

Peterson thought there was a connection between the slaying of Zuckerman and Tarsch and the murders of Onofrio Vitale, Vincenzo [James] De Angelo, and Thomas Oneglia, who had a gambling headquarters on La Salle st., near Grand av. North side police, however, weren't blaming the Zuckerman-Tarsch followers for this triple execution.

Out in the Fillmore district police and precinct captains declared that Arthur X. Elrod, Democratic committeeman of the 24th ward, which goes Democratic by a 25 to 1 vote, had lost control and couldn't be held responsible for the many 'sneak' gambling dives that recently had opened.

Games "Doing All Right"

While the dice games reported by crime commission aids as operating in many parts of the city were said to be "doing all right" for Democratic campaign contributors, some were said to be dissatisfied. Elrod couldn't placate his west side followers, police believed.

On the north side a new, for Chicago, gambling game made its appearance—chemin de fer. It is a card game on the order of blackjack and it pays the house 5 per cent of all bets. In some night clubs the 5 per cent ran into big money, according to reports.

And as to Guzik—if he was interested in any of the five murders, there was nothing being done about it, it was admitted.

John E. Warner Says:

I CAN PICK

THE LOSER

Despite many alleged infallible systems, nobody can consistently pick the winner. The loser, in many ways, is the man who allows himself to go around with dull, dingy hair and a coat collar laden with loose dandruff scales.

A healthy looking, well groomed head of hair is a real asset to any man on all business or social occasions.

For many years a growing and satisfied clientele of both men and women in all walks of life have brought their hair problems to us.

A consultation, made without charge or obligation, will tell you whether or not we can help you.

No advance fees, no required courses of treatment. You pay only a moderate fee for such treatments as you may elect to take.

Program Scheduled to Open Today

BY LARRY WOLTERS

A musical variety show, featuring the Art Van Damme quartet and Songstress Jeanne MacKenna, is to be broadcast regularly from Gardiner General, Vaughan General, and the Great Lakes Naval Training center hospitals on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, successively, starting today. The shows will be broadcast before convalescent service men over WMAQ at 5:15 p. m. A guest star will appear on each program.

Plans call for the inclusion of Mayo General hospital in Galesburg and Percy Jones General hospital in Battle Creek, Mich., in this radio circuit later.

Vaughan hospital is arranging a weekly program of its own to be aired from its post theater over WLS. The program will be built around a 22 piece orchestra, featuring both concert and swing music, under the direction of Warrant Officer Max Sittenfeld. Sgt. Buddy Clark, who sang on the Hit Parade in the pre-Sinatra era, will be the vocalist, and Pvt. Henri Rose, the piano vocalist. A service man, returned from overseas, will be interviewed on each broadcast. First program is scheduled for 1:45 next Friday.

Frances Langford, Bob Hope's songstress, and Spike Jones and his City Slickers will replace Charlie McCarthy and company for the summer. Hope will go overseas again in June, possibly to Berlin, or India.

W-G-N is introducing a novel musical combination in a new series of broadcasts at 3:45 p. m. today. The musicians call the program the Double Daters. They are Lola Hill, pianist; Stanley Ogle, guitarist; Marie Renaldo, accordionist, and Russell Gehrt, string bass player. They all sing, too.

The Western Society of Engineers, meeting tonight at 205 Wacker dr., will hear a discussion on post-war broadcasting and television by Stephen W. Pozgay of the electronics department of the General Electric company.

Kathleen Norris, the novelist who has written about 80 books in association with her husband, Charles G. Norris, has turned to radio serial writing at 64. She is doing the scripts for "Bright Horizon" in her home at Palo Alto, Cal. She gets $750 a week [according to the Associated Press] and will be advanced to $1,000 if her scripts turn out well.

$3,400,000 TAXES PAID BY 90,000 IN FIRST WEEK

On the basis of real estate taxes already paid, County Treasurer Schlaeger predicted yesterday that delinquent 1944 taxes will set a new low figure.

In 5½ days last week, $3,400,000 was paid, 70 per cent of the payments being made for two instalments. Approximately 50,000 tax bills were paid thru the mail as against 40,000 tax payers who appeared in person. Schlaeger said payments by mail will facilitate the work of his office and help to prevent crowding as the May 1 penalty date draws near.

CITIES SERVICE COMPANY and its subsidiaries sold 337 million dollars worth of goods and services last year, 63 million more than in 1943. Behind this is a story of increased service to the Nation.

Since Pearl Harbor, Cities Service has invested more than 110 million dollars of its own money in facilities now devoted to the production of war materials. As far as is known, that is more than any other oil company has spent for this purpose in the same period.

When peace returns, these same ultra-modern plants will continue to serve the Nation with the finest in petroleum and natural gas products.

HIGHLIGHTS of SERVICE in 1944

58% INCREASE in refinery runs

In 1944—53 million barrels were run. Today the new Tutwiler Refinery at Lake Charles, La., alone processes more than 80 thousand barrels daily.

48% INCREASE in oil sales

In 1943—natural and manufactured gas sales were 213 billion cubic feet.* Customers served at the year-end numbered 551,046.
In 1944—sales were 240 billion cubic feet. Customers served on December 31st were 569,777.
The new pipeline from the Hugoton gas fields is currently delivering in excess of 200 million cubic feet daily to Kansas City, Wichita and other war industry areas.

7% INCREASE in kilowatt hour sales

In 1943—sale of electric energy was 2.7 billion kilowatt hours.* Customers served at the year-end were 404,189.
In 1944—electric energy sales were 2.9 billion kilowatt hours. Customers on December 31st were 411,963.

21 OCEAN-GOING TANKERS (14 government-owned) carried to the war zones 9.4 million barrels of aviation gasolene, fuel oil and other products—58% more than in 1943. They also carried trucks, planes and PT boats as super cargo.

2,869 TANK CARS hauled 11 million barrels 170 million car miles.

5,938 MILES of owned and affiliated pipelines carried 135.2 million barrels of oil, a 10% increase over 1943.

RESEARCH LABORATORIES of Cities Service developed and manufactured Hydrogen Detectors for submarines, Oil Immersion Heaters and Aviation Power Provers for planes, special temperature-resistant lubricants for Signal Corps, radar and aviation equipment, and chemicals from natural gas useful in the war.

Financial Stability—In the past fourteen years, Cities Service has invested more than 413 million dollars in new construction and acquisitions. Net reduction in consolidated funded debt, notes payable and preferred stock was more than 200 million dollars.

Employee Loyalty—Here in this community are many employees of the Cities Service family. To them the management pays sincere and grateful tribute for their loyalty, skill and perseverance, which made these achievements possible.

CITIES SERVICE COMPANY

YES! YOU CAN GET EXTRA RED POINTS!

ROASTS ARE SCARCE THESE DAYS, and much of the meat you get is not so fat. Butter's scarce, too, and you have to count more and more on "drippings" for your cooking. But there are still plenty of ways to fill the fat-salvage can and get precious extra red points! Clip this check list—pin it up in your kitchen—follow its suggestions.

Used fats are urgently needed to help make medicines, explosives, synthetic rubber, soaps—civilian and military—paints, fabrics and other essentials on the battlefield and home front. So won't you save every drop every day?

FISH—you're using more of it these days. Scrape every drop of grease from the pan in which you fry or broil it.

FRIED SAUSAGES—they're plentiful and yield lots of grease in the frying pan. (And if you parboil them first, don't forget to save the water and skim off the grease!)

UTILITY MEATS—are good for stews and soups. Skim the grease as they cook. Chill them afterwards and scoop off the fat that hardens on top. (Gravies too!)

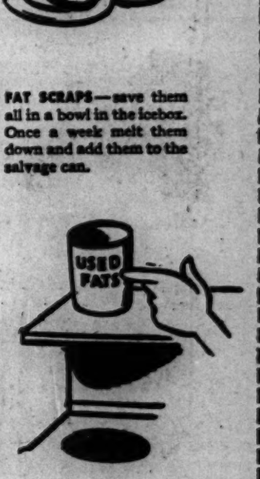
FAT SCRAPS—save them all in a bowl in the icebox. Once a week melt them down and add them to the salvage can.

AND BE SURE to keep the can right out where it's handy! Drop by drop, spoonful by spoonful, it will fill up faster than you think. Then rush it to your meat dealer and get those 2 red points and 4 cents for every pound of fat. Start today! This message has been approved by WFA and OPA and paid for by Industry.



Miss Singleton Leaving Girls' Latin School

BY JUDITH CASS

WHEN the Girls' Latin school opens its doors for the new season next September the school will be under the guidance of a new headmistress. Miss Elizabeth Singleton is retiring after 16 years in that post to join her family in the east. News of Miss Singleton's retirement was received with regret over the week-end by the parents of students enrolled in the school, which during her period of service increased its enrollment and the size of its plant considerably.

The new headmistress, Miss Annie Winsor Allen, will be in Chicago for a few days later this month and will meet Latin school parents at a tea on April 20 in the Fortnightly club. In September she will move here from Boston, Mass., where since 1941 she has headed the French department at the Winsor school, founded by her aunt, Miss Mary Winsor.

Miss Singleton, a well loved figure in academic circles, has been president of the National Association of Principals of Schools for Girls for several years. Her successor, a cum laude graduate of Radcliffe college, also received her M. A. there and studied at the Sorbonne and at the University of Grenoble in France. Previously she was on the staffs of the Baldwin school in Bryn Mawr, Pa., and the Wheeler school in Providence, R. I.

Miss Eloise R. Tremain has resigned as principal of Ferry Hall school, a position she has held since 1918, and Miss Frances Gibson Wallace has been appointed her successor, the school announces. Miss Wallace is an alumna of Vassar college and received her M. A. from Columbia university. She will begin her work in Lake Forest this summer.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Mitchell Froelicher of the Fountain Valley school, Colorado Springs, yesterday announced the engagement of their daughter, Deborah, to Fisher Howe, son of Mrs. Lawrence Howe of Winnetka, and the late Lawrence Howe.

Mrs. Froelicher is a granddaughter of Mrs. Hans Froelicher and the late Dr. Froelicher, who was acting president of Goucher college, Baltimore, Md. She is a graduate of Bennington college.

Mr. Howe, who is now teaching at the Fountain Valley school, is a grandson of Mrs. Howland Davis of New York. He was graduated from Harvard in 1935. Mr. Howe received a medical discharge from the navy last December after duty in England, the Mediterranean and the Pacific. He held the rank of lieutenant.

Junior League News

Taking into consideration that many of its provisional members already are working in day time volunteer jobs or following careers, the Evanston Junior league has planned several night lectures during its provisional training course, which will open Wednesday. The provisional members will be welcomed into the league at a luncheon today in the Orrington hotel when the new president, Mrs. Edward Cullen, will accept the gavel from Mrs. Harold Yegge, who has guided the league for the last two years.

Members of the outgoing and incoming boards will meet with the provisional members at tea on Wednesday in the league clubrooms. In the next few days they will learn about civic and welfare affairs from a member of experts, including Wilfred Reynolds, director of the Council of Social Agencies of Chicago.

Atten-shun!

In reference to the discussion regarding the use of "Attention: Mr. Jones"—many years ago I worked for an employer who had served in World War I. He was opposed to the use of "attention," as it reminded him of his war career. So he requested me to say, "Mr. Jones—please." I've continued this policy and have noticed that many who have received my letters have adopted this form.

To identify myself: I work in the office which has the lace edged star [for a WAVE] in the service flag.

The Value of a Greeting

An article in the column recently reminded me of Mary McIlvaine, who gave me my first temporary job in Chicago. Every morning she sat at her desk and bowed and smiled at each of the 80 girls in her department as they arrived. I often have thought how her neck and facial muscles must have ached by 8:45 and yet how much her effort contributed toward a pleasant day. She gave us courage, something sorely needed by the business girls who were newcomers to Chicago during the depression.

Dis and Data

A reader called to say there is another mountain peak named for a woman, Mount Edith Cavell in the Canadian Rockies. Any others? . . . Career girls certainly are studying. The class in advertising sponsored by the advertising women of New York continued to hold a record attendance straight thru Easter and the allurements of spring finery. . . . Also, a Chicago course in grammar and public speaking has a long waiting list. . . . A courteous V-mail letter has arrived from the sergeant who asked to have a valentine box of candy sent to his wife, and somehow this department never can get used to the idea of any one fighting the war thanking any of us at home. We owe the thanks—and always.

Jakob Gimpel Discloses Big Pianistic Gift

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

Jakob Gimpel, a pianist heretofore known here only for his recordings and his incidental contributions to Hollywood sound tracks, made his debut in recital at the Civic theater yesterday afternoon.

There are some inconsistencies and inequalities in Mr. Gimpel's playing, but at its best it brings him within arguable distance of the front rank of pianists. He has tremendous technical facility, and he is most convincing when he discovers music that poses both musical and technical problems simultaneously. This quirk made his performance of the Brahms-Paganini Variations—not content with the sufficiency that most pianists find in the first volume, Mr. Gimpel tirelessly went thru the second as well—the outstanding part of the program.

Nothing in this monumental compilation of difficulties gave the pianist the slightest concern, tho his slower than customary tempo for the glissando octave variation may have indicated a degree of caution. But while indulging in a prodigious display of keyboard prowess, Mr. Gimpel never lost sight of the expressive musical content of the music, and the result was as definitive an interpretation of this test piece as one is likely to encounter even in this day of pianistic abundance.

Earlier the pianist had given Chicago its second hearing of Prokofieff's Seventh Sonata, introduced here by Horowitz last season. It was a brave effort, and the first movement at least was set forth with incisive clarity and lucidity. No doubt Mr. Gimpel thought to render the slow movement a service by minimizing the maudlin sentiment of its main tune, but the effect did not quite come off; nor did the finale, with its irregular seven-eighths rhythm, achieve the expected excitement in spite of the fluency with which it was tossed off.

Arriving at Chopin, Mr. Gimpel played such smaller pieces as the C-sharp minor Mazurka and the F major Etude, opus 10—an encore—beautifully. But the G minor Ballade suffered from an effort to be original, whipped up to a final tempo that not even a pianola could have negotiated successfully, and the A-flat Polonaise likewise got out of hand just enough to destroy its majestic line.

For his final encore Mr. Gimpel out-Horowitzed Horowitz and his "Stars and Stripes" transcription by playing his own Fantasie in modern style on the army air corps song, a flyer into the upper stratum of piano technic which dropped its musical bombs with unerring aim.

A Brahms sonata is not the best vehicle with which to gauge a violinist's capabilities, but it was all the afternoon's schedule permitted hearing of Dorothy Cline's recital at Kimball hall. The sonata was the so-called "Meistersinger," in A major, and while it was cleanly played by the young violinist, greatly aided by Mildred Kaye's competent reading of the piano part, it did not suggest that she has yet acquired much warmth of feeling or true perception of style.

Dorothy Maynor was in love with mezza voce yesterday, and considering how persuasive she made it, so was I. The chubby little Negro's soprano voice has not turned out to be one of the wonders of the world, as we first thought it might be, but it remains one of the world's pleasures. It is the kind of voice you are born with or you don't have, because not even by black magic can you acquire it. Once in a while, as yesterday when she sent Massenet's aria, "Il est doux, il est bon," soaring thru the Civic Opera house, she is a true lyric soprano, with the range, the lustrous radiance and even, now and then, the luscious turn of phrase that makes you think of a Mason or a Muzio.

But that is the Maynor exception, and you can't afford to count on it. Most of the time nowadays she sings in that magic mezza voce, and when it is a gay song mischief brims from her eyes and mouth and spills into the music. If she wants to stem this tide of irrepressible gaiety, she closes her eyes tight, and sings. That was the way her lovely use of mezza voce started yesterday, in the classic style of Handel's aria from "Rodelinda." But the twinkle started with the lacy fretwork of Fauré's "Mandoline." It flirted with mischief for Brahms' "Meine Liebe ist grün," was muted to ecstatic serenity for "Feldeinsamkeit," and bubbled into brilliance in Strauss' "Ständchen."

It is curious that this exquisitely lyrical voice has so little trace of the racial. Marian Anderson's contralto, Roland Hayes' tenor, Paul Robeson's baritone, all mine their rarest riches from native resources. But most of the time Maynor's voice is a bird in her throat, not imprisoned, but living there because that is its home. Some of the time it sings the murmurous song of the muted nightingale, and sometimes, as in Hageman's "Me Company Along," it soars into the wild blue. Only when it droops in placement, or when it turns to spirituals, does Maynor's voice sound like the voice of her people.

So we really had two recitals yesterday. The aftermath of spirituals had camp meeting fervor, and the white person doesn't live who can sing them that way. Songs of the heavenly chariot, songs of death, of the shoes that walk all over God's heaven, of the old time religion—no bird sang them, but a Negro woman, straight from her heart and the sweetness of her spirit. I've heard that kind of singing when a deep south camp meeting reached the shouting stage, but it's next door to unheard of in recital.

All the spirituals were arranged by Ernst Victor Wolff, who was Miss Maynor's magnificent accompanist. Mr. Wolff is a celebrated harpsichordist and pianist, and you may own his record album of songs of the Bach family. He did for Miss Maynor's singing what Emanuel Bay does for Jascha Heifetz' violin.

Disbandment of Ambulance Corps Is Told

An announcement that the Auxiliary Ambulance Corps of Illinois, Inc., is being dissolved, as voted unanimously at a special meeting, will reach its 250 members and associate members shortly. The news was made known Friday by Mrs. Royden J. Keith, president; Mrs. Herbert C. Hoagland, secretary, and Mrs. William Merrick, treasurer.

The decision was made because in the rapidly changing war picture of today the purpose for which the corps was organized seems to have been fulfilled, the officers said. It is hoped that its volunteer workers will carry on as a new organization devoted to the corps' most recent work, that of rehabilitation.

The corps was the outgrowth of a former organization, the British and American Ambulance corps, which was sending ambulances and other equipment abroad before the United States entered the war. After Pearl Harbor the old group closed its offices nationally and members of the midwest committee formed this corps and received a state charter Sept. 18, 1942.

Since then a comparatively small group of workers supplied more than $13,000 in equipment to aid in the prosecution of the war. Included were a fully equipped mobile field kitchen, sent to England; two ambulances, three motor cars for the Red Cross blood bank fleet, 100 nurse kits, and exercycles for the Marine hospital and to the hospital at Great Lakes.

The corps' final commitment is a sun deck and furnishings for Gardiner General hospital. Mrs. Charles H. Grubb, Mrs. Grier Patterson, Mrs. Carl A. Moore, Mrs. C. Mabee Lauritzen, and Mrs. Theodore W. Passailaigue are on the committee responsible for the sun deck and which may be the nucleus of the proposed new group to carry on rehabilitation work.

Thru the Looking Glass

A brisk business woman we know popped in especially to see us the other day; she'd found the cure for spring fever, for war nerves, for the subtle dejection that creeps over you when you see white oleo on the table, for the frustrated feeling when you can't afford the knock-out new suit. And it wasn't a tonic we'd suggested—a sprightly violet perfume.

No, ma'am. It was a lily of the valley—and why hadn't we told her about it before? She'd met a friend wearing the blithest, cleanest, sweetest perfume in the world, had promptly bought some herself, and wanted us to sing about it from the housetops or, if not in that kind of voice, from the soundless confines of this column.

Well, we have, but we'll do it again. We know it well. You'd have to search far and wide before you'd find anything more delectable than the toilet water in lily of the valley that has our friend hypnotized. It's lasting, but not loud, and it's the very scent of spring.

You can own it, and you should if you like a bit of gay floral fragrance that does for your drab spirits what a frothy white touch does for your dark suit. But if you really want the treat extraordinary you ought to own, in addition to the toilet water, a little flask of Grecian bath oil, a box of dusting powder, and some sleek satin sachets in which this same marvelous fragrance is heavily concentrated. A lily of the valley garnishment to your bath makes you feel just as fresh, just as beautiful as the flowers themselves really are.

All of these things, by the way, are lovely things to give if there are brides on your shopping list. They're exquisitely packaged in snowy white and clear green, with extra trimming of sprigs of the flowers, very real looking. Not too expensive either.

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ

Q. 1—Partner opens with one heart and you hold:

♠ Q J 10 7 ♥ J 7 5 2 ♦ 8 5 3 ♣ A 6

What is your response?

A.—Two hearts. The temptation to respond with one spade should be resisted. The point is that the hand is not strong enough to show both spades and hearts in which case the raise of the major suit is obligatory. If partner fails to take further action you need not fear the loss of a game.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠ Q 10 3 ♥ Q 10 6 4 ♦ 9 4 ♣ 8 4 3 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
3 spades	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
5 hearts	Pass	4 hearts	Pass
5 diamonds	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Five spades. On the surface this may appear drastic, you should realize that you have made a weakness response and that you actually have two cards that are equivalent to one because partner must have been allowing for the likelihood of losing to both of them. You have shown your heart support and it may be vital for partner to know that you have the missing link in spades, since you wish to contract for six hearts at all events.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

♠ 10 9 5 4 ♥ A K 9 6 ♦ Q J 10 7 5 ♣ —

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
3 clubs	Double	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four clubs. With this powerful holding you should be willing to commit the hand to a game in whichever of the three suits partner prefers. In fact slam possibilities should be considered. No thought should be given to leaving the double in. A double of an opening three club bid should be treated more or less in the same manner as a double of a one bid.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠ Q 7 ♥ A Q 9 5 ♦ A Q ♣ K 10 9 6 4

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	4 spades	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—In view of partner's strong rebid and the promoted value of the queen of spades you should give him one more chance to head for slam. Our preferred bid is four no trump, provided it is not intended as Blackwood. This type of hand is not well adapted to the use of the Blackwood convention, because it is not merely a question of aces. An alternate bid is to raise the spades. The no trump is preferred because if partner does not choose to go on it is desirable to have the opening lead come up to your hand.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♠ A Q 2 ♥ K Q J 9 7 ♦ A K J 7 5 ♣ —

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
2 hearts	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	4 clubs	Pass
4 diamonds	Pass	4 no trump	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. There has been no agreement on a suit and it is evident that partner likes neither hearts nor diamonds, but has a pretty good club suit and the king of spades. This is just about as convenient a place to park as you will find. With no satisfactory trump suit you must abandon hopes for slam.

Q. 6—Partner opens with two spades and you hold:

♠ J 9 7 ♥ Q 6 ♦ 8 6 4 2 ♣ A 5 3 2

What is your response?

A.—Three spades. You hold normal trump support for an opening two bid and it is advisable to agree on the trump suit reserving the option to show the ace of clubs on the next round of bidding if it appears desirable to do so. This method is preferred to responding with three clubs. If you do so partner might gain the impression you have a club suit.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠ A K 6 4 2 ♥ K 4 ♦ 7 5 ♣ 9 5 3 2

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 diamond	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
Pass	2 hearts	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. It is quite evident that partner is not trying to go places, but is merely contesting the part score. If he had anything worth singing about he would surely have bid one heart right over the one diamond bid. You can stand hearts, he may not be able to stand spades.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠ A K 10 2 ♥ 7 4 3 ♦ A K 5 ♣ 7 6 5

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Double	3 spades	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Despite the four honor tricks this is not a stronger playing hand. Partner has convinced that he has not a good hand so that there could be no hope for game. Partner is merely trying to obstruct the enemy. If he had ... [illegible]

The "Sink of Iniquity" — Mrs. B Tells how she Fights Germs

1 With everybody using the same sink, I used to just groan and wait for sickness to spread from one child to another. "How can I help it?" I asked the doctor.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

An agency has requested our aid in obtaining three small cribs and bedding for triplets, whose arrival in a home already overcrowded and without modern facilities has presented a grave health problem. Covered paper cartons serve as makeshift cribs for two of the babies, and the frailest member of the trio will be kept at the hospital until more adequate supplies for their care can be assured in the home. The father's wages are insufficient to provide these necessities in this emergency.

Mrs. B., a social worker of a north side agency, is interested in obtaining a nursery chair, buggy, and play pen for a baby boy who is in poor health. His mother has had great difficulty in supporting herself and her child, whom she has had to place in a foster home temporarily. The worker will arrange transportation for these articles.

Baby's Trying Behavior Can Be Remedied

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

When your baby gets so that he can walk and talk, there are many things which you want him to do, or not to do, that you can get across to him with your words, your approval [or sometimes your disapproval], and your tone of voice.

But when he can't talk and can't walk, and when his span of interest in toys, pots, pans, or even measuring cups, is short because he still has few manual skills, and when he can't really know what your words mean, when his age still is measured in months, it is much more difficult to cope with a kind of trying behavior that has settled down into a habit.

Then you have to put your wits to work with a vengeance. And at that, once in a while you have to wait for him to do what today's busy doctors are a little too prone to advise distracted mothers to do: "Wait till he outgrows it."

Most of the time tho, it simply isn't practical—nor good for a baby either—to sit back and let time take care of every difficult phase he is going thru. Like the mother who wrote me distractedly about her little 11 month old Anne. "It is practically impossible to dress her," she wrote. "She's perfect about everything else—sleep, food, and bath—but she begins to twist and wriggle the instant I begin to get her ready for her carriage. It takes two of us to do it."

"Our" baby at eight months is behaving exactly like this, being extremely strong and agile generally. Now we give him a tiny furry Teddy-bear that belonged to his father to play with while diaper, leggings, and sweater go on, first wheeling the carriage in view before we begin, as he loves going out.

There are no rules "in the book" for lots of situations that arise. You have to use your wits at times. But there's light ahead, because a loved and understood baby soon grows old enough to be easily managed.

BY MARY MEADE

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

In tallying up the food department's records of telephone calls and mail requests for last month I was surprised at the number of canning questions which came up. Homemakers are wanting to get last year's canning troubles ironed out well in advance, for indications are that this year will be the biggest home canning season of all.

I'm going to answer some of those canning questions in a Sunday column soon, but would like to suggest that many of the answers to home canning difficulties may be found in the booklet my department prepared last summer. It's called "War Time Canning Guide," and will be mailed to any reader upon receipt of 7 cents in stamps.

"War Time Canning Guide" tells you how to can by all of the recommended methods, gives complete directions for using the various types of canning lids which are available, suggests tests for seal and describes how to store home canned goods. There's a chart to inform you how many quarts of processed food to expect from a bushel of tomatoes or a crate of strawberries. Directions are given for canning fruits without sugar, too. We think this is a real 7 cent bargain!

While you are working in that 1945 war garden you'd better make canning plans. If you want to can vegetables and have no pressure cooker you'd better start sleuthing for one. Pressure cooking is the only safe way to process vegetables, with the exception of tomatoes. If you've made shift for a water bath canner in previous years, it may be well to consider purchasing this kind of utensil, for it is especially designed for processing your fruits conveniently. As long as we're going to can in earnest this year, we should be properly equipped to save ourselves time, effort, and prevent possible spoilage from use of inefficient utensils.

Two other canning season booklets prepared by my staff are "Mary Meade's Best Jams and Jellies," 25 cents by mail, and "Favorite Pickles and Relishes," 5 cents. Stamps are not likely to lose themselves in a letter, which is why we prefer stamps to coins. Address mail orders for booklets to Mary Meade, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

By the way, it is not necessary to send stamps or money in letters requesting recipes. All we want is a stamped, self-addressed envelope in which to send the recipe or the wanted cookery advice. There is a charge only for mimeographed or printed booklets.

TURN IN WASTE FATS!

On the Calendar

The Chicago chapter of the American Friends of Poland, which usually presents luncheon speakers at its meetings, is planning an unusual program for 3 p. m. on Thursday in the Arts club—a lecture and concert of Chopin music. The guest artist will be the Polish pianist and composer, Zygmunt Stojowski, now on a concert tour.

Mr. Stojowski will be introduced by Rudolph Ganz, who met him at the chateau of the late Jan Paderewski in Morge, Switzerland. The artist and his wife, who is a South American, will come directly to Chicago from Denver, Colo. The day after the concert Polish Consul General Julyus Szygowski and Mrs. Szygowski will give a reception for them at home.

The Chicago chapter of the American Scandinavian Foundation will hold a luncheon meeting at 12:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Sherman hotel. Robert Staermose, member of the Danish parliament, and Arne Skouen, Norwegian novelist and playwright, will be special guests. Both Mr. Staermose and Mr. Skouen have taken active parts in the resistance movements in their countries.

Dolls, each with its own wardrobe made by the board members of St. Frances' guild of the St. Mary's Home for Children, will be sold at the guild's annual benefit today in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel. Proceeds from the sale will go toward the home's scholarship fund. The bridge and tea party, which is held each spring to raise money for the Episcopal institution for little girls, will be preceded today by a book review by Florence Bourke Ellis. Mrs. George White Traver is chairman of the party.

Looking at Hollywood

—By Hedda Hopper—

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 8—Vincent Price first caught my eye when he played Prince Albert to Helen Hayes' Victoria. He has given some fine screen performances. He was responsible for holding up the end of "The Royal Scandal." But when he lifted a beautiful baritone voice in "Dragonwyck," Ernst Lubitsch got an idea. Price's voice is so good Lubitsch is going to fashion a picture around it. Price doesn't care to sing, but he finally broke down and confessed that in his salad days he traveled over Europe with the Yale Glee club. . . . Hollywood is pretty well known for its divorces, newcomers, and heartbreaks, so it's nice to tell about a comedy team celebrating its 20th year—Laurel and Hardy. "The Bullfighters" was their 170th picture. . . . I wonder whether Elliott Roosevelt will like his wife, Faye Emerson, as a brunette. She left off being blonde for the picture she's now working in. Her stand-in stayed up most of one night having her hair changed to the same color.

It Works Both Ways

I'm not surprised Charles Chaplin, insisted upon another jury trial, hoping that women would predominate. After all, he was successful twice before. And yet if he hadn't been so successful with the ladies, he wouldn't be needing a third trial. . . . Since Bob Hope's bringing out another book, don't tell me he's giving up acting for writing. O, come, Bob—make up with Paramount and get back on that screen. . . . Fibber McGee has written a song, "My Molly," and dedicated it to his wife. I don't wonder. Molly's a star wherever she goes. It doesn't matter what glamour girl's in the room—when Molly starts using her little girl voice, everybody stops to listen, laugh, and applaud. It's amazing how few people know that's Molly's voice. . . . Diana Lynn got her dates mixed when three boy friends—Robert Walker, Lorin Tindale, and William Edwards—showed up on the set of "Our Hearts Are Growing Up" almost together. No, they didn't leave as the "Three Musketeers."

Not News to Us

Broadwayites carry the word back east that Ken Murray's "Black-Outs of 1945" are better than anything on the Gay White Way. Our citizens have thought so for three years. . . . Thomas Mitchell goes right back where he belongs—in the big time, with Clark Gable and Greer Garson in "Strange Adventure." . . . Ray Collins plays the district attorney in "Leave Her to Heaven." . . . A teen-age boy answered Otto Kruger's ad for a gardener. These were his terms: "If I'm bossed, it'll cost you 50 cents an hour. If I'm let alone I'll work for 40." . . . Frank Fay's tome is called "How to Be Poor." . . . Mary Pickford celebrated her birthday yesterday. . . . Wonder if Irina Baronovo, who's in Mexico City, will stop off here for a visit with Ray Milland before returning to the big city.

He's No Carbon Copy

There was talk about John Carradine being a bigamist. But that hasn't prevented Otto Preminger from signing him as a fortune teller in "Fallen Angel" with Linda Darnell and Alice Faye. As a fortune teller he can shake out his long hair and spout Shakespeare to his heart's content. I heard somebody say the other night, "Tell me—do humming birds nest in that mane?" . . . Lester Cowan and William Wellman took their picture "G. I. Joe" and previewed it in San Diego. They showed it at a kid's matinee at Long Beach next day, Santa Barbara that night. If audience reaction was any indication, it's slated for a success. . . . Cuba's going to give Mexico some stiff competition this month, because Vivian Della Chiesa is guest star of the opera company there. She'll also discuss a picture which Cuban backers declare will have a million dollar production. With the Italian Opera company, she'll sing "Tosca," "La Boheme," and "La Traviata."

Household Forum

—By Louise Bargelt—

Mrs. Ed W., Chicago—After removing paint, which has spilled on windows, with a razor blade, I clean any stains left by wiping with hot vinegar. For the removal of mineral deposits which cling to the inside of a pitcher I fill the pitcher with a mixture of tea leaves and vinegar and shake this well. Water and ammonia will brighten a vinegar cruet.

Molly G., Elgin, Ill.—I have found that the secret of a successful job of polishing the inside of crystal glassware with a little crumpled newspaper is to have the inside of the glass slightly damp before starting the polishing.

Ruth F., Battle Creek, Mich.—As soon as I find a fingermark on a white patent leather accessory I remove it with a cloth dipped in cold milk. Then I polish it well with a soft cloth.

"WHAT A BLONDE"

By Mae Tinée

Leon Errol is a lingerie tycoon who is denied gas for his limousine because his business isn't essential, meat because he insulted his butcher, and peace of mind because his house becomes inhabited by a number of chorines during his wife's brief absence. Wifey comes home, and a blue nosed but necessary business man comes to call with the result that there is much running in and out of bedrooms, sneaking down hallways, etc.

BY ARCH WARD

THE rehabilitation program of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in the state of Washington received a $95,000 cash gift from horse racing last year. . . . "V. F. W." days were designated at the Longacres track in Seattle and now the Hyde Park-Kenwood post is contemplating the same type of program in the Chicago racing area. . . . Maj. Ednyfed H. Williams, chairman of the Illinois racing board and of the National Association of Racing Commissions, has invited governors of the 48 states to name a committee to promote a "D-day" program of racing for disabled veterans on the first anniversary of the allied invasion of France, June 6. . . . Now that the resumption of racing seems to be just around the corner, the problem of obtaining enough competent jockeys is demanding the attention of turf officials. . . . The American Trainers' association has suggested that stables which develop riders be given a three pound weight allowance after the usual five pound apprentice period has expired. . . . Frank Mancuso, Browns' catcher and younger brother of the veteran Gus, tells how Gus informed him a couple of months ago that he had decided to retire. . . . "There's one club I'd like to play with," explained Gus, "and that's the Boston Red Sox." . . . That night Gus had a call from the Phillies. . . . "They asked me what I considered a fair salary," continued the elder Mancuso, "and I simply mentioned what I had received from the Giants last season—and, holy smokes, I pretty near dropped the phone when the man on the other end said he'd send me a contract for that figure. And whadda ya know? One hour after I'd mailed the Phil contract in I get an offer from the Red Sox." . . .

Pete Gray, the one-armed Brown, wears a fielder's glove devoid of padding and holds it practically with the tips of his fingers, almost the entire portion of his palm being bare when he catches a thrown or batted ball. . . . Len Schulte, Browns' rookie infielder, is in his fourth season of organized baseball and is going thru his first training grind. . . . Off-season employment has kept him away from camp the three previous years. . . . Last season Len reported to the Toledo Mud Hens an hour before the opening game, engaged in a throwing and infield drill, then entered the lineup and played 153 of the club's 154 game schedule. . . . "I missed one game, when a train connection kept me out of the first half of a double header," he explains. . . . Otto Graham, now in training at Glenview air station, weighs exactly the same as he did when he was making football history at Northwestern university. . . . Penn State baseball teams have won 165 games and lost 65 since Joe Bedenk was named coach in 1931. . . . Maj. John S. Pingel and Maj. Alton S. Kircher, both former Michigan State football stars, have been awarded the bronze star for meritorious service under fire in the European theater of war. . . . It couldn't have been that the reported near-brawl between Leo Durocher and Branch Rickey over Leo's radio activity was a build-up for the air show—or could it? . . . Eddie Stanky, the ex-Cub, who is recuperating from an attack of pneumonia in Mobile, will report to the Brooklyn Dodgers in Bear Mountain Wednesday.

In Other Words, Be Brief

It's none of my business, of course, and I don't like to say anything that will hurt your feelings, for I have always been very fond of you, but, now that you ask my opinion, I will say that experience has taught me that too much talking always makes matters worse and if I were in your place I wouldn't talk so much about it—simply say "no."

The Clock of Life

Right directly in front of me
On my desk a little clock stands;
It hasn't run for a long, long time,
Motionless are its hands.

And some one is always remarking to me,

But I merely smile to myself and pretend
That the comment had not been dropped.

For I know that the clock isn't running
That stands on my work desk's top;
I keep it that way to remind me that Time

BY EDWARD BURNS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Louisville, Ky., April 8—Ray Prim, a fine old gray haired gentleman fresh in from California, did much this afternoon to dissipate the Cub pitcher panic as he hurled almost perfect ball for four innings before going away with a 10 to 0 lead in a Cincinnati Reds-Cubs game in which Chicago eventually ran into a 19 to 5 victory. A crowd of 5,060 paying customers and 766 service guests viewed the proceedings.

During his four inning debut, Prim, who returned to Los Angeles last season to win 22 games for the Angels after spending 1943 with the Cubs, yielded no runs, only one hit, a single by Steve Mesner, struck out seven, and walked no one. Because of two errors on easy chances, one runner reached second base in the fourth inning.

Woodend Lasts One Inning

George Woodend, starter in Friday's game at Fort Knox, sought to come back after a day's rest but lasted only one inning, the fifth, in which the Cubs' lead was shortened to 10 to 4. Then the Cubs came back with seven runs in the sixth inning, and Mack Stewart, loser in Friday's game on a ninth inning homer by Dick Sipek, went in the sixth, pitched a homer to Kermit Wahl, then settled down and lasted to the finish.

While some allowance must be made for the fact that the Reds did not start any of their first line pitchers—they started with Schoolboy Herman Wehmeier, who will return tomorrow to his high school classes, and followed up with Guy Bush, John Orphal, and Hod Lisenbee. The slugging was a joy to behold. Roy Hughes played six innings in which he went to bat five times and made a triple, two doubles, and two singles. Frank Secory drove in five runs with a homer and a triple, then added a double. Every player in the opening lineup, except Prim, hit safely at least once and Ray drew one of Wehmeier's six passes and scored after his first trip to the plate.

Reds Defeat Louisville.

The Reds-Cubs game, like the one yesterday, was a double header, this time the Reds instead of the Cubs taking on the Louisville Colonels in the first contest. Like the Cubs yesterday, the Reds had to bear down to beat the Colonels, eventually taking an 8 to 6 decision.

The Cincinnati and Chicago teams returned tonight to their joint training base in French Lick and tomorrow will play what probably will be the last game of their series, tho a Tuesday game is a possibility.

The Cubs will break camp Wednesday and Thursday will be at Comiskey Park for the opener of their four game series with the White Sox.

NELSON SHOOTS RECORD 263 IN ATLANTA MEET

Atlanta, Ga., April 8 (AP)—Byron Nelson, Toledo, O., star, fired a four under par 65 for a total of 263 to win the $10,000 Iron Lung golf tournament today and set a new Professional Golfers association record for 72 holes.

Nelson earned $2,000 by his victory and finished nine strokes ahead of the runner-up, Sammy Byrd, who had a 67 for a four day total of 272.

Nelson carded six birdies and went over par on only two holes. His putting was sensational and he holed putts of from 15 to 35 feet.

It was his eighth victory of the winter tour of 17 tournaments, a new record. Jimmy Demaret won six in 1940. Nelson swept the last four tournaments, three in the Carolinas and the event completed today.

Beats Wood's Record

The former record for tournament play was 264, set by Craig Wood in the Metropolitan Open at Bloomfield, N. J., in 1940.

Nelson got off to a slow start with a bogey on the third hole, but started picking up steam when he birdied number five. He added birdies on the 8th and 9th to go out in 33. Coming home he virtually cinched the record by getting three consecutive birdies on the 13th, 14th and 15th. He got his par on the next two holes and coasted in with a bogey on the 18th for a 32. His scoring for the tournament was 64—69—65—65—263. In the 72 holes of play he knocked off a total of 22 birdies, and was over par on nine holes.

Byrd Finishes Strong

Byrd, who won $1,500 in war bonds by finishing second, got off to a shaky start, but finally steadied and made some remarkable recoveries.

Jimmie Hines of Amsterdam, N. Y., matched Nelson's 65 in a driving finish to win third place with 278. He nosed out Joe Kirkwood, of Philadelphia, who got a 70 for a 279. Harold McSpaden, of Sanford, Me., playing in the same threesome with Nelson, fired a one under par 68 to gain fifth place with 280. He was one stroke ahead of Sammy Snead of Hot Springs, Va., who carded a 71 for a 281.

Ed Furgol of Hinsdale, Ill., led the amateurs with 287. He scored a 73 today.

Low scorers in the tournament included:

Byron Nelson, Toledo, O.	198	65	263
Sammy Byrd, Redford, Mich.	205	67	272

Plan 10 Clubs This Year, 12 Next in National Pro League

BY EDWARD PRELL
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, April 8—The first official statement of the National Football league's operational plans for this season and 1946 came late this afternoon on the third day of a hush-hush meeting. Originally scheduled to end tonight, it now is thought at least two additional days will be required to complete the huddle.

The league, according to the prepared statement, is working on a permanent schedule plan, involving 12 teams, to be inaugurated in 1946. At the same time it was said that operation in 1945 in all probability will be on a 10 club basis, altho no definite decision on this has been reached. At 6 p. m. the meeting was adjourned until 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning without further progress reported.

Tigers Want Stadium Guarantee

Under the 10 team plan the homeless Brooklyn Tigers would merge for 1945 with the Boston Yankees. Tom Gallery, general manager of the Brooklyn club, is insisting that before he agrees to this proposal the league must give him assurance that the Tigers will be allowed to use Yankee stadium as their home base. That is why the delegates are concentrating on the 12 team, 12 game plan for '46, which would call for each team to meet each other once and also play a home-and-home series with a traditional rival.

The tentative lineup of traditional 1946 rivals is as follows: Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers, Washington Redskins and New York Giants, Cleveland Rams and Detroit Lions, Boston Yanks and Pittsburgh Steelers, Brooklyn Tigers and Philadelphia Eagles, Chicago Cardinals and the 12th team to be admitted.

An effort is being made to draw up an equitable schedule which would not be changed yearly, as has been the practice since the league was organized. The teams would play six games at home and six on the road. The difficulty which must be surmounted is drawing the playing chart so that the same teams will appear only once in two cities which would have two representatives — the Bears and Cards in Chicago and the Giants and Tigers in New York.

Keep Applications on File

At the same time the league bulletin revealed that a number of new applications for memberships are on file. Identities of the sponsors were not revealed. It also was noted that four franchise applications tabled a year ago still are considered alive as far as the league is concerned.

These were filed by Christy Walsh in Los Angeles, Anthony Morabito in San Francisco, the Sam Cordovano-James Brueil duo in Buffalo, and a syndicate in Baltimore. Since that time, Walsh, with Don Ameche, has been granted a franchise in the All-America conference. Morabito and the Buffalo sportsmen also are entered in the All-America. Whether this reminder from the National league was a sly invitation was not revealed.

X Marks the Spot

In the plans for 1946 the 12th team which would be added is designated as X. It was believed that Los Angeles is a possibility, tho a club official said today all but three of the 11 teams oppose bringing the Pacific coast metropolis into the organization.

The 12 team uniform schedule plan is a combination of ideas outlined earlier in the meeting by George Marshall, president of the Washington Redskins; Curly Lam-

LEAFS GAIN 2-0 CUP LEAD; BEAT RED WINGS, 2-0

Detroit, Mich., April 8 (AP)—Goalie Frank McCool scored his second straight shutout of the Stanley Cup finals as the Toronto Maple Leafs whipped Detroit's Red Wings, 2 to 0, before a crowd of 13,938 tonight and took a two game lead in the four out of seven series.

Protected, as he was, in the first game by an alert mass of defenders who forced the Red Wings to waste their shots on long distance drives, McCool held off every attack and made diving saves whenever the Wings threatened.

Ted Kennedy, Toronto center, turned in the first score of the game at 16:05 of the second period, and while the Red Wings attacked desperately but ineffectively, Defenseman Elwyn Morris counted the second goal at 12:03 of the final period.

Next 2 Games in Toronto

The teams now shift their play to Toronto for two games, and the Leafs could finish the series there by winning both contests.

Big Babe Pratt, stalwart of the Toronto defense, set up the first Leaf goal when he got his stick on the puck near his own nets and carried it the length of the ice. Partly blocked against the boards, he got a pass out to Kennedy who rapped home an eight foot shot.

Morris Evades Lumley

Morris' solo scoring dash started similarly, on a break-away with Liscombe pinning him behind the Detroit goal only to have him get loose, skate around the goal corner and, when Lumley dropped to save one shot, poke home his own rebound.

Thus the Red Wings started the cup final series in the same way they started the semi-final series with Boston, by losing the first two games on home ice.

BABE DIDRIKSEN 10 UNDER PAR TO LEAD JAMESON

Los Angeles, Cal., April 8 (AP)—In a display of golf consistency that had 3,000 spectators—mostly male—saucer-eyed, Babe Didriksen Zaharias of Los Angeles today won 4-up from Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Texas, in the first 36 holes of their 72 hole exhibition challenge match.

The long driving Babe jumped into a 4 hole lead on the first nine and clung to it despite Miss Jameson's constant down the middle play. The closest Betty got was a 3 down at the end of 27 holes.

Miss Jameson, national champion in 1939 and 1940, had an 81-75 for a total of 156, two under woman's par for the rolling Los Angeles Country club course. Mrs. Zaharias had a pair of 74s for a total of 148, 10 under par. Perhaps the outstanding feat of the afternoon was the birdie four Babe scored on the 530 yard 14th hole. She had 14 birdies and Betty 10.

The match was the first half of a special benefit being played for the Professional Golfers' association's rehabilitation fund for war veterans. The remaining 36 holes will be played April 29 at San Antonio.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Terre Haute, Ind., April 8—Detroit's Tigers who previously had been frisked for two decisions by the seventh place White Sox, took charge of the latter this afternoon and they weren't gentle. They clubbed Orval Grove and Bill Dietrich heavily and the two recent holdouts were additionally unnerved by six mistakes in the field by their mates. The result was a 15 to 9 success for the Detroiters who were led along the full nine inning route by the illustrious Paul [Dizzy] Trout.

As an exhibition it probably was satisfactory for the 5,100 of Trout's fellow citizens present and the Tigers didn't mind collecting a total of 18 hits but for James Dykes, the Sox boss, it was just so much grief.

Tigers Score 5 in Seventh

The most persistent leaks in the Sox defense were around shortstop, where Dykes employed his two leading candidates. Cass Michaels started there and remained for six innings, during which time he messed up two plays. For the rest of the way Dan Reynolds, the draftee from Newark, performed there and he, too, blundered twice.

The Tigers' first scoring act at Grove's expense began with Michaels booting York's grounder at the start of the second inning. Doc Cramer added to the mixup by singling to left, the two runners advancing on Charley Hostetler's sacrifice. The bases were loaded with a pass to Joe Hoover and Bob Swift took advantage of the situation by plunking a double into left, York and Cramer scoring.

Schalk Guilty of Costly Error

The four run disturbance against Grove in the third began with Bill Nagel making a snappy one handed stop of Ed Mayo's hard grounder but heaving it wild to Grove who covered the bag. Hub Walker drew free transportation and York beat out a hit to Michaels, filling the bases with none out. Cramer followed with a short fly that either Moses or Hocket could have handled but Schalk barged into their territory to do the job. He did it by dropping the ball, Mayo scoring. Hostetler drove in two more by singling and the fourth counted on Hoover's long fly.

The foxy Trout was responsible for getting Dietrich into the three run jam in the sixth. Dizzy laid down a bunt toward third and beat it out. He was forced by Skeeter Webb. Mayo singled and so did Walker, Webb scoring. York was generously treated to a pass, loading the bases. Cramer's pop single into short center scored Jim Outlaw, who ran for Mayo, and Walker.

York Hits Home Run.

Dietrich's pain in the five run seventh started with singles by Hoover and Swift. It was intensified by doubles by Ed Borom and Walker with a little filler contributed by Reynolds' two base wild heave of Carl McNabb's roller. Then York furnished the piece de resistance by galloping around the base while Hockett was hurrying toward the distant center field wall in pursuit of a drive off the powerful Rudy's bat.

The Sox's half of the seventh can be dismissed merely by mentioning that there were singles by Schalk, Reynolds, Hockett, Curtright, Nagel, and Joe Orengo who made his Sox debut at third base, and a double by Moses. In the ninth when three Sox scored, Moses tripled and Hockett and Orengo doubled.

The fourth of the spring series tomorrow will see Joe Haynes and Ed Lopat performing for the Sox and Ex-Sailor Al Benton for the Tigers.

Bloomington, Ill., April 8 (Special)—Eight Peoria girls swept all four championships in the 16th renewal of the Illinois Women's Bowling association tournament which was concluded tonight, but Dorothy Miller of Chicago, the defending champion, finished her 1945 efforts by winning the scratch in both the singles and all events. National Pro League Plans 12 Game Card

Before yielding his territorial rights in New York, Mara has demanded assurance that there will be no schedule weaknesses in which the same unit will come into New York twice in the same season to play his team and the one operated by Capt. Dan Topping, owner of the Brooklyn Tigers. Sentiment among the other owners favors granting Brooklyn the right to play in Yankee stadium. Capt. Topping is one of the new owners of the New York baseball Yankees.

Still Threatens Withdrawal

Gallery's main argument is that Brooklyn is a part of New York and therefore it is only a matter of form to change from Ebbets field to Yankee stadium. He blocked Mara's plea that the league allow the Giants and Tigers alone to work out the problem, which has pushed almost all the other league items into the background. Gallery has declared that if his club is denied Yankee stadium it will withdraw and enter the All-America conference. This new organization will meet April 20 in Chicago.

HEATH REFUSES TO JOIN INDIANS; ASKS FOR TRADE

Indianapolis, Ind., April 8 (AP)—Jeff Heath reconsidered his acceptance of a Cleveland Indian contract and has decided not to play for Cleveland, Vice President Roger Peckinpaugh disclosed today.

Peckinpaugh said he received a letter from the husky outfielder which said: "After long and deliberate consideration I have decided not to report."

Peckinpaugh said he called Heath in Seattle to verity the contradictory letter and quoted Jeff as saying he no longer cared for Cleveland and wished to be traded. "He can sit out in Seattle forever, unless I can make a trade which will be of benefit to the team," the Cleveland executive asserted.

SWEDES BEAT VIKINGS, 2 TO 1, IN TITLE GAME

The Swedish-Americans defeated the Vikings, 2 to 1, to win the state soccer championship for the 1944-1945 season, and the Peel cup, emblematic of the achievement, in an overtime game in Hanson Park stadium yesterday. The defeat ended the Vikings' string of successive triumps at 25.

The first scoring of the match came only six minutes after the kick-off when Al O'Hare headed into the net from five yards after Nels Brostrom had forced a corner, setting up the Vikings' only marker.

Vikings Miss McDermott

For the next 36 minutes the teams battled on even terms. Brilliant defensive work by Steve Wisienski for the Vikings and Walter Schroader, Stanley Woodward, and Horace James of the Swedes, thwarted many scoring thrusts. After 40 minutes, however, John Petek of the Swedes evened the count at one-all by booting past Wisienski from three yards as the half ended.

The Swedes, playing against the breeze, sent Harold Anderson over twice, only to see his efforts nullified as the result of poor shooting by his forwards.

Goal Doesn't Count

After four minutes of the 30 minute overtime period, Anderson scored for the Swedes but the point was nullified by Referee Robert Jones. Then ensued an argument which held up the game for 13 minutes. Anderson then drove hard against the cross bar, the ball bounding across the goal line for what proved to be the winning point. The Vikings missed an excellent opportunity to tie the count when Ernie Kuehl's penalty shot resulted in a fine save by James.

Following the game Peter J. Peel, chairman of the Illinois Soccer commission, presented the Peel cup to the winning team.

Next Sunday the National Soccer league will observe its official opening with games scheduled in all divisions, starting a season which will last for three months.

COCHRAN, HOPPE OPEN CHICAGO MATCH TODAY

Welker Cochran of San Francisco will continue the cross country defense of his three-cushion billiards title this afternoon when he opens a week long series with Willie Hoppe of New York in Bensinger's Recreation, 131 S. Wabash av.

This afternoon's match will start at 3 o'clock and the evening event begins at 8:30. Games will be played at the same times every day this week. After each 60 point match Charles C. Peterson, who is making the tour with the defending champion and challenger, will give a trick shot demonstration.

RUSSELL MOON WINS OPENING DINGHY SERIES

Russell Moon, sailing his D class Frostbite dinghy 431, with Mrs. Lonni Pearl as crew, won the Chicago Yacht club's opening dinghy series yesterday in Belmont harbor. Skipper Moon tied with Lt. Roger Brett, U. S. N. R., an instructor at Abbott hall midshipmen's school, both yachtsmen scoring 23 points. Moon won more races, however, so took the seven race series. Mrs. A. Dowrie Jr. was Lt. Brett's crew. Herman T. Van Mell, with his wife as crew, was third with 20 points.

Altho none of the competing craft's sail was reefed in the gusty wind, none was capsized. The dinghies' only ballast is their crews. H. H. [Bert] Kimball, former club flag officer, piloted the crash boat.

ST. MEL FIVE WINS ST. PAT'S TOURNEY, 26 TO 24

St. Mel defeated St. John Cantius, 26 to 24 in an overtime game yesterday to win the St. Patrick Academy grammar school basketball tournament. Ed Palano was high point man for the St. Mel quintet with three baskets and two free throws for a total of eight points.

Bernbaum Tells Neglect of Cultural Work

Urbana, Ill., April 8 [Special]—Asserting that the present guidance of the University of Illinois is in "the wrong direction," with emphasis on technological, vocational, and material interests to the neglect of cultural values, Dr. Ernest Bernbaum, 66, professor of English for 29 years, today announced his retirement as a protest against this trend.

Dr. Ernest Bernbaum.

Dr. Bernbaum said he will leave Sept. 1. Under university rules professors may retire at 65 and must retire at 68. After retirement they receive a pension amounting to 50 per cent of their salary. Dr. Bernbaum might have retained his active status and full salary for two more years if he had wished to withhold his criticism and continue teaching, it was said.

'Adolescent Hysteria'

Salaries paid by the university to teachers of purely cultural subjects were the special target of a statement issued by Dr. Bernbaum in explanation of his retirement. He said the university's executives have fallen short in raising the salaries of such teachers to "a decent level," but have lavished money on an air field, sports buildings "for the encouragement of adolescent hysteria," and the salaries of athletic coaches.

Dr. Bernbaum said there is no uniformity in regard to the salaries of full professors, but that they range from $4,500 a year to $8,000 in some cases.

"I believe the university should be a center of liberal culture, and that the boy and girl who comes to Illinois for a liberal education should be able to get it from teachers who are competent and well paid," the professor said. "Third rate salaries mean third rate teachers."

Gov. Green Criticized

Dr. Bernbaum disclosed that on April 24, 1944, he made what he called an "outspoken" address at the annual meeting of the Phi Beta Kappa fraternity, of which he was then president. In this talk he criticized both Gov. Green and the president of the university for their asserted lack of interest in developing the university as "a center of intellectual enlightenment or civilizing inspiration."

In the Phi Beta Kappa address, Dr. Bernbaum bemoaned the fact that an alumni group was pressing for an immediate appropriation for a sports building to seat 20,000 spectators at high school basketball tournaments. He described the project as "not something for the legitimate encouragement of athletics for athletes' sake, but another temple of the materialistic and hedonistic god Bel, dedicated to the idolatry of indoor spectator sports, the incitement of adolescent mass hysteria, week-end hurly-burlies, and the pecuniary profit of sports writers."

Leadership Assailed

For the last 20 years, he said, most of the administrative officers "have not been seriously, militantly, and successively active in the cause of liberal education." The university, he said, has had no comparable leader since the death of "our great president, Edmund Jaynes James."

"The administration has done nothing to raise scholastic standards," he charged.

"On the contrary, it has been unduly worried about unfit college students who are too lazy or stupid to meet even our lowest requirements, and for them it has provided expensive rescue squads, thus using funds that are sadly needed to make better provision for honor students."

WIFE OF PRINCE BIBESCO DEAD IN BUCHAREST

BUCHAREST, Romania, April 8 (AP)—Elizabeth Asquith, Princess Bibesco, 48, daughter of the first Earl of Oxford and Asquith, and aunt of the present Lord Asquith, died yesterday while listening to a war news broadcast from London. She was the author of several books. She married Prince Antoine Bibesco in 1919 and lived in Washington with him from 1920 to 1926, where he served as Romanian minister to the United States.

BOOK SHOCKED CAPITAL

While her husband was minister to the United States in 1921, the Princess Bibesco gave Washington, D. C., a shock by writing a book of short stories entitled "I Have Only Myself to Blame." Her mother Margot Asquith, had also been a writer of plainspoken style.

The princess' book explained in broad terms why certain persons liked or disliked and married or did not marry other persons, and answered psychological questions with a frankness that surprised the diplomatic set in the capital. The princess' father had been prime minister of England.

NEW LOW IS HIT IN CONVENTIONS; PREDICT BOOM

Of the hundreds of applications made to the war committee on conventions to hold meetings in Chicago since the ban went into effect two months ago, only seven have been approved, it was disclosed yesterday by William J. Hennessy, executive vice president of the Chicago Convention bureau.

In pre-war days Chicago entertained an average of more than 800 important gatherings annually, with out of town attendance numbering about 1 million delegates a year. Present restrictions have cut this guest list to about one-hundredth of 1 per cent of its former size.

Of the seven meetings approved for Chicago, four were permitted under religious exemptions and three won approval as necessary to the nation's war and post-war programs. Two already have been held.

Despite present limitations Sherman J. Sexton, president of the convention bureau, predicted that Chicago will be called upon to entertain more meetings and trade shows than ever in the immediate post-war period. Plans for the city's future as a world air center will add to its popularity as a meeting place, he said.

10 INCHES OF SOIL TO BE LAID FOR STADIUM CIRCUS

More than 10 inches of soil, amounting to 500 loads of earth, will be placed over the floor of the Chicago Stadium today in preparation for the opening Friday of the 23 day run of the Barnes Brothers' circus. Today also will find attendants and technical advisers installing rigging, hanging rings, and setting up equipment on which more than 100 acts will be performed.

Among the new attractions of the show this year will be an Alice in Wonderland production, a streamlined version of Lewis Carroll's story, with a cast of 125.

Other acts on the bill include Terrell Jacobs and his lions and tigers, Victoria Zacchini, whose performance is the hazardous one of being shot from a cannon, and 100 high wire, trapeze, and other midair acts.

TAXES IMPERIL EXISTENCE OF A FAMILY FIRM

Heirs Get Debt; May Lose Business

BY THOMAS FURLONG
[Financial Editor]

The plight of the family business owned by individuals advanced in years is described by E. H. Martindale, president of a Cleveland, O., firm that manufactures electrical and mechanical maintenance equipment.

"I am a little past the age of 60 and if I should die at the present time, my sons, one of whom is with a company of combat engineers on the western front, would have to sell their war bonds, borrow the limit on their life insurance policies, raise money wherever possible and still probably would fall far short of raising enough cash to pay the inheritance tax," he said.

Martindale explained that the Martindale Electric company he heads is a closed corporation with 92 per cent of the stock owned by members of two families.

"Wealth" Not Exchangeable

The stock is not acceptable collateral for a bank loan. It would be difficult, he believes, to find an outside purchaser for part of the stock at a reasonable price even if his sons were willing to give up control of the business by disposing of part of their stock.

Martindale said that he is regarded as a "wealthy" person by his employes. He emphasized that his "wealth" is not exchangeable for goods and services as it would be if he worked for others and drew a salary. He is under continuous compulsion to build up his liquid assets against the day that the death tax strikes his business.

"Our books disclose that our present factory machinery and equipment cost $89,704 with another $10,726 for typewriters, desks and other office equipment, making an investment of $1,141.25 for each of our 88 employes," he said. "These are the tools of trade which we have supplied to them and without which they would have no employment."

Employes Have First Claim

With other funds employed by the company, including working capital and real estate, the total investment adds to $449,699 or $5,110 per employe. For practical purposes, the investment is "frozen."

The employes have the first claim on the earnings of the business, after which come the tax claims of the city, county, state, and the federal government.

The local and state taxes must be paid whether the company operates at a profit or not. The federal government also levies a tax of ¼ of 1 per cent on what the business is worth by the capital stock tax.

"Then if we make a profit," Martindale said, "the government collects a fat share and if we pay the profits out in dividends the government comes back for another large share."

Heirs Inherit Custodianship

Actually, Martindale added, he is only a custodian of a business operated for the benefit of others and at his death he would be passing on mainly a custodianship, rather than real wealth, to his children.

"Why should my sons be penalized for accepting this custodianship?" he asked.

Even before the death of an owner, he emphasized, the business is hobbled. It is often necessary for such a business to quit all expansion, reduce advertising and selling expenses, and otherwise retrench in order to withdraw cash to meet anticipated tax.

"This retrenchment may come at such a critical time in the life of a small business that its growth is permanently stunted or it may even be started on the downward path toward bankruptcy and liquidation," he declared.

Plan to Double Big Insurance Housing Fund

BY CHARLES GOTTHART
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, April 8—Metropolitan Life Insurance company's stake in large scale housing, already the biggest of any private agency in the country, will be doubled after the war, inquiry disclosed today.

Frederick H. Ecker.

Chairman Frederick H. Ecker said the company's present investment of nearly 100 million dollars will grow to twice that much as soon as men and materials for building are made available. Involved in the expansion are the construction of three new housing projects in New York City and the completion of two west coast developments which had been curtailed because of the war.

Fund Boosted 40 Millions

Ecker said the company's post-war fund had been increased by 40 millions in the last three months.

The city has given the company tax concessions under which taxes will be levied on present low valuations of land and existing buildings for 25 years. After that taxes are to be paid on the land and the new buildings as a whole.

A mass migration is under way in preparation for an early start on the largest of the three projects here—the 50 million dollar Stuyvesant Town development to be carried out under slum clearance legislation similar to that upheld by the Illinois Supreme court last January.

Permits Private Projects

New homes must be found in New York for about 3,300 families in an 18 block area on the lower east side where squalid tenements will be replaced by 35 fireproof apartment structures 13 stories high, containing 8,773 apartments and designed for a population of 24,000.

Every day is moving day at the site, bounded by 14th and 20th sts., 1st av. and the East river, and 925 of the families already have moved or have found other apartments to which they will move soon. The others have until July 1 to vacate.

A relocating agency lists 9,500 vacant apartments from which the families may choose, and carries some of the tenants to prospective new homes in swank station wagons.

Rents $14 a Room

Metropolitan's return on its Stuyvesant investment is limited to 6 per cent under the New York redevelopment companies law, and rents will average $14 a room monthly.

Metropolitan's second big post-war project, Peter Cooper Village, will rise immediately to the north and complete the rehabilitation of the old "gas house" district, once the toughest part of town.

George Gove, third vice president in charge of Metropolitan's real estate operations, said this project will cost 10 to 15 million dollars, with apartment buildings for 6,000 persons covering only 27 per cent of the 15 acre site. This parklike residential community, financed under New York law permitting insurance companies to invest part of their funds in housing, will not be given any tax exemptions. Rentals have not been established.

Riverton, the third New York project, will provide homes for 1,250 families in the congested Harlem area bounded by 135th and 138th sts., 5th av., and the Harlem river. Thirteen story apartment buildings will cover only 25 per cent of the land area of 12 acres, and rentals will be $12.50 a room monthly.

Gove estimated the cost of this project at 7½ millions and said it would be carried out under the redevelopment law, as in the case of Stuyvesant.

NORTHERN PACIFIC

I note Northern Pacific railway's earnings for its stock last year were little more than half those of 1943. What caused the decrease?—J. E.

The decline in the net income from $10.29 a share in 1943 to $5.31 in 1944 occurred despite an increase in operating revenues from $151,531,000 to $155,978,000. The gain, however, was mainly in passenger business, which generally is regarded as less profitable than freight.

Last year the ratio of the company's total operating expenses to operating revenues rose to nearly 69 per cent, compared with 60.8 in 1943. The increase in maintenance deductions, including depreciation and amortization, was $8,313,461, and traffic expenses increased $6,315,049. Maintenance was about 33 per cent of gross revenues, compared with 29 per cent in 1943.

Northern Pacific reduced its funded debt by $14,894,000 last year. Since 1939, it has added $56,248,000 to corporate surplus, or the equivalent of more than $22 a share on its 2,479,826 shares. That is about the figure the stock has been selling at. Book value is $200 a share, but rails generally are quoted at large discounts from book value. The company owns 48.5 per cent of Chicago, Burlington and Quincy stock.

From 1932 thru 1940, N. P.'s earnings were much below the recent level, ranging from 3 cents to 83 cents a share except for two years when there were net losses. In 1941 the profit rose to $3.13 and in 1942 to $6.57. Since 1932 only $3 a share has been paid in dividends—$1 each in 1943, 1944, and 1945.

RAIL PURCHASES OF SUPPLIES AT PEAK SINCE 1923

Purchases of fuel, materials, and supplies by the country's class I railroads for use in connection with their operations last year were more than 216 million dollars larger than such outlays in 1943 and a peak for any year since 1923, J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, reported yesterday.

The purchases totaled $1,610,529,000, against $1,738,703,000 in 1923. Pelley said the increase reflected higher prices paid, which averaged 3 per cent more than in 1943, and a larger volume bought.

Expenditures for fuel aggregated $585,832,000, compared with $527,296,000 in 1943. Forest products cost $158,957,000, compared with $150,255,000. Cash outlay for iron and steel products was $526,608,000, up almost 116 million dollars.

Reynolds Net Income Lower tho Sales Rise

Net sales of Reynolds Metal Company and its consolidated subsidiaries increased 27 million dollars over 1943 last year to a total of $165,215,210, but net income decreased, R. S. Reynolds, president, said yesterday in his annual report. Net income in 1944 was $3,045,818, equal to $2.71 a common share, compared with $3,658,950, or $3.30 a share, in 1943. Profit of the Reynolds Alloys company, a wholly owned subsidiary not consolidated because of dividend restrictions under a loan agreement, was $1,656,113 before taxes.

Reynolds said gross billings of the company and of its affiliates and subsidiaries in the four years ending last Dec. 31 exceeded 600 million dollars. The company's bauxite [aluminum ore] reserves in Haiti and Jamaica "far exceed the known deposits" in the United States.

Lehman Assets Rise

New processes are being perfected for reducing the ore to aluminum by less costly and more efficient methods, Reynolds said, adding that "The company has established itself as a basic producer in the aluminum industry on a firm and lasting foundation despite a 25 per cent reduction in the price of aluminum following Reynolds' entry into the industry four years ago."

Lehman corporation capital stock had a net asset value of $45.42 a share on March 31, compared with $44.28 Dec. 31 and $38.97 a year earlier, Robert Lehman, president, said in an interim report covering the first nine months of the investment company's fiscal year. Sales of portfolio securities, excluding government bonds, exceeded purchases, on balance, by $3,125,802.

Largest Holding Is G. M.

Public utility securities represented the largest concentration in the corporation's portfolio, having a market value of $14,833,348 on March 31. Next largest holdings were in oil securities with market value of $11,232,124, followed by merchandising companies' securities of $8,285,371.

Forty thousand shares of General Motors common constituted its largest single investment, valued at $2,555,000. The second largest was Amerada Petroleum, valued at $2,280,000.

Principal portfolio additions in the third quarter included Joy Manufacturing company, 30,000 shares; Middle West corporation, 47,700 shares, and Bethlehem Steel, 10,000 shares.

Incomes of Individuals Reach Peak in February

Washington, D. C., April 8 (AP)—Individuals received income payments of 12 billion 739 million dollars in February, which, when seasonal changes are allowed for, is the highest of any month in history, the commerce department reported today. The total was 5 per cent less than in January, but the decline was less than usual. The department's index of total income payments advanced to 245.1 per cent of the 1935-1939 average, the all-time record, from 241.9 in January.

CAR LOADINGS CHANGE LITTLE IN 2D QUARTER

Seven of 13 Areas Expect Rise

Freight car loadings thruout the country in the second quarter of 1945 are expected to total 9,560,945 cars, only slightly more than the 9,548,068 cars actually loaded in the corresponding period last year, estimates compiled by the 13 shippers' advisory boards showed yesterday.

Seven of the boards, including the midwest board, which covers Chicago, estimated increased loadings in the quarter, but six figured decreases. The midwest forecast was for 1,281,515 cars, compared with 1,255,015 last year.

Expect 13 Commodity Gains

Increased loadings of 13 commodities were predicted. Included were grain, 25.8 per cent; cotton seed and its products, except oil, 21.1 per cent; hay, straw, and alfalfa, 9.7 per cent; canned goods, 7.2 per cent; citrus fruits, 6.1 per cent, and other fresh fruits, 6.6 per cent.

Commodities for which decreases were forecast totaled 15. Among them were potatoes, 11.3 per cent; gravel, sand, and stone, 9.2 per cent; live stock, 10 per cent; petroleum and its products, 9.6 per cent, and machinery and boilers, 5.6 per cent.

Comparisons by Districts
